Delegates Stampede at Roosevelt Name.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

The Democratic national convention exploded into a real old-fashioned political gathering last night with Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley leading the Roosevelt drive.

Two thunderous demonstrations which rocked the Chicago Stadium turned the convention into bedlam. The first came when Senator Barkley, in his address as permanent chairman, mentioned the President by name, and the second was touched off as Mr. Roosevelt's message was conveyed to the convention.

Spectators Pour In.

Adding to the lung capacity of the demonstration were the spectators in the galleries. The Stadium doors were opened wide for ward and precinct workers to stream in. The city organization called in the boys for the big moment and packed the balconies which had been only partly filled during the last two days.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago had worked during the forepart of the evening to stage a mighty show. He went up and down the aisles spreading the word among state chairmen to whoop it up when the time came.

Barkley Sets Off Cheers.

There were a few moments of confusion in the arena after Barkley concluded his announcement at 11:20 that the President had released the delegates. Delegates sat in their seats or milled around the hall, uncertain of what was expected of them.

Finally Senator Barkley stepped to the microphone and shouted: "We want Roosevelt! We want Roosevelt! Everybody wants Roosevelt!"

Pandemonium broke loose.

At midnight the storm began to subside. Chairman Barkley, in a rumpled white suit, his hair touseled, his face flushed and dripping with sweat, banged the gavel and ended the hubbub.

It was a 40 minute demonstration. The earlier performance had lasted 25 minutes.

EVENING SESSION

The balconies were jam-packed by the time the night session began. It was reported that under orders of the local Democratic organization men and women were rushed thru the gates, with or without tickets.

National Chairman James A. Farley showed up on the stage wearing a peacock blue double-breasted suit.

The organ and band from their lofts at the south end of the Stadium regaled the various state delegations with a college medley.

Not a single seat in the arena was vacant when Temporary Chairman William B. Bankhead cracked the gavel at exactly 9:03 p. m.

A Demonstration for Farley.

After the national anthem had been played, Bankhead relinquished the gavel for a moment to Chairman Farley. A noisy demonstration followed.

Farley introduced a resolution lauding Temporary Chairman Bankhead for his speech last night. It was adopted by standing vote.

Congresswoman Mary Norton of New Jersey, chairman of the house labor committee, was introduced to offer a resolution that women have equal representation with men on the resolutions committee. She asserted 2,000 delegates and alternates at the convention were women.

Amid good-natured laughter and cheers the resolution was adopted.

Await Barkley's Speech.

Next the convention approved appointment of the committee to notify the nominee, presented by Gov. Paul B. Johnson of Mississippi.

It was now 9:25 p. m. Five minutes to go before Barkley was scheduled to go on the air.

Mayor Kelly was busy running up the aisles talking to chairmen of various state delegations. Delegates also beat a track to the South Carolina delegation to whisper into the ear of Senator Byrnes.

The organ blared out "The Eyes of

Windsors to Fly to N. Y. on Way to the Bahamas

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—The duke of Windsor, eager to take up his new duties as governor general and commander in chief of the Bahamas, has arranged to fly by Clipper to New York this week with his duchess, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Tarrying scarcely at all in the United States, they will speed on by air to Nassau to take up the colonial overlordship of the little island chain "subkingdom" off the Florida coast.

May Arrive by End of Week.

The next Clipper is scheduled to leave Lisbon Thursday, so it will be possible for the former king and his wife to take over the governor's mansion on New Providence Island by the end of the week. Dispatches from Lisbon, where the Windsors have been since July 3, said they did not intend to remain in New York, but would go on as quickly as possible.

Bahamas Thank King.

NASSAU, Bahamas, July 16 (AP).—The Bahamas' colonial legislature voted unanimous thanks today to King George VI. of England for his order sending the duke of Windsor here as governor general.

The legislature approved a letter to the king thanking him for "the great honor you have conferred on our colony by selecting your brother to be governor and commander-in-chief."

To the duke, a message was addressed promising "a warm welcome and our wholehearted support and coöperation in your administration."

The legislature considered a proposal to renovate the governor's mansion. The retiring governor, Sir Charles Dundas, proposed an appropriation of 2,000 pounds [about $7,680 at the current rate of exchange] for redecoration of the two story structure.

130 Patients Saved from Blazing Toledo Hospital

Toledo, O., July 17, Wednesday [Special].—Fire discovered shortly before midnight in St. Vincent's hospital was brought under control early today after 130 patients had been removed to the adjoining nurses' home. The fire started on the fourth floor of the main building, which was used for storage. The fourth and third floors collapsed onto the second floor. The patients, many in serious condition, were rescued without injury. More than 200 patients remained in two wings of the building which the fire did not reach.

WILLKIE INSISTS PRESIDENT WILL BE THE NOMINEE

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 16 (AP). Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, heard tonight the statement of Senator Alben W. Barkley to the Democratic national convention and then made this comment:

"I'll make the same prediction I made the other night—that the President will be nominated on the first ballot and that he will accept."

Willkie listened to Barkley's broadcast talk in his hotel suite here. He made frequent comments during the address and said at one point that Barkley appeared to be "pretty thin."

Door Still Left Open.

Washington, D. C., July 16 (AP).—Senator Charles R. McNary [R., Ore.], Republican vice presidential nominee, and Representative Joseph W. Martin [R., Mass.], Republican national committee chairman, said tonight that President Roosevelt in his message to the Democratic convention had left the door open to the third term.

Martin, campaign manager for Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, predicted that "the American people will not break an abiding American tradition to continue" the Roosevelt administration. He said "Mr. Roosevelt will be nominated, but he will not be reëlected."

Tells Red Plan to Tie Up U. S. Defense Work

Beaumont, Tex., July 16 (AP).—John L. Leech of Portland, Ore., who described himself as a former communist leader in California, today gave the Dies committee an elaborate outline of alleged communist efforts to weaken the national defense structure.

John L. Leech.

Committee sources said Leech's testimony was the most complete account it had received of communist methods.

Thru his testimony ran charges of Red infiltration into the armed forces of the United States, with young women as bait for susceptible sailors and soldiers, and of communist power in the great west coast seasports.

Gives Testimony in Secret.

The hearing, conducted in his home district by Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the special house committee investigating un-American activities, was held behind the closed doors of a hotel suite, but from persons close to the committee it was learned Leech's story embraced these salient points:

1. Large numbers of communists infiltrated themselves into the California National Guard in a move to destroy morale and undermine the guard's strength. [In California Adjt. Gen. R. E. Mittelstaedt denied this.]

2. Lured by female members of the Young Communist league, sailors and soldiers were enticed to "socials" where they were made objectives of a propaganda campaign.

3. The communist party was seeking to dictate the war policy of the United States, so that no attack could be made on soviet Russia or its allies.

Could Paralyze Communications.

The first step in this direction was to obtain control over west coast shipping and communication thru party members belonging to unions, the witness explained.

Leech said that thru this union membership the communists could paralyze overnight all west coast shipping and communications, insuring that no undesirable messages could be communicated and that no ammunition, war supplies, or troops could be moved over water from the western shores.

HIS 'I'M NOT A CANDIDATE' MESSAGE CLEARS WAY FOR DRAFT BY CONVENTION

Senator Hits G. O. P. Record, Platform, and Nominee.

A summary of the speech which Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic convention's permanent chairman, made last night, excluding the Roosevelt third term announcement, follows. The complete text is on page 6.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Senator Barkley devoted his speech to a blasting criticism of the Republican party, its platform, and its candidate.

Barkley, the New Deal's floor leader in the senate, paid even more uncomplimentary attention to the opposition than did Speaker William B. Bankhead, keynoter at the Monday night session. Barkley ridiculed Wendell L. Willkie, G. O. P. presidential nominee, called the Republican platform adopted at Philadelphia a "political ragout" and an "inept conglomeration," and assailed former President Hoover.

In an attempt to saddle Willkie with the utilities label, Barkley declared that "the Philadelphia convention constituted the second Charge of the Light Brigade, in the heroic Battle of Kilowatt."

Seeks to Blame G. O. P.

More than any other speaker thus far in the convention, the senator also paid much attention to the New Deal's preparedness record, seeking to show that Republican members of congress had voted time and again against various appropriations for increased armament.

He quoted in full and then decried that section of the G. O. P. platform holding the New Deal directly responsible for "unpreparedness and for the consequent danger of involvement in war."

That statement, the permanent chairman declared, was as deceitful an alibi as ever was promulgated by a political party in the history of the country.

Whales Away at G. O. P.

Early in his long address Senator Barkley said the Democrats laid no claim to perfection in their almost eight years in office, but felt a great deal of pride at what they had accomplished thus far, and before he had finished page two of his manuscript he was whaling away at the Republicans, charging that their platform appeared to have been "written in mud by the migratory feet of a weasel."

The men who wrote that platform didn't know where they were going or what to do when they got there, said the chairman, and the day on which it was written was well described as "black Tuesday in Philadelphia."

Then, turning to Willkie, Barkley called him a political chameleon, and marveled that the Republicans "seemed unwilling or afraid" to nominate any man who had been a Republican for more than two years.

Builds Up New Deal.

The permanent chairman told the convention the Democrats had inherited chaos from their predecessors—chaos and fear and lack of confidence. A smug and blind régime had brought on this situation, he charged, and then found itself impotent to avert the disaster of its own making.

Barkley etched his black picture in oratorical crêpe and blasted former President Hoover for his statement in Philadelphia that the duty of the G. O. P. was to "save America for free men." Hoover and his administration, the speaker said scornfully, had attached more chains on the physical, economic, and spiritual aspirations of Americans than any other group in the history of the republic.

Barkley asked whether the Republicans proposed to kill collective bargaining, the wages and hours regulations, and return the farmer to 1932 incomes.

Cites Rise of Income.

Barkley said that during the period which the Republicans said marked the eclipse of free enterprise, the national income increased from 38 to 71 billion dollars annually; government bonds rose from 80 cents to $1.20, and the total indebtedness of the people was cut 10 billions.

He admitted this had cost money, but insisted the increase in the aggregate income of the people was so substantial that the 22 billion dollar rise in the national debt would not panic them.

President Roosevelt, the senator said, had striven valiantly to avert the European war, only to be condemned for it.

BARKLEY GIVES ROOSEVELT VIEW ON NOMINATION

Here is the message from President Roosevelt which Senator Alben W. Barkley read to the Democratic national convention last night:

"The President has never had and has not today any desire or purpose to continue in the office of President, to be a candidate for that office, or to be nominated by the convention for that office. He wishes in all earnestness and sincerity to make it clear that all of the delegates to this convention are free to vote for any candidate.

"That is the message which I bear to you tonight from the President of the United States by authority of his word."

Party Leaders Voice Demand to Name F. D. R.

President Roosevelt's pronouncement, delivered thru Senator Alben W Barkley, that he had "no desire or purpose" to be renominated, was construed at once by third termers to mean that he is willing and ready to be drafted. Some leaders, however, believed the President had withdrawn from the race.

Among those interviewed immediately after Barkley had read the presidential statement were:

SENATOR JAMES F. BYRNES [S. C.]—I know that the President's statement represents his sincere views. However, it is for the delegates to say who shall be the nominee and in this emergency, the President cannot refuse to serve the American people.

Senator Clark's Comment.

SENATOR WORTH CLARK [IDAHO].—The statement is not definite. It leaves the convention, the delegates and the candidates in the same uncertain condition they were before. As far as I am concerned, unless Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Mont.] decides otherwise, his name will be placed in nomination before the convention by me.

SENATOR MILLARD E. TYDINGS [Md.]—I admire the President for the statesmanlike stand he has taken. I think he is sincere in not desiring to continue. There is no doubt that he would have gotten the full support of two-thirds of the delegates had he been a candidate.

SENATOR CLYDE L. HERRING [Ia.]—The President is a good soldier. He knows when he is drafted. He did not seek the nomination. We did. He certainly will be drafted.

Statement by Hopkins.

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HARRY L. HOPKINS—Like Senator Barkley, I have known for months that the President didn't want to run, but the situation that has developed in the past year and our relations to it have given me the feeling of assurance and confidence that the President will be renominated Wednesday night.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE HENRY WALLACE—There is only one thing for the delegates to do. National security and national defense come first. The President and only the President has the experience to pilot this nation safely thru the throublous times ahead. I have no question as to how the Iowa delegates and other delegates pledged to Roosevelt will vote.

MAYOR EDWARD J. KELLY—As I said in my talk to the convention the first day: "No man is bigger than his country. No man is bigger than his party. The people speak, not the individual."

Views of Montanan.

SENATOR J. E. MURRAY [Montana]—I understand his statement to mean that he is not asking for the nomination but is not running from it. He is leaving it up to the convention,

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

In a tumultuous, riotous session of the Democratic national convention last night President Roosevelt thrust the third term crown aside, but did not say he would not accept it today.

With this evidence that the President had left the door wide open for his renomination, the Roosevelt leaders gave the signal to ring up the curtain on the last act of the "draft Roosevelt" drama.

They were confident they would carry their project to a successful conclusion by tonight with a virtually unanimous choice of the President as the Democratic candidate to succeed himself.

Roosevelt Stand Stated.

The President's position on his candidacy for a third term was stated at Mr. Roosevelt's direction by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky at the close of the address he delivered upon assuming the gavel as permanent chairman of the convention. Mr. Roosevelt telephoned it to Senator Barkley late in the afternoon. This authoritative statement contained these points:

1. Mr. Roosevelt has no desire or intention to continue to hold the office of President.

2. He is not a candidate and does not wish to be a candidate for renomination.

3. He does not desire to be nominated for President by this convention.

4. He never has exerted any influence in the election of the delegates to this convention.

5. He wishes to impress all delegates with their freedom to vote for any candidate.

Galleries Cut Loose.

Upon the conclusion of the reading of this statement by the chairman, the Roosevelt delegates on the floor and the thousands of Roosevelt partisans in the galleries cut loose with a bedlam of cheers, shouts, and general whooping it up. It was more than half an hour before order could be restored. Then the convention adjourned, to reconvene at 2 p. m. today.

The plan agreed upon by the convention leaders is to adopt the platform at the session this afternoon and renominate Mr. Roosevelt at the session tonight. If that program goes thru, the candidate for Vice President will be nominated presumably tomorrow and the length of the convention will be shortened by one day. The original program called for the nomination of the candidate for President tomorrow and the candidate for Vice President on Friday.

No Change in Situation.

So far as the original plan to renominate the President is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt's statement created no change in the situation. It generally was recognized as an adroit maneuver to dispel any appearance that the President sought renomination and to give the convention the cue to "draft" him with unanimity, the antithird term tradition to the contrary notwithstanding.

Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, the President's liaison officer at the convention, predicted after the reading of the statement that Mr. Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot and will accept.

"I have no comment to make," said Postmaster General James A. Farley, himself a candidate for the nomination. "The statement speaks for itself."

Garner Men Encouraged.

The managers of the candidacy of Vice President John N. Garner for the presidential nomination professed to find encouragement for their cause in Mr. Roosevelt's statement.

"We have predicated our whole campaign on the theory that Roosevelt is not a candidate," said E. B. Germany, "and he has merely substantiated our original position. Our delegates are so instructed."

Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, majority leader of the house, was seated in the Texas delegation when a Tribune reporter found him after the reading of the Roosevelt statement.

"We're pledged to Mr. Garner," said Rayburn.

"Let's go, Sam," said Germany as

Texans Stay in Seats.

The Texans, however, kept to their seats.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who has said from the start that his name will be presented for the nomination if Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate, declined to comment on the Roosevelt statement.

"Will it change your plans?" he was asked.

"Not at this time" he replied.

Senator Millard F. Tydings of Maryland, who also is to be placed in nomination if he does not change his mind, said: "It was a sincere and statesmanlike utterance. I admire the President for making it."

Unchanged, Says McNutt.

"I don't believe the Roosevelt statement changed the situation," said former Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, now federal security administrator, who withdrew from the race for the presidential nomination and urged the renomination of the President.

With the decision made to name the President tonight instead of tomorrow, the Roosevelt strategy board rushed from the convention hall to the Stevens hotel to complete the program. It still remained to be determined whether to follow the orthodox procedure of presenting the President's name in a nominating speech or to nominate him without any formal presentation of his name.

If the latter procedure is adopted Garner, Farley, Wheeler, and Tydings will be placed in nomination—all the candidates except the President. Then the first and only ballot would be taken and the delegations would fall over each other recording their votes for Roosevelt, despite the lack of a formal presentation of his name.

Nomination Expected.

Up to the moment news was received at the convention that Mr. Roosevelt would make his stand known in the message read by Barkley, the President's renomination and his acceptance were regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The indications were that the President not only had no thoughts of declining but also was actively directing the strategy for his renomination and the choice of his running mate.

From the precincts of the Roosevelt strategy committee, captained by Secretary Hopkins, it was learned that both Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Vice President Garner have been eliminated by the White House for second place on the ticket.

The President, it was related in this quarter, had a conference with Mr. Hull yesterday at which the secretary of state definitely refused to allow his name to be considered for the Vice Presidency.

Vice President Garner was eliminated definitely as a candidate for renomination. According to his closest friends here, he was eager to get the job again and was only waiting to be "drafted" by the President. But Mr. Roosevelt remained silent so long that Cactus Jack took the tip that he was not wanted.

Garner Stand Told.

So Germany, the Garner campaign manager, announced that Mr. Garner would not accept a third term because he is constitutionally opposed to a third term for either President or Vice President.

Texas, however, presented a problem for the Roosevelt high command. Leaders of the Texas delegation had waxed most troublesome in their demands that Mr. Garner be renominated. They had gone to such lengths as to predict that Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, would carry Texas unless the Vice President were placed on the ticket.

Attempts at appeasement of the Texans were clearly in order, and presently there emerged the proposition of nominating Representative Rayburn for Mr. Roosevelt's running mate.

Secretary Hopkins was assured that Rayburn's presence on the ticket would save Texas to the Democrats. Mr. Hopkins said he thought favorably of the suggestion and would put it up to Mr. Roosevelt.

Johnson Flies to Capital.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson flew back to Washington yesterday to present to Mr. Roosevelt his claims for the vice presidential nomination. These claims chiefly are that he is a world war veteran and a member of the American Legion whose war record matches that of Willkie and that he is a young and vigorous campaigner, capable of trading blows with the redoubtable Republican nominee.

There are others in the "young and vigorous" class whose lightning rods are up for the choice for second place on the ticket. Among them are Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, and former Gov. McNutt.

Mr. McNutt's chances are regarded now, however, as somewhat less than gilt edged by virtue of the scandal involving the 2 per cent Indiana slush fund which he founded. The story that he has settled treasury income tax deficiency claims against him for $3,000 assessed on his winnings at the card table also is regarded pretty generally as a political liability.

While the renomination of the President and his acceptance were taken for granted thruout convention circles, opposition stiffened during the day. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who will arrive in Chicago today, prepared to place Mr. Farley in nomination for the presidency, had wired his colleague, Senator Harry F. Byrd, previously to record him in opposition to the renomination of the President.

Toy Donkey

It transpired during the day that the New Dealers had attempted a bit of sharp practice to prevent Senator Glass from presenting the name of Mr. Farley. They had induced a close friend of his in the administration to suggest to the aged senator that he stay away from Chicago, giving as his excuse the illness of his recent bride.

Whether Senator Glass fell in with this ruse or not, it was announced at first that he would not come to Chicago. When Senator Byrd heard of the shenanigan to keep Glass away he telephoned his colleague, urging him to come after all. Senator Glass consented.

MOVE UNDER WAY 2 YEARS

The movement for the renomination of the President for a third term has been developing for more than two years. The first sign of organized activity in behalf of his retention in office came from the ranks of the New Dealers, in fact, from their inner circle at the White House.

The first open moves were made by scattering labor organizations which adopted resolutions urging the President to stand for renomination. Month by month the agitation of the proposal increased, until Democratic leaders in various parts of the country were declaring for a third term.

They did so gingerly at first when the indications were that the notion of violating the anti-third term tradition was repugnant to the majority of the Democratic party.

Professes to Be Oblivious.

Mr. Roosevelt took no public notice of the third term resolutions and other manifestations of the project. He professed to be oblivious of what was going on. By the beginning of 1939, however, when the activities of the third term boomers were claiming constantly increasing space in the newspapers, he abandoned the attitude of the oblivious bystander and adopted that of the sphynx.

He became the sphynx at a press conference early in 1939, at which he was asked whether he contemplated becoming a candidate for renomination. He snapped at the reporter the suggestion that he don a dunce cap and sit in the corner.

At many subsequent press conferences the reporters sought to draw him out on the subject and for a time he gave the same answer as the first time.

All this time the New Dealers were becoming more and more active in the agitation. The first member of the cabinet to beat the drums for the third term was Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, who lauded the President to the skies and called on the country to draft him to succeed himself. He belittled the antithird term tradition as a foolish fetish at best, which all who have the best interests of their country at heart would ignore.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, and two successive attorneys general, Frank Murphy and Robert H Jackson, chimed in with arguments that the country needed the chief New Dealer at the head of the government for another four years.

Secretary Hull, Mr. Farley, and former Secretary of War Harry Woodring held conspicuously aloof from the third term booming.

Proposal Splits Party.

The third term proposal split the Democratic party. It was promoted by the New Dealers on the left wing, while the conservative Democrats on the right wing would have no truck with it and warned of the dangers of any departure from the unwritten law limiting the presidential tenure to eight years.

By the summer of 1939 other candidacies for the Democratic nomination were being launched. Mr. Farley was going about the country quietly canvassing for support for his own nomination. Altho he never made public announcement of his views, he declared himself privately against violation of the two term tradition and expressed confidence that the President would not be guilty of its breach.

Vice President Garner became a candidate, his managers stating in his behalf that he was not to be considered a rival of Mr. Roosevelt for the nomination because it was assumed that the President would not seek or accept a third term.

McNutt Provisional Candidate.

Mr. McNutt announced his candidacy on the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt would not run. Later Senator Wheeler got into the race, asserting his disbelief that the President would be a candidate.

The war had been seized upon by the New Dealers as ammunition for their third term campaign. The President had been attacking the European dictators, espousing the cause of Great Britain and France, predicting war, and exploiting apprehensions of its impact upon the United States.

The New Dealers now began to enlarge upon the argument that in the war crisis confronting the country the President, with his far seeing grasp of international problems, should be kept on the job in Washington for another term. They appropriated to their purpose the slogan of Lincoln's reëlection campaign: "Don't swap horses while crossing a stream."

Agitation Spurred by War.

When the war that Mr. Roosevelt had predicted did break out last September, the third term boosters made the most of it to further their cause. The agitation took on larger proportions and the opposition of Democratic leaders to breach of the antithird term tradition began to give way.

Still by the time the Presidential primaries and state conventions were at hand last spring the opposition candidates still were in the field on the assumption that Mr. Roosevelt would not run and he had not indicated whether he would or not.

The primaries produced abundant evidence, however, that the President was a party to the movement to "draft" him for a third term.

Mayor Kelly called frequently at the White House, consulting the President on the plans to enter his name in the Illinois primary. After these consultations the mayor started the "draft Roosevelt" boom in a big way.

Collaborates with Ohioans.

The President also collaborated with the Ohio Democratic leaders on the plan eventually adopted to give him the delegation from that state without his consent being formally given, as required by law. In other states he also directed the moves for entering his candidacy in the primaries.

In the midst of the primaries there came the closest to a disclosure of the President's intentions. Ernest Lindley, Mr. Roosevelt's biographer, published an account of a conversation the President had with a southern congressman. The President was quoted as saying that he would not be a candidate unless the Germans were overrunning France and England and menacing the United States. Mr. Roosevelt allowed the story to go unrepudiated for two weeks.

Finally Mr. Roosevelt called Mr. Farley to Hyde Park ten days ago and confided his secret. Presumably it was essentially the statement made to the convention last night.

WAY LEFT OPEN; PRESIDENT MAY FLY TO CHICAGO

White House Interview Leads to Speculation.

BY WILLIAM EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—The first move in President Roosevelt's announcement of his intention not to seek a third term came at his press conference late today when he revealed that Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky had been selected to make public the Rooseveltian attitude at the Chicago convention.

The President at that time would say only that he had authorized Barkley to make a statement in his behalf at the close of the senator's address as permanent chairman of the Democratic convention. Mr. Roosevelt refused firmly to disclose the nature of the announcement.

Grins at Own Explanation.

His pretext—given with a grin—for waiting until this late date in convention affairs before revealing what his party has waited months to hear was that the convention would not be organized on a permanent basis until Barkley had taken over the gavel.

Mr. Roosevelt left the way open for a swift trip by plane or train to Chicago tomorrow or later in the week in the event of a draft movement. He gave a flat "no" when asked last week if he would go to Chicago. His reply today that he would not discuss his actions subsequent to the Barkley speech led to speculation on his possible personal appearance at the convention.

Stalls for Half an Hour.

The President stalled off questions at his regular Tuesday press conference for 30 minutes while he read a detailed report of progress in his 10 billion dollar defense program.

He asked sharply if national safety should not be put in front of any convention as a major news development when a reporter questioned his evaluation of the relative news values of the two stories.

"Mr. President," finally queried a reporter, "Why have you refrained this long in making clear your third term intentions?"

"I think you'd better get on the air and listen to the radio tonight," was Mr. Roosevelt's response. "Senator Barkley, after his address as permanent chairman, will make a statement in behalf of the President."

200 Dash Out with News.

This announcement came at exactly 4:30 p. m. A moment later 200 newsmen dashed from the executive office to flash the news. Mr. Roosevelt apparently enjoyed deeply the drama of the situation. He laughed as he watched the reporters hurry out.

Earlier in the day he had been described by Secretary Stephen T. Early as indulging in "loud laughter" during a conversation with Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins over the private White House wire to Chicago. The President talked for five minutes with Hopkins, one of the third term board of strategy at the convention.

St. Louis Mayor Elected Chairman of Credentials

Bernard F. Dickman, mayor of St. Louis, Mo., was elected chairman of the Democratic convention credentials committee yesterday after the previously designated chairman, Fred Lancaster of Maine, failed to appear. Members waited for more than half an hour for Lancaster.

BARKLEY KNOWN AS PRESIDENT'S RUBBER STAMP

Senators View Him as Bumbling Leader.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who became permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention last night and delivered President Roosevelt's message on the third term question to the delegates, is distinguished in the senate for his undeviating obedience to the wishes of the White House.

He is known among his colleagues as the President's "Dear Alben," the salutation by which Mr. Roosevelt addressed him in a letter designating him for the senate majority leadership after the death of Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas in July, 1939.

Put Over by Vote Switch.

At that time the senate Democrats were bitterly divided on President Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme court. Opponents of the court packing plan supported Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, for the majority leadership because of his great popularity and his conservative inclinations. Thirty-eight of the senate's 75 Democrats were pledged to Senator Harrison, but former Senator William H. Dietrich of Illinois was induced by the administration to obtain a release from Harrison and support Barkley, giving him the majority.

During the last two years Barkley has been assisted and at times actually supplanted in the leadership by Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who is regarded as the senate's ablest strategist and behind the scenes manipulator. Byrnes is a member of the President's third term strategy board and will be floor leader of the third term forces at the convention when the work of nominating a candidate for President gets under way.

Belongs to Old School.

Barkley's genial disposition and his efforts at harmony and good fellowship among the senate Democrats have won the personal friendship of the members, but both the New Dealers and the anti-New Dealers regard his leadership methods as somewhat bungling.

As an orator, Barkley is a representative of the old school southern tradition. He flails his arms, perspires, and his face grows red as he works himself into an oratorical frenzy defending some major administration policy. His attempts at humor, which are frequent, are described as elephantine by some of his colleagues.

Barkley's campaign for reëlection to the senate in 1938 was the genesis of the first and second Hatch acts, outlawing pernicious political activity by federal jobholders and state machine pay rollers who handle federal funds. Barkley successfully opposed an amendment to the relief appropriation act of 1938 to prohibit the coercion of WPA workers for political purposes. The Sheppard committee on campaign expenditures, controled by Democrats, later declared in a unanimous report that conditions in the Kentucky senatorial primary were so deplorable as to shock the conscience of the country. As a result of the committee's findings Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico introduced his clean politics bills.

President Aids Campaign.

President Roosevelt went to Kentucky in 1938 to speak for "Dear Alben" in his campaign for renomination against Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler, who subsequently was appointed to the senate. Mr. Roosevelt reminded the Kentucky voters of the hundreds of millions of dollars which his administration had lavished upon their state.

Barkley is 63 years old. He is a lawyer by profession but has been in public life since 1905. After several terms in the house of representatives, he was elected to the senate in 1926. He was the temporary chairman and keynoter of the 1932 and 1936 conventions.

FARLEY'S BROKEN WITH NO ONE, HE TELLS PRESS

Questioned on His Stand with Roosevelt.

Postmaster General James A. Farley told a press conference yesterday that he has not broken with President Roosevelt—or any one else.

Farley, who also is chairman of the Democratic national committee, said he had last talked with the President over the telephone before the convention opened Monday noon. He added that he would be delighted to hear from Mr. Roosevelt any time.

Asked whether any one had called in the President's behalf to urge that he stay on as Democratic chairman, Farley said he had not discussed the question with the President directly or indirectly.

In Excellent Spirits.

The party chairman, who was in excellent spirits, was asked what he would do if the name of Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, is submitted to the convention. Farley reminded the questioner that Senator Alben W. Barkley will be in the chair at the time names are placed in nomination. He added that this is a democratic convention and any one has the right to seek recognition of the chair.

On his own candidacy Farley was asked whether he intended to persuade Senator Carter Glass to place him in nomination.

"I think that is the wisest move I could make," he replied. "One of the finest tributes I could have is to have Senator Glass, who is recognized as one of the greatest Americans of this generation, present my name to the convention."

He'll Support Nominee.

Farley said he had no idea how many delegates would vote for him. Told that Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins estimated between 60 and 70 votes, Farley's only comment was that to receive such a number of votes would be a compliment.

Farley was asked whether in view of his position against a third term he would vote for Roosevelt or for Willkie if Roosevelt is renominated. He replied without hesitation that every one who knows anything about him knows he will support the nominee of this convention.

Secretary Hopkins and other Roosevelt leaders were bringing great pressure to bear on Chairman Farley to consent to remain at the head of the national committee until at least Sept. 1 in order to get the campaign started.

Refuses to Commit Himself.

It was an open secret that they thought that if he would stay that long he eventually would consent to serve thruout the campaign. Farley would not commit himself. Apparently he will insist on retiring at once unless the President personally should persuade him to stay.

Leo T. Crowley of Wisconsin, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, is being widely discussed as a possible successor to Farley as national chairman. Another is Frank Walker of New York. Illinois leaders think Mayor Kelly stands an excellent chance of being selected for the post.

ROAR OF BEDLAM EXPLODES IN HALL AT NIGHT SESSION

The big moment of the convention neared.

At 9:30 Chairman Bankhead returned to the speaker's desk and pounded for order. A male chorus led by Harry Richman, night club entertainer, led the crowd in singing the Kate Smith hit, "God Bless America." Farley joined in heartily from a position on the platform. His pretty daughters, Betty and Ann, stood beside him.

A booming demonstration followed reading of a resolution lauding Farley for "unparalleled service to his party." Fulsome praise for Farley was "read into party history" by a standing vote of the delegates at the request of Mrs. Lucretia de Valle Grady of Washington.

Play Southern Tunes for Barkley.

The convention approved a committee report naming Senator Barkley of Kentucky permanent chairman, and joined in singing a medley of southern melodies, dominated by "My Old Kentucky Home."

At 9:50, Barkley appeared at the rear of the stage in the tow of the committee appointed to convey him. Bankhead cut off "My Old Kentucky Home" in the middle with his gavel and an upraised hand.

The senior senator from Kentucky wore a white summer suit which was accented by a polka-dotted blue tie. He appeared nervous and licked his lips as he started the historic address, squinting down at the prepared copy of his speech thru pince-nez glasses.

Boo Hoover; Cheer Roosevelt.

But when Barkley mentioned the magical name of Roosevelt for the first time the convention went wild.

The demonstration began at 10:08. Other demonstrations at Roosevelt's name in the convention had hitherto been abortive and short-lived, but this one had an official note to it because Barkley appeared before the delegates as Roosevelt's messenger.

State standards were grabbed and the parade began around the hall. North Dakota and Arkansas were in the van.

There was a fight in the Massachusetts delegation over the standard. Delegates from the Bay state had been instructed back home to vote for Farley for President.

Farley Stands Silent.

Farley, whose friendship with the President faded in recent months over the third term issue, stood silently on the platform looking at the scene in the hall.

The Democratic chairman presented the most pathetic picture in the Stadium. In the President's moment of triumph, Farley's eyes were dimmed with tears. He chewed gum violently.

Six banners, however, remained rooted in their sockets. They were Maryland, Missouri, Virginia, Nevada, Louisiana, and Puerto Rico.

Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, who escaped the Roosevelt purge campaign in 1938 and is a bitter foe of the third term, hung onto the Maryland standard and it remained firmly in its place.

At 10:18 Barkley pounded the gavel and pleaded with the delegations to return to the seats. His words were drowned out in a rising tide of protest and cheers.

The organ and 40 piece band added to the din.

Barkley finally brought the wild demonstration to a sober end at 10:29 with an announcement: "A lady has been seriously injured. Will a doctor come to the platform?"

Reassured by Demonstration.

The demonstration seemed to reassure Barkley. Toward the end of his speech the Kentuckian pounded the desk, shook his head to emphasize his points, and raised his voice at times to a shout.

Barkley closed amid heavy applause when he declared the Roosevelt régime was the greatest instrument for the good of the American people since the Declaration of Independence.

He was handed a big twist of tobacco wrapped in cellophane.

"I have been handed this twist of tobacco from my native state," said Barkley, "but I don't think I'll keep it. I'll send it to Willkie to stop him from chewing the rag."

Then came the message from the President and the tumultuous second demonstration.

Barkley Hugs Banner.

A brass band appeared from somewhere and began blaring in the center aisle next to the Illinois section. The convention band and organ added to the din from their lofts.

The "mikes" of the Illinois and New Jersey delegations were then opened for broadcasting on the floor and the "We Want Roosevelt!" chant of Barkley was taken up. Mayor Kelly and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City led in the shouting.

"Illinois wants Roosevelt!" a voice yelled.

"Everybody wants Roosevelt" some one else cried.

Senators Josh Lee of Oklahoma and Claude Pepper of Florida, two 100 per cent Roosevelt men, captured the microphone on the platform.

"The world wants Roosevelt!" Lee yelled.

"Tammany wants Roosevelt!" a New York City delegate screamed.

The "want Roosevelt" theme was reeled off for all the states and territories. It sounded like the same voice coming from the floor microphone at this point.

Barkley Waves Picture.

Shortly before midnight some one handed Barkley a large fromed portrait of the President and he waved it happily aloft. It set the demonstration off anew.

Senator Byrnes of North Carolina announced the convention would adjourn until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Two oratorical eulogies of President Roosevelt and all his works, a half dozen songs, and the appearance of a paper-garbed tribe of easy-on-the-eye "Rainbow" girls marked the afternoon session.

Delegates and the crowd were again late in arriving. As the noon hour neared only 400 of the 3,187 delegates and alternates were in their seats.

Temporary Chairman Bankhead put in an appearance 20 minutes early. Clad in a cool looking white suit and wearing a maroon tie, the speaker of the house came to the front of the rostrum and looked dourly on the partly filled arena. The convention management was making Herculean efforts to start sessions on time.

As usual, photographers began to take pictures of special groups among the delegates.

The band played "Dixie" and the southern delegates obliged with a few rebel yells.

Bishop Revery C. Ransom of Wilberforce university, a tall, white haired colored man, pronounced the invocation.

A young woman in a pink frock and white hat moved resolutely up to the spotlight behind Bankhead, an imposing looking manuscript in hand. She was Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, wife of a Michigan Supreme court justice and highly paid director of the women's division of the Democratic national committee. Hers was the first speech of the day.

Empty Patches Remain.

She mentioned the name of "our great President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt," and drew a scattered burst of applause. There still were empty patches among the delegations. The balconies were only one-third occupied.

Handclapping greeted Mrs. McAllister's declaration that the President's idea of national defense began with "the welfare of the average man, the average woman, the average family, and the average home."

At this point Senator Barkley, who had been holding court in the Kentucky delegation, stood up beside his state standard and posed for the photographers.

Undaunted by these antics on the floor, Mrs. McAllister went on to pay tribute to Eleanor Roosevelt.

Michigan Delegation Cheers.

As Mrs. McAllister closed her eulogy of the President as "the first citizen of the world," the Michigan delegation jumped up and cheered.

Mrs. McAllister stood at Bankhead's side, waving her thanks at the ovation and smiling for photographers.

A bevy of 12 young "Rainbow" girls, wearing flowing paper dresses and big picture hats, then popped up from nowhere on the stage and began tossing Democratic campaign literature out to the delegates. Most of the shower hit the press section. [The girls' paper costumes, it was learned, were tested by the fire department before they were allowed to venture onto the rostrum. The girls were Young Democrats from Illinois.]

Bankhead then regained control of the microphone and got ready for the next speaker, Congressman Arthur Mitchell of Chicago, a Negro.

Recites Aids for His Race.

Mitchell recited a list of hospitals, schools, and other works projects created for people of his race, enumerated those who had been taken into the Civilian Conservation corps, National Youth administration activities, and other agencies of Roosevelt creation.

Amid a rising tide of cheers, Mitchell predicted the Negroes would plump en masse for a Democratic victory in November.

The American trio, standing in the bandstand at the southern end of the Stadium, then sang "America My Home." Admonished by the chairman to keep quiet in their seats during the "excellent rendition," the delegates listened attentively.

After a few routine announcements, a motion to adjourn until 9 p. m. was put by Malcolm McConihie of the District of Columbia. It was 1:10 p. m. when the delegates straggled out, meeting tardy ticket holders who were just arriving.

Arthur H. Gunderson Jr., 13 years old, has been awarded a certificate and gold medal for his heroism in saving the life of another boy in May, 1939. Young Gunderson, a member of Boy Scout troop 999, was in a forest preserve near Forest Glen when Harold Mayerle, 14, fell into a water-filled clay hole while playing with a makeshift boat. The award will be made after Arthur, who lives at 5278 Larned avenue, returns from Boy Scout camp near Whitehall, Mich.

WHEELER AHEAD 3-1 IN MONTANA PRIMARY VOTE

Helena, Mont., July 17, Wednesday (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler swept to a lead of 15,141 votes against 5,672 for Attorney General Harrison J. Freebourn early today in the Democratic senatorial nomination race of yesterday's primary. The figures were from 136 of the state's 1,195 precincts

Jeannette Rankin, the country's first congresswoman, and Dr. Jacob Thorkelson, incumbent, were neck-and-neck in their bid for the Republican nomination for congressman from the first district. In 21 precincts Miss Rankin had 375 votes; Thorkelson 366.

Lieut. Gov. Hugh Adair took a slight lead, 2,320 to 2,026, over former Congressman Jerry J. O'Connell in returns from 42 precincts in the Democratic congressional race of the first district.

IOWA'S DILEMMA—2 FAVORITE SONS COVET 2D PLACE

The Iowa delegation to the Democratic convention faced a quandary yesterday with the prospect that two native sons might be placed in nomination for the Vice Presidency. They are Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who would have White House support if he entered the contest, and United States Senator Clyde L. Herring, chairman of the delegation.

The delegates decided temporarily to avoid any commitment. In a later caucus they elected Frank Comfort, well to do Des Moines lawyer, national committeeman to succeed Hubert Utterback, who is ill.

STRONG ANTIWAR PLANK WILL GO TO CONVENTION

Draft Satisfies Faction Led by Wheeler.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Senator McCarran.

Agreement on a foreign relations plank satisfactory to Senator Burton K. Wheeler and his group of strong noninterventionists was reached by the Democratic party platform drafters late last night.

The complete platform, as written by a subcommittee of the convention resolutions committee, will be submitted to the full committee today and is expected to reach the convention at this afternoon's session.

Chief Points of Plank.

As was the case at the Republican convention in Philadelphia, the foreign policy plank evoked greatest debate and was regarded the most important plank in the national platform. Chief points of the Democratic plank are:

1. A specific pledge that American army, naval, or air forces shall not be sent overseas to fight in foreign lands.

2. Sympathy for oppressed democracies and indorsement of such aid as may be given within the laws of the United States, with a reservation that our own national defense shall not be impaired.

3. An adequate national defense strong enough to defend the United States and uphold the Monroe Doctrine.

Silent on Conscription.

Conscription is not mentioned in the platform. The threat of the Wheeler forces to push a fight for an anticonscription plank headed off expected efforts to push a proconscription declaration.

The strong noninterventionists declared the foreign policy plank was a victory for their views.

"I am fully satisfied," said Senator Wheeler. "It is a very good plank. It embraces our ideas."

"The platform will meet the objectives of all people who want to keep us out of war," said Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, another noninterventionist.

Controversy over the foreign policy plank started in the drafting committee over the question of "aid to the allies." Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace offered a plank which would commit the United States to a policy of giving Britain all possible aid "short of war."

Urged by White Committee.

In substance this was the program urged by the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, of which William Allen White of Kansas is president. It was similar to the views expressed by Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, who is regarded as the senate's foremost interventionist.

The Wallace plank not only advocated all possible aid to Britain and the "other democracies of Europe" but contained a strong denunciation of dictators and aggressors.

"It sounds like a war plank," commented Senator Wheeler. Secretary Wallace vehemently denied it was a war plank.

When it appeared the members might give it short shrift, Wallace suggested that his proposed plank be adopted by the resolutions committee itself as a statement of its own position without reference to the national platform of the Democratic party.

Majority Opposed to Plan.

Chairman Wagner canvassed the drafting subcommittee. He found that about three fourths of the 17 members were opposed to the procedure asked by Wallace. On the insistence of Secretary Wallace, Chairman Wagner then told the members he would communicate with President Roosevelt concerning the Wallace proposal. The committee recessed for that purpose until 9:30, when Senator Barkley was to start his address at the Stadium and the subcommittee was to reassemble and listen over the radio.

When the subcommittee reconvened after the recess, during which time Chairman Wagner presumably communicated with the President, the Wallace proposal was rejected by a vote of 16 to 1. Only Wallace supported it.

Wagner Has Complete Draft.

When the subcommittee started its work for the day Chairman Wagner appeared with the draft of a platform covering virtually all planks. All week long it had been reported that a platform had been drafted or outlined at the White House. Nobody coming to Chicago admitted he had a copy of such a draft in his brief case. Where Chairman Wagner got his draft or whether he wrote it himself was not explained, nor was the question pressed in the subcommittee.

Extended controversy met the Wagner plank on foreign relations. The strong opponents of intervention contended that it failed to distinguish between government aid and private aid. Such a program they argued, would be a violation of neutrality.

Object to Government Aid.

Senator Wheeler and Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada and others of their group voiced no objection to private assistance for Great Britian, but they do not want the government itself to furnish such aid. Also they oppose any modification of the neutrality laws which might make possible the extension of credits to Great Britian or the use of American ships to transport munitions and supplies to Britian or the allies or to use the American navy as convoys.

The Wagner proposal, however, went somewhat farther than the President's pledge to congress, "we will not send our men to take part in Europe's wars." The Wagner plank declared against sending American troops not only to Europe but to Asia and Africa.

Senators McCarran and Wheeler and their supporters regarded this as a substantial concession to their views. Still they asked that the plank be given wider scope to conform more nearly to the plank drafted and submitted by Senator Wheeler Sunday night after conferences with Senators Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, D. Worth Clark of Idaho, Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado, McCarran and others.

As the platform drafters finished their work, prospects appeared steadily diminishing that there will be any efforts to present an antithird term plank on the floor of the convention. Earlier in the evening Senator McCarran announced he might introduce such a plank.

In case McCarran submits an antithird term declaration, it is expected to follow in substance the utterance which the Democrats wrote into their national platform 44 years ago. The Democratic national platform adopted July 7, 1896, had the following plank:

"We declare it to be the unwritten law of this republic, established by custom and usage of 100 years and sanctified by the examples of the greatest and wisest of those who founded and have maintained our government, that no man should be eligible for a third term of the presidential office."

Dispute Over Power Plank.

Other than foreign relations, the only subject of major controversy before the subcommittee was the utilities plank. Some members wanted a declaration favoring a vast extension of the federal power program, such as was urged before the full resolutions committee by Representative John Rankin of Mississippi, chairman of the house public power bloc.

Rankin urged expansion of the public power program to "make available to every home and business in the United States electric power at rates based on the cost of generation, transmission, and distribution."

It was suggested by some during the subcommittee's debate on the utility issue that a strong public power plank would help the party win in November, "since it might tend to identify Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, as the candidate of the power interests."

The plank agreed upon, of which the Wagner draft was the basis, was said to represent a compromise which contained a strong indorsement of the administration's rural electrification program, the Tennessee Valley authority experiment, federal loans for the construction or acquisition of municipal power systems, and the hydro-electric power dams constructed under the Roosevelt administration.

REPORT STEVENS SUITE READY FOR PRESIDENT

There were rumors drifting about the lobby of the Stevens hotel yesterday that a presidential suite had been prepared for the reception of President Roosevelt.

The hotel management explained that a "presidential suite" had recently been prepared and that Basil O'Connor of New York, a former law partner of the President, was now occupying it.

EMPLOYS WORDS OF JEFFERSON TO ASSAIL 3D TERM

Carolinian Urges Votes for Secretary Hull.

Gov. Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina, chairman of his state's delegation at the Democratic convention, received a telegram yesterday from C. L. Shuping of Greensboro, N. C., which said: "Should a President consent to be a candidate for a third election, I trust he would be rejected on this demonstration of ambitious views."

These words were not original with Shuping, who is former Democratic national committeeman from North Carolina and managed President Roosevelt's preconvention campaign in that state in 1932. He was quoting the language of Thomas Jefferson, uttered 119 years ago.

Calls Delegates Unwilling.

"It will be most unfortunate for the nation," Shuping telegraphed the governor, "if Mr. Roosevelt, thru the medium of the Democratic party, challenges the tradition against any president serving three terms. I know that you and many other delegates from North Carolina in your minds and hearts are conscientiously opposed to breaking this tradition.

"The Democratic party has heretofore faithfully followed the precepts of Jefferson. It should not now lend itself to any plan which will overthrow its great principles and tend toward its dissolution. Thousands of loyal North Carolina Democrats would vote against Mr. Roosevelt.

"Jefferson, on Jan. 6, 1821, said: 'The example of four presidents voluntarily retiring at the end of their eighth year and the progress of public opinion that the principle is salutary have given it in practice the force of precedent and usage; insomuch that should a President consent to be a candidate for a third election I trust he would be rejected on this demonstration of ambitious views.'

Recalls Jefferson Plea.

"Jefferson had himself declined a third term, and on Dec. 10, 1807, gave the following reasons: 'If some termination to the services of the chief magistrate be not fixed by the constitution or supplied by practice, his office, nominally for years, will, in fact, become for life and history shows how easily that degenerates into an inheritance."

Shuping concluded with a plea that Gov. Hoey and the other North Carolina delegates should attempt to win their release on any commitment to vote for Roosevelt. He urged the delegation to support Secretary of State Cordell Hull for President.

ROUTS TIRE THIEVES.

Theodore Simon awakened early yesterday to see two men attempting to steal a tire from his truck, in front of his home at 2828 Emerald avenue. He fired a shot and routed them.

DEMOCRATS VOTE EQUAL VOICE TO WOMEN OF PARTY

Each State, Territory on Platform Committee.

BY MARCIA WINN.

If the Democratic platform isn't finished by this afternoon, as the boys expect, it may not be wholly the fault of the boys. If, on the other hand, it is finished by noon today it may not be due altogether to fast work by the boys. It well may be the women.

For, beginning at 9:30 o'clock last night, the formerly all-male resolutions committee was increased by 49 feminine minds, 45 from the states, 4 from the territories. There would have been 51, but three states—Louisiana, New Hampshire, and Alabama—sent masculine delegations to the convention. When the convention last night made a move unprecedented in American political history and voted that each state and territory put one woman, as well as one man, on the platform committee, three had none to put on.

Get An Equal Voice.

This action, first approved yesterday morning by the rules committee, was presented to the convention for a vote by Mrs. Thomas Buckley, delegate from Massachusetts. It was adopted following a stirring plea by Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of Massachusetts that the men show their appreciation for women's work by giving them "an equal voice."

"For 20 years," she told them, "we have given freely all that we have to promote the welfare and best interests of our great party. With world conditions almost in a state of complete collapse we are asking many questions concerning our government. We believe the time has come when we should assume some of the responsibility of government if we are to continue our American way of life.

"We are ready to make every sacrifice necessary to continue that way of life, but we believe in accepting responsibility and sacrifice we should have a voice in the platform pledges of our party."

Organise Against War.

Never in national history, she said, have women's services been more necessary, with "selfish, money-grabbing interests determined to drag us into war." Women, she said, now are organizing their strength "determined that no power on earth short of invasion will ever force us into war."

She ended by asking the men to prove their faith in women's 20 years' work by approving the resolution. A chorus of "ayes" went up, followed by a few "noes."

Women leaders were jubilant. Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, said "it's a very good and modern thing to do." Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, director of the Democratic women's division, said, "It's the first time women have had a voice commensurate with the work that they do." "Women," she added, "will expedite rather than delay."

Many of the men in the delegations seemed upset about the vote. When asked whom they had selected as their platform lady, some said, "what for? it's not until next year!"

However, it was effective immediately. A few states, anticipating the move in advance, already had selected their woman delegates.

PEACE ACHIEVED BY DEMOCRATS OF WISCONSIN

Mrs. Louise N. Givan of Milwaukee was elected national committeewoman last night by the Wisconsin delegation to the Democratic convention after a stiff internal fight. The committee also voted to attempt to draft John Cudahy, wealthy meat packer and ambassador to Belgium, as a candidate for United States senator.

These moves were aimed at lifting the party out of the third place it now occupies in state politics. The Democrats believe that if Cudahy would lead their ticket they could offer a serious challenge to the Republicans and Progressives.

The delegates came to Chicago with 21 of their 24 members agreed on nominating President Roosevelt, but they apparently were wide apart on most other matters. For vice president the group splits its preferences between Lucas, McNutt, Garner, Farley, and Hull.

PERKINS ADMITS ROOSEVELT WILL TAKE THIRD TERM

Says Decision to Run Already Made.

BY MARCIA WINN.

It remained for a woman to do it. And Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, did. She broke the third term silence yesterday.

In so doing Miss Perkins was the first member of the so-called "official family" of President Roosevelt to admit knowledge of the President's intentions. She did it by speaking of his nomination for a third term as a fait accompli, and stressed how he "has examined his conscience" before making up his mind. She referred to it as "nominating a man to serve and save the people of the United States."

Secretary Perkins broke the silence at a breakfast in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs. Eight hundred women attended, including all the feminine luminaries of the Democratic party.

And Every One Is There.

Women delegates were there. So were the national committewomen with their bright badges of omnipotence. Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, author of much of the New Deal labor legislation, sat beside Mayor Kelly. The pretty young wife of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, sat, no hat on her shining red hair, beside Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Pennsylvania's embattled spokesman for equal rights. And so it went, an assemblage of women important in this convention.

Secretary Perkins, who has added a feminine touch to her attire with a little veil on the back of her traditional tricorne, had a prepared speech, but she didn't touch on it. Instead, she began by saying she was glad the convention had the atmosphere of a prayer meeting rather than a circus.

Calls Times Tragic.

"These are serious and tragic times," she said solemnly. "We are here to reaffirm our faith in life in this country, in life in this world, in life on this planet.

"We are about to do a serious thing. We are about to nominate a man who will serve for a third term."

At this, the women, who had been listening with curious eyes rather than ears, sat up in bright attention. They began to applaud.

"This is a serious thing," she continued. "I don't believe there is a delegate or a woman here today who has not examined her own conscience on the third term issue, just as the President has examined his.

"But we are nominating a man to serve and save the people of the United States."

PREPARE PROGRAM FOR GREATEST EVENT IN ELWOOD'S HISTORY

Elwood, Ind., July 16 [Special].—Plans for the formal notification of Elwood's native son, Wendell L. Willkie, of his nomination by the Republican convention for President of the United States were discussed here today at a conference of representatives of local, state, and national committees.

The most important question facing the committee members arranging for the biggest day in the history of this former capital of the tin plate world was the fixing of a time and place for the notification ceremonies. Mr. Willkie has not yet indicated what date he prefers but it will be after Aug. 1.

SPECIAL TRAINS WILL BE RUN FOR WILLKIE SPEECH

The 1940 Club, Inc., thru its president, Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne, announced yesterday that it will run special trains from Chicago to Elwood, Ind., for the notification ceremony at which Wendell Willkie will be advised of his nomination as Republican candidate for President. Ditchburne said that, altho no date has been set for the ceremony, he had been informed that it was likely to be Aug. 3.

and I believe the convention wants him for a third term.

WILLIAM GIBBS McADOO [former senator from California, not a delegate]—Why, the President, of course will run if this convention drafts him. And we move right now to suspend the rules and nominate him.

SENATOR KEY PITTMAN [NEV.]—The Roosevelt statement meant that he didn't care for the nomination. He is not seeking it, but if the convention seeks him he will serve.

Sees President in Race.

GOV. HERBERT LEHMAN [N. Y.]—Of course, I'm a 1,000 per center for Roosevelt and had no doubt that the enthusiasm of the convention would be unanimously for him. His message opens the road for that enthusiasm to be translated into action.

SENATOR A. B. CHANDLER [Ky.]—The statement does not remove Roosevelt from the candidacy. His statement indicates that he does not seek the office but that he is willing to have it.

MRS. ELIZABETH A. CONKEY, Illinois national committeewoman—I've known he didn't want to run again. I wouldn't say he wouldn't run and he didn't suggest any other candidate . . . so . . .

FRANCES PERKINS, secretary of labor—I wasn't surprised at the demonstration. I thought they were dying to do it. We know we're going to nominate him.

HORTENSE WELLS, national committeewoman from Florida—I thought it was a well worded statement that said not much. While he indicated he was not an active candidate, Barkis is willing. Yes, yes, Barkis is willing, my dear.

E. B. GERMANY, campaign manager for Vice President Garner—The situation hasn't been changed. We have felt this was the President's sentiment all the time. The whole Garner campaign has been predicated on the assumption Roosevelt would not be a candidate.

DELEGATES TELL PRO-ROOSEVELT, STRONG ARMING

Charges that the Roosevelt ovation which followed Senator Alben Barkley's speech last night at the convention was carefully staged were made last night by two western delegates.

William Ritchie, delegate at large from Omaha, Neb., said that the microphones in the Nebraska delegation were suddenly switched off and that a similar procedure was followed in other groups known to favor other candidates. Ritchie said also that two very large men with Roosevelt banners attached themselves to the Nebraska group after Barkley's speech and would not leave.

Thomas Leonard, who carried a proxy for a Montana delegate, said that the delegate card was taken from him by a policeman as he entered the main floor door accompanied by other Montanans bearing Wheeler banners. Leonard said the policeman tore up the card and told him: "This is a Roosevelt convention. You can't carry those signs." Leonard said he complained to other policemen, but got no action.

Convention Notes

The police bomb squad and Stadium employés carry on a continuous search of every nook of the Democratic meeting hall for explosives. They haven't found any yet, but Paul Carnahan, Gary, Ind., city court bailiff, gave the bomb squad a light workout. Some one lighted a firecracker which protruded from his pocket.

J. G. Grouzard, Stadium concessionaire, is not very happy with the convention. He planned to sell 35,000 "high class sandwiches" — ham, cheese or beef. So far only 1,000 have disappeared into the delegates and visitors.

The hot dog is king of the convention edibles. The Democrats have gnawed away 10,000 of them.

Texas delegates are hearing from the home folks since pictures of their loop parade appeared in Lone Star state papers. They carried the state flag upside down.

Chicago cab drivers favor repeal of the Hatch act, which bars federal job holders from serving as delegates. In 1932, when postmasters and other pay rollers abounded, fares and tips flowed like water, drivers report. This year five or six delegates charter a cab and chip in dimes to make up the fare.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] spent yesterday peering anxiously about the hall. He said he was looking for Mrs. Rowan's cousin, a delegate from California. The strayed cousin is Philip Dunne, movie script writer, and son of the late Finley Peter Dunne, originator of Mr. Dooley.

TWO ARE INJURED IN NIGHT SESSION; 8 OTHERS FAINT

John Doherty, 33 years old, of Charlestown, Mass., a spectator at the Democratic convention, suffered a possible brain concussion last night when a newsreel camera stand fell from a catwalk above him, striking him on the head. Doherty was taken to the Presbyterian hospital by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Lena Bird, delegate at large from Greenville, Fla., injured her leg when she caught it in a chair during the 25 minute pro-Roosevelt demonstration during Senator Alben Barkley's speech. There also were eight persons treated for fainting spells.

WILLKIE TO ASK FARM EXPERTS' IDEAS ON POLICY

Plans Series of Parleys on Agriculture.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 16 [Special].—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, made plans today for a series of conferences with agricultural leaders in this region and in Iowa for the purpose of forming the policy on this subject he will outline in his acceptance speech.

The date of Willkie's speech at Elwood, Ind., has been pushed ahead from its tentative setting around Aug. 1. The nominee now is of the opinion that he will not have his speech written by that time and that it may be delayed for a week or more. He is slowly gathering ideas and shaping the speech, but he wants to see students and leaders in various economic fields and also to give his best thought to the transcedent problems of national defense and foreign policy.

Confers with Halleck.

Congressman Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who has been put in charge of the acceptance speech arrangements, talked with Willkie by phone today and will fly here soon.

Willkie will begin his agricultural conferences on Thursday, when Gov. George A. Wilson of Iowa will talk with him here. Willkie will ask Wilson to arrange a larger conference with agricultural leaders of Iowa in Des Moines.

At noon on Friday the presidential nominee will meet with live stock, wool, sugar beet, and other agricultural leaders, at a luncheon at the Denver stockyards.

Smith, who accompanied former President Herbert Hoover to Europe two years ago, said that Hoover was 100 per cent for Willkie, and would do all in his power to aid the Republican campaign.

Ears on Convention.

When asked for comment on Speaker William B. Bankhead's keynote address last night Willkie issued a statement which said in part:

"I found myself in complete accord with Speaker Bankhead in his condemnation of the speculative orgy of the 1920s. I agreed with him in his strictures about the unloading on the public during the same period of common stocks beyond their values.

"I always have thought that such speculation was to be condemned, whether it was in the securities of utility companies or in vending machine companies, or took the form of gambling in foreign exchange such as German marks.

[Willkie apparently referred to Mr. Roosevelt's directorship in 1928 in the consolidated Automatic Merchandising corporation, known as Camco, a holding company, which acquired and marketed stock in slot machine companies and later went into bankruptcy. Mr. Roosevelt was president between 1922 and 1924 of a company called United European Investments, Ltd., which speculated in German marks and went out of business when the mark collapsed.]

"I am very proud that I had absolutely nothing to do with that phase of American economic life."

BARKLEY HURLS SARCASTIC BLAST AT REPUBLICANS

Assails Party's Record, Platform, Nominee.

Following is the text of the address delivered last night by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky as permanent chairma nof the Democratic convention:

"Fellow Democrats: To the national committee which recommended and to this convention which has chosen me as permanent chairman, I express my profound appreciation.

"I shall endeavor to preside over your deliberations with promptness and fairness to the end that you may consummate your task in dignity and good order.

"We assemble here in circumstances so uncommon, in the midst of world disorders so unprecedented, and surrounded by domestic obligations so compulsive as to charge us with the duty of preparing our nation to meet consequences which will project themselves indefinitely into the unpredictable future.

"The Democratic party has faced one crisis after another during its long and glorious history.

Tested in Crucible of Faith.

"It has been tested in the crucible of faith and achievement. It has never faltered in its devotion to the higher interests of the people of America. It will not falter now.

"But we do not come together in any vainglorious spirit prompted by the mere desire for a partisan or personal victory. Unless by our record in the past and our concept of duty for the future we are equipped for the tasks of statesmanship, we have no claim on the American people for further preferment.

"The record we have made is written in the history of the republic. While we lay no claim to perfection and fulminate no pretensions that this record contains no errors, nevertheless we contemplate with pride the great tasks we have undertaken and accomplished in behalf of democracy and those who believe in it and strive to advance it.

"Let us be equally unequivocal in the program we shall here announce, so that the American people and the world will know what we think and what we propose to do.

"The chief, if not the only, reason for the existence of political parties is to afford a vehicle for the molding and expression of public opinion and for the fixation of responsibility in the conduct of the public business.

LASHES G. O. P. PLATFORM

Written in Mud by Feet of Weasel, Barkley Asserts

"There have been occasions when political organizations were afraid to speak plainly or intelligently on problems of transcendent importance to this nation; when language was employed not to convey but to conceal thought; when each pronouncement made a frontal attack on all others, and the whole appeared to have been written in mud by the migratory feet of a weasel.

"Such is the platform adopted by the Republican party at Philadelphia three weeks ago. It is the perfect example of the uncertainties and ambiguities of men who do not know where they are going or what they will do when they arrive. The day on which it was written was described by Walter Lippmann as 'black Tuesday in Philadelphia.'

"Having assembled this political ragout and found it without form and void, its fabricators concluded that what it lacked and needed was color. They wanted not only color, but they wanted a variety of colors. But while they wanted color, they did not desire fast color.

"They desired color whose changing shades and shadows would be determined by the degree of regulation which a fearless government saw fit to impose upon a vast empire of power hitherto uncontroled in its exercise of dominion over the social, industrial, and economic life of millions of Americans. They seemed unwilling or afraid to nominate any man who had been a Republican for more than two years. Hence, they chose a political chameleon.

"It is not my province or my purpose on this occasion to attempt any detailed review of the history of the world or our own country during the last eight years. Much of that history has been spread before our eyes with such kaleidoscopic rapidity as to render the succession of events a little vague to all but the meticulous historian. It is no exaggeration to assert that no similar period in our history has been so crowded with engrossing spectacularity or fraught with such consequences to our institutions or our methods of life.

DEPRESSION CHAOS TOLD

Inherited from Smug Regime, Convention Informed

"Our efforts here at home have not been inspired by the punitive desire to set group against group or to array section against section. We inherited chaos eight years ago. We inherited fear, which was almost universal. We inherited lack of confidence, not only in private enterprise but in our public institutions. The American people had been led to the brink of a precipice by the fallacies of a smug and blind régime, which found itself impotent to draw back or to avert the disaster which it had contrived.

"This impotence had wrought its devastation not only in the field of business and industry but had set a blight on all financial activities. Banks and confidence in them collapsed. Wheels of industry were motionless. The market places for both money and commodities were bereft of constructive or profitable activities. Agriculture drooped and died from a dry rot inflicted by legislative and administrative incompetence, while the feet of 15 million American laborers wandered in vagrant anxiety over the question of tomorrow's food and shelter.

"Homes and firesides, millions of them, which must be the sanctuary of the true spirit of America, were on the verge of permanent loss thru the cry of the auctioneer.

Charges Financial Abuses.

"Abuses of the financial, economic, and social realms of our existence had grown so chronic that the nation despaired of any constructive or effective remedy against them. The status quo became the law of our being, and the government imitated that backward flying bird which never knows where it is going but can only see where it has been.

EXCORIATES HOOVER

Former President Is Accused of Shackling People

"American commerce with the world, which in every great industrial nation has been and must be a substantial portion of the yardstick of its prosperity, had fled from the seas and the marts of trade.

"Encouraged by our own example of folly, insurmountable barriers had been erected by nation against nation thru the effort of provincial minds to set metes and bounds to the genius and initiative of man. In our own hemisphere, peopled by the children of those who had fought for the creation of a new ideal of democratic thought and conduct, suspicion and fear, political and economic, retarded the efforts to consummate a solidarity essential to the preservation and protection of the common interests of all the Americas.

"The effort of the last seven years on the part of our government has been devoted to the task of remolding the faith of our people in their own brand of democracy.

"We have heard much from complacent throats in recent years about free enterprise. The spokesmen of the Philadelphia assemblage invoked the spirits of the departed in behalf of free enterprise, and ex-President Hoover began his diatribe by proclaiming it the duty of his party to save America for free men.

"He, of all men, ought to cry for the return of freedom, because he and his régime fastened more shackles on the physical, economic, and spiritual aspirations of the American people than any other group who ever mismanaged the affairs of this republic.

"What freedom is it that we have destroyed, and, by the same token, what freedom is it that the platform and nominees of the Philadelphia convention will restore?

"Is it the freedom to juggle and manipulate and determine the value of the securities of American corporations in which millions of our people have invested their savings?

"Do they propose to destroy the freedom we have guaranteed to labor in the United States to sit across a table from its employer on terms of equality and bargain collectively over wages, hours, and working conditions?

"Do they propose to restore the uncontroled freedom of some employers to exploit employés by long hours and low wages?

"Do they propose to remove from agriculture the freedom to coöperate within itself and with the government of the United States in securing a larger portion of the national income for the service they render to society?

"Do they propose to return the American farmer to the income of 1932 instead of twice that income which he has received under the New Deal?

"Mr. Hoover, who constitutes the remaining living symbol of Republican wisdom, in his speech at the convention, said the Republican party was the first to bring relief to the American farmer. What he no doubt meant to say was that Republican leadership was the first to bring the need for relief to the American farmer.

"What freedom have we destroyed that they propose to restore?

Utility Act Cited.

"Will they restore the freedom of vast holding companies, drawing their substance from local utilities and their consumers to continue their depredations upon the public, to prevent which the utility holding company act was passed over the vehement protest of the present Republican candidate for President?

"In truth, the reason for the shifting of his political robes was the enactment of this legislation, plus the completion and development of a great natural resource in the Tennessee valley, begun during the first world war in the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

"Will they destroy or undermine the laws we have enacted for the aged and unemployed?

"Will they restore the freedom as well as the compulsion of old age to descend to the grave in penury and want?

"Will they restore the freedom as well as the compulsion of unemployed men to walk the streets in search of work or take their places in bread lines where they stood in 1932?

PROMISES SOCIAL LAWS

Age Benefit and Pension Act Changes Suggested

"We have made but a beginning in this great field of social security. It is my opinion that we must strengthen and simplify the law, not only to provide greater assistance, but also to provide greater uniformity in the benefits accruing to those entitled to them under the social security law.

"There ought to be greater uniformity thruout the nation in the provisions for old age pensions; and I am convinced that this uniformity can be secured only when the federal government assumes greater responsibility for the administration of the benefits which the law accords.

"What is this freedom which we have driven out and which they will entice back to this land of the free?

"Is it the freedom now possessed by American youth to share the physical, moral, and intellectual training which the New Deal is helping them to secure under conditions compatible with both pride and responsibility?

CCC Program Cited.

"Do the Philadelphia guarantors of a return of freedom propose to abolish the Civilian Conservation corps or the National Youth administration?

"The task which lay at our feet seven years ago was a task of restoration. It has not been completed. But the ascent from the depths of the valley has been constant and is still in progress.

"Mr. Hoover, in his Philadelphia exegesis, announced that the New Deal had stabilized unemployment. Having himself multiplied it beyond all previous calculations, even he ought to welcome some degree of stabilization.

"During this pretended eclipse of free enterprise in America the national income has increased from 38 billions to 71 billions of dollars per annum. The last Republican administration had reduced it from 80 billions to 38 billions and had inaugurated that succession of annual deficits which they now proclaim as the peculiar patent of the Roosevelt administration.

Fundamental Difference.

"The fundamental difference between the two situations is that Roosevelt deficits have been reflected in vast improvements and additions to the values of property and life in every community in the United States, while there cannot be found in any part of the nation any evidence of value or increased enjoyment of life that previous deficit spending had accomplished.

"In this same period during which they believe freedom has fled from our shores and the credit of the government has been jeopardized, the price of government bonds on the markets of the nation and the world rose from 80 cents on the dollar to nearly $1.20, notwithstanding a substantial decrease in the rate of interest which these obligations bear.

"During this same period the total indebtedness of the American people has decreased by more than 10 billion dollars, which does not indicate that they are headed towards predicted bankruptcy.

"These improvements, these aids to industry and to labor, and the general restoration of the morale of our people have cost money. We do not deny that. They have made it necessary for us to borrow money and levy taxes which under normal conditions would have been unnecessary and undesirable.

"But the American people are not and will not be frightened into panic when they realize that during the past seven years, while the debt of the national government has increased by 22 billion dollars, their total other public and private debts have decreased by more than 30 billion dollars, and that during this same seven year period their aggregate income has increased four times as much as has the indebtedness of the federal government.

"All this has been done in order to restore the faith of the American people in their government and to emphasize the fact that our government is not an austere, unapproachable, inanimate thing off yonder in Washington, taking no account of or interest in the affairs of those who support it.

Senator Listens

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, whose name is to be placed in nomination for presidency.

"All this has been done to demonstrate that the processes of democracy can be made to respond to the needs of men and women. It has been done in order to prove that under our constitution, and without changing or undermining our form of government, it can be made an instrument of service under the stress of a great crisis.

CITES PERIL TO IDEALS

Democracy Attacked on Wide Front, Asserts Senator

"It cannot be denied that democracy was in sore need of this proof of its efficacy and its power.

"Never before in our history has democracy been under attack on a wider front than during the last decade.

"For a century and more prior to the world war, the races of men were moving toward the goal of freedom and self-government. Beginning with our own revolution and a little later with the French revolution, the theory of democratic institutions found acceptance in all parts of the world.

"During this century most of South America established its freedom from Spain and other foreign dominations under republican forms of government, patterned largely after our own. France drove the last Bonaparte from the throne and established the French republic. China proclaimed a republic thruout her vast territory, and among the far-flung elements of the British empire, a commonwealth of nations emerged, in which the people strengthened their local institutions and extended their privileges of independent action.

"In the smaller nations of Europe, even those which clung to the traditions of monarchy, the people increased their power over and participation in their governments.

"In Russia the czar and all that he represented were unhorsed in what was supposed to be a revolution of the people. In Germany, the kaiser abdicated and fled his country following the establishment of a republic. In England the house of lords was shorn of some of its ancient prerogatives. In Italy, the king became a puppet, and in South Africa the principles of self-government became an established fact following the Boer war.

"Everywhere it seemed that the doctrine proclaimed by Thomas Jefferson that all governments derived their just power from the consent of the governed was on the march and would at length cover the earth like the waters cover the sea.

"But in the last decade or two this process seems to have gone in reverse. Whether as the result of some evil spirit loosed by the agonies of the world war, or in consequence of the impotence of existing régimes to understand or respond to the needs of the people, we need not here undertake to determine.

NATION'S CHOICE GIVEN

Fight or Lose Our Heritage, Says Orator

"But we do know that autocracy rears its ugly face in larger portions of the world today than at any time since the formation of the American republic, and we do know that we are confronted with the alternative of defending and preserving our democratic institutions as we have built them and enjoyed them or seeing them confounded by the convergence of antagonistic ideologies in a world dedicated not to the proposition that all men are created equal but that all men are created to feed the maw of grasping, greedy totalitarian states.

"In the midst of these alternatives there is but one choice that the American people can make with honor to themselves and fidelity to the traditions and principles for which the nation was created and to which it is dedicated.

"That choice is to fight against those who would assault our territory, our independence, our ideals, or our vital interests, or anything which we are committed or pledged to defend and preserve, whether that assault is launched from a foreign source or is instigated by disloyal or subversive influence within our own borders.

"We are charged with the responsibility of determining for ourselves whether this democracy which we have instituted and developed is, first, worth preserving; and, second, whether we have the courage, the fortitude, and the intelligence to exert the effort and make the sacrifice essential to its preservation.

"We must determine whether the restoration of confidence in the American system for which we have labored these last eight years, after all, was worth the effort, and whether we are ready to announce to all the world that not only the United States but the entire western hemisphere has been dedicated as a sanctuary for free men, and that any effort from any outside source to encroach upon it territorially, politically, or by any other form of insidious penetration will be met by the total impact of all our resources of men, money, and material, until the encroachment and those who undertake it shall have been broken and driven back.

REJECTS WAR CHARGE

No Plan to Send Troops Abroad, Chairman Pledges

"This does not mean that we desire war. It does not mean that we do not cherish peace and goodwill among all nations and all races. It does not mean that we propose to become involved in the military conflicts among foreign nations.

"It does not mean that we propose or intend to send armed forces of this nation to the battlefields of Europe or Asia for the purpose of determining military superiority among the nations involved.

"But it does mean that we propose to see that at least one continent on this earth shall be kept free for the exercise of the individual and collective rights and privileges of free men.

"It means that we propose to hold fast to the doctrine that the state is created for the service of the people and not that the people are created for the exploitation of the state. For this task we must be prepared, morally, spiritually, physically, mechanically, economically.

Jeers at G. O. P. Plank.

"In the inept conglomeration, called the Republican platform, adopted at Philadelphia, we find the following brilliant piece of fiction:

'The Republican party stands for Americanism, preparedness, and peace. We accordingly fasten upon the New Deal full responsibility for our unpreparedness and for the consequent danger of involvement in war.'

"No responsible political party ever promulgated a more deceitful alibi in all the history of political parties in the United States.

"Let us take a look at the record. I do not relish the necessity to indulge in partisan dispute over the question of preparedness. It ought not to be a partisan question. But, in view of the fact that the Republican platform seeks to make it a partisan question, I am not afraid to discuss it on that basis.

"Following the world war, the nations sincerely sought peace and disarmament.

"The United States, in the early days of the Harding administration, called the Washington disarmament conference. This conference was hailed as a great step toward lifting the burden of armaments from the people of the nations involved.

"War vessels were sunk. Blue prints were torn to pieces; and ships under construction were ordered scrapped.

RECALLS PEACE PLANS

G. O. P. Charged with Letting Navy Grow Inferior

"But following this conference it turned out that under the administrations of Republican Presidents our naval building program did not approximate the ratio allowed by the agreement entered into. Our actual ratio began to fall below that which the treaty allowed us to maintain. While other nations built, we took a nose dive in the ratio of our naval establishment.

"Then came the so-called 'nine power pact' entered into by nine nations during the control of our government by the Republican party, under which the construction and maintenance of an adequate army and navy were still further retarded.

"Then came the so-called 'Briand-Kellogg pact,' by which nearly all of the nations of the world agreed to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

"This hope for world peace was made the excuse for further reductions in appropriations and in construction for our national defense.

"I do not decry those efforts for world peace. The American people, in common with most of the peoples of the world, sincerely hoped and prayed that war would not again drench the earth in human blood.

"But it cannot be claimed by those who were then in power in this nation that anything substantial was done to build up or even maintain the minimum requirements of our national defense equipment.

"In his address at the Philadelphia convention former President Hoover made the statement that in the six years preceding the Roosevelt administration, the nation had expended 680 million dollars per year on preparedness, but that in 1934 Roosevelt had drastically reduced expenditures for our defense to 550 million dollars, reducing the appropriation for the air corps alone by 20 million dollars; that President Roosevelt had reduced by 50 per cent the commissions issued the graduates of the Naval academy; that the National Guard had been reduced in its appropriations and equipment; that the Roosevelt administration had reduced the regular army to the point of having only 75,000 fully equipped men in the United States army.

"If Mr. Hoover had made these misstatements of facts in the heat of debate, we might excuse him, but in these delicate and unsteady hours of our nation's history the people have a right to the truth from one who has been honored with the highest office within their power to bestow.

Army Program Told.

"Mr. Hoover did not make these misstatements in the heat of debate. He made them deliberately in the quiet, sequestered drawing room where he composed his prepared address. But when he made these statements he knew that it was he who, in his budget to congress for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, recommended the reductions to which he refers and they were made before he retired from the presidency and before Franklin D. Roosevelt assumed that office on March 4, 1933.

"Instead of reducing the equipment for the National Guard and the regular army, which had been brought about under Mr. Hoover, President Roosevelt recommended and secured increased appropriations, not only to restore the decreases Mr. Hoover had brought about, but to increase these branches of the armed services beyond the figures attained at any time during the previous administration.

"Instead of having only 75,000, we have 241,000 equipped soldiers in the United States army, and the present congress, on the recommendation and under the leadership of the President, has authorized an increase to 375,000 men and will authorize further increases as fully and as rapidly as may be required.

Cheering

Charlotte Corcoran Lee of St. Louis, Mo., a delegate, in informal pose.

"In view of the abortive effort of the Republican convention to fasten on the New Deal the responsibility for any lack of adequate preparedness that may now exist and to elude any portion of that responsibility, let us make some comparisons.

"During the seven years since 1933 our government has expended 1 billion 300 million dollars more on the army than was expended during the previous seven years.

"In these same seven years the United States has expended 1 billion 500 million dollars more on the navy than was expended during the previous seven years.

"These expenditures were recommended and appropriated under President Roosevelt, and they were made necessary largely because Republican administrations had sorely neglected both arms of our national defense.

TRACES NAVY SPENDING

Barkley Says Democrats Voted Big Appropriations

"During the last year of Woodrow Wilson's administration, when Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy, appropriations for the navy amounted to 960 million dollars. In the first year of the Harding administration they were reduced to 485 million dollars. During the 12 years of Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover they continued to decline until the fiscal year of 1934, when they reached the insignificant sum of 266 million dollars, which was the last naval appropriation enacted as Mr. Hoover was about to retire from office.

"During those 12 years not a single battleship was laid down for construction, and only 20 other types of combatant vessels; such as cruisers, submarines, and gunboats, were constructed.

"During the past four years we have completed 115 combatant naval vessels. We have under construction now 138 additional vessels, consisting of 10 battleships, five aircraft carriers, four heavy cruisers, 17 light cruisers, 61 destroyers, and 41 submarines.

"In addition to these vessels now under construction, we have provided for the construction of enough naval warcraft to give us the largest navy in the world, sufficiently strong to protect our interests in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, against any aggressor from any source in any part of this world.

"What else does the record reveal?

Opposition Votes Described.

"When the naval appropriations bill for the fiscal year 1939 was passed in the senate a majority of Republican senators, including the Republican candidate for Vice President, Senator McNary, voted against it.

"When, in the spring of 1939, there came before the senate the bill increasing the number of army airplanes from 5,500 to 6,000, a majority of Republican senators, including their present candidate for Vice President, voted against it.

"When in the senate the naval appropriations bill for the fiscal year 1940 was adopted, nearly half the Republican members voted against it.

"When, in May, 1939, the naval appropriations bill carrying a billion dollars for the navy was before the house of representatives, of the 58 votes cast against it, 54 were Republicans.

"When the house of representatives was considering the army appropriation bill for 1940, four amendments were offered by Republicans to reduce the sums for signal service, ordnance, and airplanes. Of the 150 members voting for these reductions, 145 were Republican. Only eight Republicans voted against the reductions.

"In the United States senate one of the Republican candidates for President, Mr. Taft, urged an amendment reducing appropriations for the army and navy by 25 per cent, and so far as I have been able to learn, the man who nosed him out for the Republican nomination, Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, uttered no warning or advice to his newly made Republican brethren on the subject of national defense.

TURNS WIT ON WILLKIE

Speaker Asks Candidate's Stand on Defense

"He was probably too busy talking about balancing the budget and trying to prevent the efforts of the Securities and Exchange commission to unscramble his billion dollar utility holding company omelet, and endeavoring to thwart the objectives of the great Tennessee Valley project which was begun 22 years ago as part of our national defense program.

"And as late as last Thursday in the house of representatives, when, at the urgent request and recommendation of William R. Knudsen and Edward Stettinius, members of the advisory committee on national defense, and also at the urgent solicitation of Mr. Dunn, a member of the engineering firm which Mr. Willkie consulted in his fight against the Tennessee Valley authority, an effort was made to provide for the construction of an additional dam for the purpose of inaugurating the speedy manufacture of necessary aluminum for the construction of airplanes, the effort was blocked by Republican members of the house of representatives.

Appeals to G. O. P. Voters.

"In spite of these unfortunate records made by those whom the people have trusted, I am convinced that the vast majority of Republican voters of the nation are in full agreement with the President and those who are working with him on his defense program and on his foreign policy.

"But what of our involvement in war?

"The Republican platform mechanics have sought to conceal their own past attitude and record by proclaiming themselves as Simon Pure, 100 per cent, blown-in-the-bottle preservers of peace for the American people.

"No man who ever occupied the presidency of the United States ever strove more valiantly to avert the present war in Europe before its outbreak than did Mr. Roosevelt. No man ever condemned in more unmeasured terms the wicked determination to resort to the brutal force of arms in conquering peaceful and friendly nations, or in settling any legitimate controversies among the nations of Europe.

"No political party or administration in the history of this or any nation ever made greater sacrifices to avoid involvement in war than have been made by the Democratic party and its present administration.

"For more than a century we, as a nation, have insisted on the freedom of the seas. We have insisted that our flag and every flag had the right to sail the seas in time of war, subject to certain rights of search and seizure. We have insisted on the right of Americans to trade and travel under an international law that had been recognized for centuries. It was our insistence on the observance of these rights that finally drew us into the world war in 1917.

"But in order to avoid the possibility or likelihood of our involvement in this war thru incidents incapable of being foreseen, we have, in the neutrality law recommended by the President and enacted by a Democratic congress over the protest of the Republicans, prohibited American ships to sail in belligerent or dangerous waters, or American citizens to travel there; and we have prohibited even the granting of credit to belligerent nations and required them to pay cash for what they buy and to transport it in their own or other foreign vessels.

"If the Republicans in congress had been successful in defeating this legislation, we might already be involved in the war which they pretend so much to fear.

Rejects Narrow Partisanship.

"But, notwithstanding the puny efforts of our antagonists to pitch this campaign on the low level of narrow partisanship, in the task that lies ahead of us there is no room for partisan rancor or personal aggrandizement.

"It serves no purpose now to blame one man or group for not knowing in advance what the world was coming to. But we, with all the world, have learned our bitter lesson. The events of recent years have wrought changes in our thought and attitude which may be irrevocable. New obligations fasten themselves upon us as a nation and as a member of the sisterhood of nations.

"In 1823, James Monroe proclaimed the doctrine which bears his name. Under that doctrine any effort on the part of any foreign nation to gain a foothold in America was to be regarded as an unfriendly act and inimical to our safety.

"That doctrine is even more vital today than when it was uttered 117 years ago. We have set the Americas apart as a proving ground for a new type of liberty and self-government in the world. We have thus far defended, preserved, and extended it.

INVOKES UNITED NATION

Sacrifices Necessary to Repel Assaults, Barkley Says

"But we cannot assume that wishing alone will continue to make it so. We cannot assume that those who have no respect for democratic institutions elsewhere will respect them in America. They respect only those whom they fear or whom they know to be able to repel their assaults.

"In these days of peril and uncertainty, we invoke the spirit of a united America.

"We shall expect to make sacrifices. We shall expect to forego some luxuries and conveniences. Already the impact of world conditions has colored our thoughts and remolded some of our conceptions and methods of life. But it has not lessened our resolution. It has not made us afraid. It has not cowed the spirit which discovered, populated, developed, and civilized this America of ours. It has but served to strengthen our determination and fortify our resistance.

"In the midst of these threats we call on our people for unity. The relationship between a people and their government is not a one-way thorofare. The obligations are reciprocal. They call for that concert of soul and purpose which knows no distinction of race, origin, color, or religion.

Certain of United Stand.

"We know that Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, white and colored, rich and poor, native-born and foreign-born will rise in all their might and holy zeal to guard these portals against the fate which has wrecked other peoples and other civilizations.

"To this high commitment we pledge ourselves and all that we shall hereafter undertake.

"In its consummation we invoke the guidance of God, who, we believe, still sits upon His throne, still rules in earth and heaven, and still holds in the hollow of His hand the destiny of nations and of men."

[Following the delivery of his prepared speech Senator Barkley read the statement authorized by President Roosevelt, which stated that the President is not a candidate for another term in the White House. For the statement see page 1.]

NEW DEAL HAULS ITS CABBAGES TO LAND OF CABBAGE

Arrival of Relief Surplus Arouses Wisconsin.

BY THORNTON SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., July 16.—Along the lake shore in Racine and Kenosha counties are acre after acre of lush cabbage fields that place these counties among the largest cabbage producers in the United States. But in the midst of this vast bounty stands a sight that provoked cabbage growers to a speechless indignation. There, being unloaded on a railroad siding, is a car of Virginia cabbage imported by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation for families on relief.

The cabbage producers approve of persons on relief, as well as every one else, eating lots of cabbage, but when they recovered their breath they protested against the New Deal hauling cabbage 700 miles into the heart of what they regard as the best cabbage growing territory in the country.

Ranks Second in Output.

Wisconsin is second only to New York in total cabbage production. The soil in this region is said to be ideal for its growth. Farmers have been harvesting the early cabbage for the last week and the harvesting will continue for the next two months.

The importation of Virginia cabbage is irritating to the farmers, but they are willing to dismiss it as just one more strange manifestation of the New Deal if the government will confine itself to giving cabbage to the needy and not interfere with the ordinary commercial practices of cabbage marketing, Wesley E. Hansche, one of the biggest cabbage raisers, said today.

"What provokes us most," said Hansche, "is to learn that a government agency is again meddling with the natural supply and demand that establishes a market. Two years ago we experienced an ordeal thru which no farmer cares to go again—a huge crop, with the FSCC stepping in and buying cabbage."

Price Increase Thwarted.

In that case, Hansche explained, the FSCC set a price of $4 a ton for cabbage. The price stood pegged at that figure, he said, despite the fact that market conditions later developed which would have warranted an increase of 50 per cent in the price.

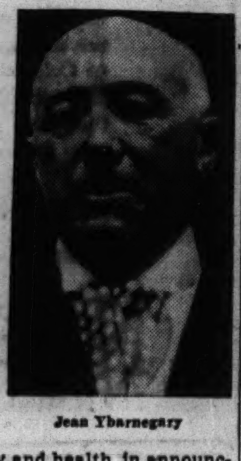
In addition, Hansche said, the government compelled the farmers to form a coöperative to sell cabbage to the government agency. He said the FSCC also set up only two or three loading stations, forcing some farmers to haul as far as 15 or 20 miles, and limited the purchase to five or six tons a day per farmer, instead of the usual 18 tons.

Present market conditions, Hansche continued, are similar to those of two years ago, and producers fear the government is going to step in again and repeat its experiment.

He said current Chicago cabbage quotations are around $10 a ton, which is a satisfactory price, but that the demand has not yet reached the Wisconsin market.

Fear of government interference, he said, is keeping sauerkraut packers, who are big volume cabbage buyers, from coming into the market at the natural time. "They are willing to pay $5 or $6 a ton now for good cabbage," he said, "but they feel the FSCC may come in and peg a price around $4, which would make them look like chumps."

FRANCE WILL ADOPT NAZI TRAINING PLAN FOR YOUTH OF NATION



Jean Ybarnegary

VICHY, France, July 16 (AP).—Apparent success of the Nazi system of training a nation's youth has led authoritarian France to embrace similar methods.

"If the Germans defeated us on the battlefield it was due to their practical, rational education of youth," explained Jean Ybarnegary, minister of family and health, in announcing the state's new youth training program tonight.

The youth program, he said, is designed to build up French health and morals "from infancy on."

"Water and air" for the building of strong bodies will be the government's physical culture slogan.

The government appears to have abandoned its plan to settle down in Versailles, and may go to Paris on Friday or Saturday.

Proceeding with demobilization of the army, the ministry of defense announced men from the ages of 35 to 41 will be released within a week.

'AGONY COLUMNS' IN FRENCH PRESS CHEER REFUGEES

Personals Help Unite Wandering Families.

BY BERNHARD RAGNER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BORDEAUX, France, July 15 [Delayed].—According to a semiofficial estimate made today, more than 500,000 Frenchmen still are seeking members of their families from whom they were separated when they fled the German invasion.

They are seriously handicapped in their search because, altho the Franco-German armistice became effective three weeks ago, normal postal relations have not been established between the occupied and unoccupied zones. Altho the persons sought probably are safe and sound, worried and nervous wives looking for their husbands refuse to believe "no news is good news."

Newspapers Unite Families.

So far, newspaper advertising has been the most effective method for bringing separated families together. Great provincial organs devote more than a page daily to the refugees' dramatic and poignant appeals.

Potential tragedies lurk between the lines, giving these messages the flavor of the "agony column" of the London Times. Here are some typical "lost" advertisments:

"Clause Gilbert, 12 years old, of Vesinet, is informed that his parents are with Monsieur Clavaud at St. Astier, Dordogne department."

Yvonne Seeks Her Jean.

"Jean Maillard is sought by Yvonne. Hotel Bernais Pau."

"Jean Pierre and Michel Sciana are requested to write their parents, both in good health, at their Paris address."

"Madame Jazon seeks her son Guy, 16 years old, who left Boulogne-sur-Seine June 12 with convoy. Write 16 Rue Marcellin Berthelot at Chatellerault."

AIR FIGHTS RAGE OVER BRITAIN'S EASTERN COAST

Drop 4½ Tons of Bombs on Nazi Oil Depot.

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—The unleashed fury of British air blows at a foe gathering strength for invasion was described tonight in an air ministry account of a single British raid in which 4½ tons of explosive bombs were showered on an oil tank center at Hanover, Germany, within half an hour.

That was only one phase of Britain's challenge to German air power yesterday, last night and today, while British defense planes beat off renewed Nazi thrusts across the channel battlefront.

The British reported three German bombers shot down after attacks in which "some houses were wrecked, but the only casualties were a few persons injured" along the northeast coast of Scotland.

Later in the night, heavy antiaircraft fire denoted the presence of enemy planes over northeast England. Aerial machine-gunning was heard in one town.

The Nazis dropped bombs on three Scottish towns Monday night, but only minor casualties were reported.

The government extended the coastal defense area tonight by another 20 miles, from Rye in Sussex to Portland. All holidaymakers and persons without specific business reasons are barred.

Large Shipping Losses.

At the same time the admiralty disclosed that shipping losses for the week ended July 7 were 22 British, allied, and neutral merchant ships totaling 114,137 tons.

It was acknowledged by an authoritative source that the losses were above the average for the 44 preceding weeks of the war and Britons were told that "more violent" attacks could be expected.

Reporting on the air raids on German territory, the air force communique said Normandy [in France], Holland, northwest Germany, and the Ruhr were visited and later enemy occupied airdromes in northern France were bombed.

British bombers on Monday attacked enemy airdromes at Lisieux and Evreux in Normandy, the communique said. "During the night they again attacked the airdromes of Norderney and De Kooy in Holland, where hangars, gasoline dumps and aircraft on the ground were set on fire."

The Willemsoord harbor on the coast of Holland was attacked and "a large fire was caused among the warehouses," it was said.

Nazis Report Shipping Hit.

BERLIN, July 16 (AP).—Sinking of 41,600 tons more of British shipping and renewed air raids on England aimed at airports, harbors and factories were reported today by the high command.

Three merchant ships totaling 18,000 tons were sent to the bottom of the English channel in repeated raids on British commerce yesterday, its communique reported, while another submarine master's report added 23,600 tons to the bag of U-boat raiders.

German flyers, continuing their daily forays on the British Isles, were said to have observed fires and explosions after dropping bomb on airports at Pembroke, St. Athan, Plymouth and Bicester, the harbors of Cardiff and Brighton and an airplane factory at Yeovil. St. Athan and Cardiff are in Wales.

Besides the merchant ships sunk, the communique said five others were damaged yesterday by bomb hits and one, a 9,000 ton tanker in a "strongly protected convoy," was hit by a submarine.

DUTCH CONDEMN ROTTERDAM AIR RAID AS FIENDISH

Hit Nazis for 'Greatest Mass Destruction.'

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special].—The Royal Netherlands legation here today issued a statement condemning the German air raid on Rotterdam during the invasion of the Low Countries as "the greatest mass destruction the world has so far known."

The statement was accompanied by a map purporting to show that districts which contained stores valuable to the invader were scrupulously avoided. By contrast, the shopping, business, financial, and main residential sections were shown reduced to "a pile of rubble."

"The legation has received from the Netherlands government in London a full report of the German crime against the helpless, open and defenseless city of Rotterdam," the statement said.

Army Already Capitulated.

"When Rotterdam was bombed the Dutch army capitulation already had been handed to the German high command. The Germans say the planes were in the air and could not be called back. It is customary for all military planes to be equipped with radio and directed by radio.

"The crime against Rotterdam was a deliberate, fiendish assault on unarmed, undefended civilians.

Toll Put at 30,000 Dead.

"The result was the greatest mass destruction the world has so far ever known. In the seven and one-half minutes the planes were over the city 30,000 people died, 4,000 unoffending men, women and children per minute. Seventy thousand others were maimed and injured. Not even the volcanoes of Pelee and Krakatoa took such a horrible toll of life in so short a space of time.

[In two of the world's most violent volcanic eruptions Mount Pelee, Martinique, erupted in 1902, killing 30,000 persons, and Mount Krakatoa, Dutch East Indies, erupted in 1883, killing 36,000.]

Claim City Had No Defenses.

"Two groups of 27 planes each were responsible for this display of barbarism. They dropped 1,000 pound bombs.

"With diabolical cleverness the bombardiers carved a pattern of destruction thruout the helpless city.

"And the final ghoulish touch to this man-made inferno of death was that the Germans made aerial motion pictures of their handiwork.

BRITISH VESSEL BRINGS GOLD AND CHILD REFUGEES

New York, July 16 (AP).—The armed British liner Eastern Prince arrived today from Liverpool and Halifax with $52,000,000 in gold and 25 passengers—including 17 English children, refugees from war.

Among the passengers was Mrs. P. W. Stout of Cairo, Egypt, widow of Col. P. W. Stout of the British army. She was born in Cincinnati, the daughter of George Nelson Stone, but has lived abroad for 40 years.

Of the children, only one was unaccompanied. He is Anthony Essay, 6, whose parents remained in London He will stay with his uncle, Joseph Essay of Chicago.

SPAIN CUTS OFF ITS DIPLOMATIC TIES WITH CHILE

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, July 16.—The Spanish government, in a sudden move tonight broke off diplomatic relations with Chile.

German Vergara, the Chilean chargé d'affaires, has been given his passport and is expected to leave with his staff tomorrow. The Spanish chargé at Santiago was ordered to demand his passport and return to Madrid.

A foreign office statement said the Chilean government has continued to give "protection and aid to Red elements freed from Spain" and has carried on a systematic campaign against the Spanish state and Spanish institutions. It was alleged that "grave insults to Spain and its leader [Gen. Francisco Franco]" were made in a radio broadcast under the auspices of the government of Chile.

Blame Popular Front.

The trouble began with the advent of the Popular Front government in Chile [Dec. 24, 1938, the government of President Pedro Aguirre Cerda], it was stated.

The situation became intolerable, the foreign office said, on June 17, when speakers in Santiago attacked Spain and Gen. Franco in a public meeting attended by the Chilean president and several of his ministers. The decision to break off relations, it was stated, was reached when Chile replied to a protest saying "the government as a government did not identify itself with the language of the speeches."

It was recalled here that relations had been difficult as a result of the rôle of the Chilean embassy here during and after the civil war. The embassy gave asylum to 17 Loyalists at the end of the war. The Chileans also were charged with helping Spanish communist elements to escape from Spain.

Will Delegate Affairs.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 16 (AP).—Informed sources indicated tonight Chile would entrust its affairs in Madrid to the diplomatic representatives of Argentina or Brazil.

Coincident with Madrid's charges that Chile was tolerating an "anti-Nationalist campaign," the investigation department announced that some of the men detained in yesterday's raids on rightist groups were linked with pro-Nazi activities.

There were demonstrations in Santiago on Sunday after President Aguirre Cerda had pardoned the policemen who helped suppress the Nacista [Nazi] putsch of Sept. 5, 1938, in which 65 Nacistas were killed.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH
Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing often can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities, Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store.

POLIDENT
CLEANS, PURIFIES LIKE MAGIC
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes — Rinse —and it's ready to use!

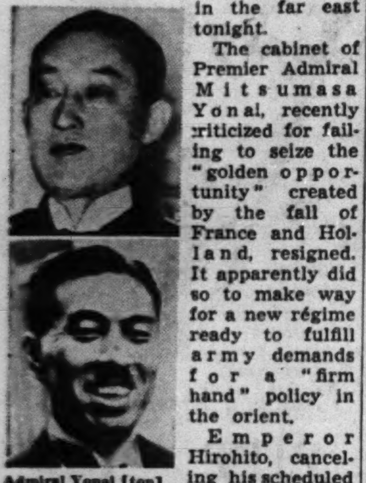
JAPANESE ARMY FORCES CABINET TO GIVE UP OFFICE

Demands Stronger Hand Against America.



Admiral Yonai [top] and Prince Konoe.

TOKIO, July 16 (AP).—Japan moved swiftly toward more energetic action in the far east tonight.

The cabinet of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, recently criticized for failing to seize the "golden opportunity" created by the fall of France and Holland, resigned. It apparently did so to make way for a new régime ready to fulfill army demands for a "firm hand" policy in the orient.

Emperor Hirohito, canceling his scheduled review of the Japanese fleet, prepared to return to Tokio from his seaside villa tomorrow. It was widely expected he would ask former Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe, exponent of a plan for a one party government more like the German and Italian systems, to form a new cabinet.

Three Reasons for Collapse.

Collapse of the Yonai régime was ascribed to three major reasons:

1. Its failure to satisfy expansionists who have been demanding that Japan take full advantage of the "golden" situation created by the fall of France and Holland, both of which have rich colonies in the far east.

2. Desire for a clear track for closer alignment with Germany and Italy. This was considered impossible so long as Premier Yonai and his foreign minister, Hachiro Arita, remained in office.

3. Dissatisfaction with the Yonai régime since its inception, on the ground of its "excessive" liberalism.

War Chief First to Quit.

The cabinet's resignation was precipitated by the resignation of War Minister Gen. Shunroku Hata, who also was mentioned as a possible successor for Yonai.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, said the Yonai cabinet had "struck sand" in its efforts to form a new national political structure [that is, the one party plan of Prince Konoe.]

While the cabinet crisis occupied political circles in Tokio, Japanese naval authorities in Shanghai announced that warships, airplanes, and marines have gone into action to close Hangchow bay. The bay is 100 miles southwest of Shanghai and the important treaty port of Ningpo, thru which the Chiang Kai-shek government has been maintaining trade relations with the outside world.

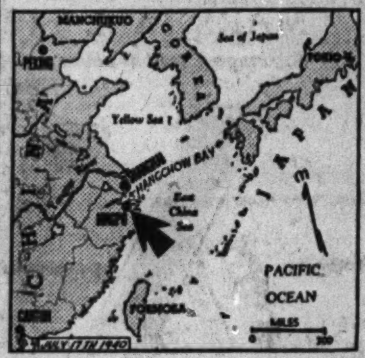
U. S. Opposes Closing of Road.

Washington, D. C., July 16 (AP).—The United States, siding with China, let Japan and Britain know today that it opposed the threatened closing of the Burma road over which most of the arms now move to the hard pressed Chinese forces for their war with Japan.

A formal statement from the state department said "this government has a legitimate interest in the keeping open of arteries of commerce in every part of the world and considers that action such as this, if taken, and such as was taken recently in relation to the Indo-China railway, would constitute unwarranted interpositions of obstacles to world trade."

Japan Attacks Port

(Story in adjoining column.)



Japanese naval authorities have announced that warships, airplanes, and marines have gone into action seeking to close Hangchow bay and Ningpo (arrow), thru which China has been maintaining trade relations with world.

NEW U. S. RULES HIT EMIGRATION OF GERMAN JEWS

See '5th Column' Fear as Entrance Bar.

BERLIN, July 16 (AP).—Jewish people in Germany look with increasing dismay at a combination of war circumstances and American state department regulations affecting their departure from the reich.

These factors, it was said today, are reducing the number of Jewish emigrants to the United States.

Several Jews said they had been on the point of receiving visas, had sold their furniture and other properties, and even bought railway and steamship tickets, when they were abruptly rejected.

'Fifth Column' Fear Hinted.

They said the new line of questioning evidently was based on fears in America of "fifth column" operations.

Reliable sources said there was no new line of questioning involved, but recent state department instructions advised "special care" to pass only applicants capable of becoming true Americans.

Transportation troubles also hinder emigrants.

The war cut off all but the most circuitous routes to the United States and no visas are issued to prospective emigrants unless they have a way of leaving Germany.

Nazis Clear Police Records.

The situation is further complicated by a German justice department ruling which gives emigrating Jews a clear police record to facilitate their departure.

Since this "clear record" might hide moral turpitude, one basis for which passport applications may be rejected, the United States authorities are forced to make a strict examination of each applicant for a possible police record.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and "cure" it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran. Eat it often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

AMERICANS WANT TO, BUT CANNOT PAY PARIS RENTS

Reason: They Lack Cash; Banks Spurn Checks.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 15 [Via Berlin] [Delayed].—Four hundred Americans who remained in Paris when 2,000,000 Frenchmen fled from the German invaders are facing a grave crisis.

They cannot pay their quarterly rent which is due today. They cannot pay it—altho many of them are wealthy and all are solvent—because they have no cash and no means of getting any.

American banks in Paris were among the first business institutions to start on a panic stricken trek to Vichy, Tours, or Bordeaux with their cashiers and accounts. They have not yet resumed business.

Three Banks Reopen.

Three banks—Morgan's, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and the Chase National bank of New York—have reopened, but nobody can get any money out of them. They will not change dollar bills and much less pound notes. They refuse to cash checks even in French francs. All they will do is to advance a little money to persons who have accounts with them and that only after much persuasion.

American residents of Paris hotels are paying their weekly bills with "chits" and saving what little cash they have left for current expenses. Some of these residents are worth millions.

There is no indication when banks will resume operation. Getting money from foreign countries is practically an impossibility.

Despite the fact that 90 per cent of the French civilians are in the same fix as the Americans because the French banks likewise are not functioning, the Petain government has taken no steps to proclaim a moratorium or forestall friction and discontent which is expected to arise when landlords claim their rents from penniless tenants.

Landlords Demand Payment.

The organization of houseowners issued a statement in the newspaper Le Matin, stressing that there is no moratorium and that "every one able to pay his rent must do so because there are many houseowners in a critical financial situation."

On the other hand, the Paris newspapers declare that under existing circumstances it would be impossible to find a court prepared to condemn any one who is temporarily without resources for payment of rent or other liabilities. The situation reflects the confusion that prevails in France's civil administration.

AMERICANS IN MANILA URGE U. S. TO DEAL FIRMLY WITH JAPAN

MANILA, P. I., July 16 (AP).—A small group of American residents of Manila cabled Secretary of State Cordell Hull today urging a strong attitude by the United States in the far east.

"Yielding to Japanese pressure," they told Hull, "is the surest way of sealing the fate of all of us."

In another cable to Col. Dewitt Peck, commander of the United States marines at Shanghai, they commended his stand in the incident involving the arrest of 15 Japanese plain clothesmen July 7, for which the Japanese commandant apologized and subsequently demanded an apology from Col. Peck.

The message to Hull particularly requested firm stands on the Shanghai incident and the question of closing Burma road, over which supplies, mostly American, are sent to Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese government.

British Miners Vote Down 'Oust Chamberlain' Edict

BLACKPOOL, England, July 16 (AP)—A resolution demanding the retirement of former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his Tory colleagues from the government was defeated by the British mine workers federation today. The vote was 430,000 to 161,000.

PREDICT A 'LAST CHANCE' PEACE OFFER BY HITLER

Germans Ready for Mass Attack on Britain.

BERLIN, July 16 (AP).—Informed German quarters professed to believe tonight that Adolf Hitler's decision for a mass onslaught on Great Britain might come any time now, but there were indications it would be prefaced by a "last chance" peace terms offer.

Certain of victory, Nazis began erecting grandstands and loudspeakers on Berlin's famed Unter den Linden and in other German cities to welcome returning troops.

They are convinced that England's fate will be sealed with the same swift success Germany had in knocking out Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, and France.

Await Hitler's Signal.

Nazi sources said bases for the invasion were ready—from Norway to France's Atlantic coastline—and soldiers and airmen only await Hitler's "go" signal.

There were signs, however, that Germany might first propose that England fall into line with German and Italian plans for a new Europe before any invasion order is given.

An imminent decision was regarded as "inevitable" by the German press, which cited Prime Minister Winston Churchill's assertion Britain would fight to the end.

Hundreds of German pilots have flown over the British Isles familiarizing themselves with the country and bombing many objectives.

German submarines and planes steadily have raided British shipping, and the high command today claimed 41,000 tons had been sent to the bottom in the last three days.

Axis' Price for Peace.

ROME, July 16 (AP).—The intention of offering Great Britain a last chance to escape a smashing attack by accepting an axis-dictated political and economic settlement for Europe was attributed to Adolf Hitler here tonight.

The possibility was expressed in diplomatic quarters that Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, may go to Berlin Thursday or Friday to discuss the three-point terms the axis powers are said to demand as their price for peace.

German sources indicated that Hitler might deliver his ultimatum to Britain soon in a speech to the reichstag, demanding:

1. Settlement of continental issues.
2. Restoration to Germany of colonies taken from her by Britain after the world war.
3. A new economic order.

Plan Zones of Influence.

Diplomatic circles understood that the expected proposal for a European readjustment entailed splitting the continent into two zones, whose trade as well as politics would be controled by Rome and Berlin respectively, with Britain expelled from continental politics.

Such zones of influence, as outlined in foreign circles, were expected to follow these general lines: Germany to control all Europe—including France and Scandinavia—from the north to the Black sea, except the Mediterranean basin; Italy to control all countries, except France, on the shores of the Mediterranean, including those in North Africa.

REPORTS 600,000 NAZIS READY TO INVADE BRITAIN

Paper Says Friday May Be "Zero Hour."

GRENOBLE, France, July 16 (AP).—The newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, quoting foreign diplomatic quarters in Switzerland, said today Germany has 600,000 troops ready for a cross channel invasion of the British Isles—and that the "zero hour" may come this Friday night, if weather permits.

The German expeditionary force, it said, is poised along a 1,200 mile front from Brest, France, to Bergen, Norway.

Reports Dissension.

Originally the long threatened assault was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, the newspaper said, but dissension in the German high command led to delay.

[Unconfirmed elsewhere, this French newspaper report was viewed in some quarters as a possible German inspired propaganda effort to spur Britain into accepting Nazi-Fascist peace overtures, which were hinted in a "trial balloon" floated in Berlin and Rome yesterday.]

The newspaper, in a dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, said a group of German generals, headed by Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army, protested that the original plan of attack was "too dangerous."

Hitler Heeds Objections.

The initial plan, it said, called for the assembled fleet—consisting of hundreds of German ships and captured French, Belgian, and Dutch passenger liners, freighters, fishing smacks, and tug towed barges—to swarm across the channel in the wake of mine sweepers and waves of bombers.

Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German general staff, purportedly supported this plan of attack, but Adolf Hitler heeded Von Brauchitsch's objections to delay the attack.

The Von Brauchitsch group, the dispatch said, insisted that mine sweepers could not clear the way in such a swift attack and that two-thirds of the expeditionary force might be lost, leaving only 200,000 men.

[Britain now has 2,500,000 men under arms to combat just such a German onslaught—1,500,000 regulars and 1,000,000 home defense guards. Presumably, many of the tug-towed barges mentioned in the dispatch would be used to ferry tanks across the English channel.]

NAZI CHIEF CALLS WAR BEAUTIFUL TEST IN STRENGTH

BAYREUTH, Germany, July 16 (AP).—"War is no punishment, but rather the ultimate and most beautiful test of strength of the German people and their fitness to live," Robert Ley, Nazi labor front leader, declared tonight at a press reception.

He spoke to German newspapermen before the annual Wagnerian music festival here, which is being produced on a scale as elaborate as in peacetime.

"For no other people is it so completely true that the lyre and the sword belong together," Ley asserted.

Consequently, he said, the festival is being attended by 19,000 soldiers and workers as guests of Adolf Hitler.

Expect Peace Ultimatum by Axis Powers.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—The British public today was warned to steel itself to withstand a new intensified outbreak in nerve warfare following predictions in diplomatic sources of a powerful German and Italian "peace offensive" as a prelude to a mass attack on the British Isles. The warning was sounded by the British press.

Reports that Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy may go to Berlin Thursday or Friday to confer with Adolf Hitler revived suggestions that the axis powers are planning to confront Great Britain with an ultimatum, giving a choice of total warfare or capitulation on German and Italian terms.

Expects Push Within 6 Weeks.

The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent said the German attack on Britain can be expected within six weeks.

[The British Broadcasting corporation in an announcement heard last night by NBC in New York said the official Rome radio has predicted that the "attack on England will start this Friday night."]

Meanwhile, a sequel to the British seizure of French warships was disclosed with the announcement that the Petain government has sent a note to the British foreign office demanding reparations for damage done to the French fleet.

The demand was said to be one of several French conditions which France insists must be satisfied before there can be a basis for settling future diplomatic relations with England. Diplomatic sources indicated the British government is not likely to discuss reparations at this stage.

To Judge Britain by Acts.

VICHY, France, July 16 (AP).—Havas, French news agency, quoting "competent" French official reaction to Prime Minister Winston Churchill's Sunday broadcast, said today "it is by acts that France henceforth will judge Great Britain."

"She will know how to reply, even if these acts are blows," Havas quoted unidentified officials as saying. "The assurance of good will given by Mr. Churchill appears singularly unequal to the sacrifices accepted by France during the six months' struggle for the defense of Great Britain."

[Churchill spoke regretfully Sunday of "the sad duty" of putting the French capital ships out of action and said "the association of interest" between Britain and France remains.]

ASKS BRITAIN TO SELL ISLAND TO U.S. AS 'PAY' FOR WORLD WAR DEBT

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Oswald Lewis, Conservative member of parliament, suggested today that a British island in or near the West Indies be sold to the United States for an air and naval base "in full satisfaction of the balance of our debt outstanding to the United States in respect of the last war." The debt to the United States totals about 5½ billion dollars.

REPORTS RHEIMS CATHEDRAL HIT BY GERMAN SHELL

VICHY, France, July 16 (AP).—An article in Le Jour, recounting the observations of a traveler newly arrived from Germany occupied France, said the left tower of Rheims cathedral, facing the central square, had been badly damaged by a shell. Otherwise the church was untouched. The cathedral suffered extensive damage in the world war.

NEWS and REVIEWS

Two Short Story Volumes, Tonics for Troubled Times

"The Mixture as Before," by W. Somerset Maugham. (Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.) Published last Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Two volumes of short stories from the pens of two of England's best known and best loved novelists are here to help us forget our stern life. Not that these tales are funny ones, tho some are amusing, but they are all so remote from the problems of our hours that they offer anodyne to fagged nerves.

Somerset Maugham is, to most readers, one of the most satisfactory short story writers in any language. He writes short stories with the same beauty and meticulousness of style with which he does a longer piece of work. He knows human nature and chronicles it without disgust but without sentiment. His irony is always tinctured with understanding compassion. His stories are unfailingly entertaining. The least of them is done with as much care as the greatest.

Mr. Maugham's group of 10 short stories boxes the compass, geographically and emotionally. There is the very amusing, slightly sharp tale of "The Three Fat Women of Antibes," comfortably fat and comfortably friends until a widowed and willowy cousin of one of them came to visit and thoroly wrecked their morale.

"The Facts of Life" is another gay ironic tale of the Riviera [where Mr. Maugham lived before France ceased to be France and from where he escaped to London so dramatically last week]. It tells of the highly profitable adventures of a young man in Monte Carlo who had been warned by his father not to gamble, not to lend money, and not to have anything to do with women.

Also set on the Riviera are "The Lion's Skin," a more ironic and slightly tragic story of a fake gentleman; "Gigolo and Gigolette," which leaves the reader uncertain whether the heroine dives to her death in her spectacular stunt to amuse Casino crowds, and "The Voice of the Turtle," in which an ancient prima donna is the memorable heroine.

Two grimmer tales are "A Man with a Conscience" and "An Official Position," both set in French Guiana in the penal colony and both with wife murderers as heroes. London is the scene of "The Treasure," in one way the most ironic of them all, and of "Lord Mountdrago," the least credible. The island of Capri is the scene of "The Lotus Eater," the story of a man who bought himself a 25 year annuity and sadly outlived it.

Of the twelve stories which make up "The Ship's Surgeon's Yarn," six are tales told by a young ship's surgeon, which is exactly what their author was between his 22d and 24th years. Their locale is all over the seven seas, but they are tales of human foibles rather than of the sea's whims.

In one of them the young doctor saves a dying man the incriminations of his strong willed wife; in another he ministers to a boatswain who would rather die than be sent ashore to his too perfect wife. In another a dying Scotsman in Africa tries to make provision for his half-breed daughter. In still another a strong minded woman who has been jilted wreaks her revenge before the young surgeon's eyes. In another he watches an ardent woman missionary try to save a soul and saves her instead.

The other six stories have not the sea as background, but they chronicle like quips of human nature. One tells of a 30 years too late proposal of marriage; another of a dramatist in love, not with a woman but with a character he created; a third of an author who must watch a fantastic tale unfold with his secretary as heroine.

There is a dire tale of hot Italian passions. There is a very amusing story of two social rivals on Capri who became allies for the sake of dear old England, and England is the scene of the story of an "Enemy Alien," a German Jew who had been a prisoner of war there during the first world war and who happily, tho ironically, purchases as haven the house in which he had been interned.

Francis Brett Young as a novelist runs to the saga type of book. Of late he has been writing long historical panorama of South Africa. This volume proves that he does not necessarily need a broad and long canvas to tell an interesting tale.

Superbly Done Satire

"Geese in the Forum," by Lawrence Edward Watkin. [Knopf, $2.50.] Published Monday.

Lawrence Edward Watkin, author of "On Borrowed Time," which delighted us all as a novel, play, and movie, has written another novel which, altho as different as possible from that whimsical gem, will also make delighted friends for him.

"Geese in the Forum" is on one hand the story of a southern college, and its chief protagonists are members of the faculty, its plot the intricacies of college politics. On the other hand, it is the story of a southerner married to a northern girl, and the civil war is fought again between them practically once every 24 hours.

The whole book is satire in the higher brackets, satire of educational politics, satire of professional southernism, satire of everything and everybody that passes near the authors' boll weevil spray. The boll weevil in this case is anything that is fake, anything that isn't the truth. But for reality, for truth, he has a special kind of fine, exciting enthusiasm. His college professors—the real ones—are more human than any teachers we've ever met in literature. And the posers are disposed of with the neatest skill that this reader can remember.

The book is somehow very funny and very touching at the same time—just as "The Late George Apley" was. Every foible is there, and properly razzed, and yet the fundamental rightness of the things and people that are right is made as memorably evident. Few writers about the south have made more successful fun of it. Few have paid it more real tribute.

There are two short bits in the book which will make any reader guffaw and hope that Mr. Watkin, who is a college professor at Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., will write more, perhaps a whole book, about the young in college and out.

The end of the book, it seems to this reader, is just a little too easy a solution to the emotional tangle, but by the time it is reached you will have become so enchanted by Mr. Watkin's tartness and brilliance that you will forgive his polishing off the situation a bit too neatly.

Authors and Their Work

An entertaining man sat next to me at a luncheon one day. He was in Hamilton college with Alexander Woollcott. He said that he was smart-Alec Woollcott even in those days. Each spring there was an allotted time when freshmen threw into the campus fountain any sophomore whom they especially disliked or whom they thought ought to be taken down. That spring, he said, Alexander Woollcott chose to wear a red fez to classes, and the first day of the ducking season he was hurled into the fountain, was never dry for the whole period, and finally was dunked, by practically the entire freshman class en masse, into the gymnasium swimming pool. But the red fez waved on.

Faith and Courage in Changing World Give Novel Theme

"The Vantage Point," by Hilda Morris. [Putnam, $2.50.]

If you like homely novels full of nuggets of wisdom, here is one made to order. It also overflows with sententiousness and chuckles [the characters chuckle on every page] and has the kind of ending you expected on the first page: A happy one.

The heroine is a brave, cheerful little widow who suddenly loses her job teaching in a female seminary. She also is tormented by thoughts of her son, who is 24 and unemployed, and of the old beau who jilted her 26 years before. Does it surprise you to learn that she remodels an old family homestead into a beautiful refuge for paying guests, that her son "finds himself" and gets work, and that she marries the old beau?

The general theme is that of faith and courage in a changing world. Interwoven in it are the evils of sophistication and the great and shining beauty of realities, as dubbed by Miss Morris. M. W.

Charmingly Written Book Is Fine Guide for Child's Reading

A charmingly written book that will interest parents and teachers as well as librarians is Anne T. Eaton's "Reading with Children" [Viking, $2.50]. For more than 20 years the author has been sharing with young people the books she has known for a long time as well as the best of the new ones, so she understands what boys and girls like. Each chapter ends with a check list of the books mentioned in it. There is also a complete index of authors, titles, and subjects.

Among Current Mysteries

Death Strikes in Dark.

"Murder in the Blackout," by J. Russell Warren. [Sheridan House, $2.]

Murder during a practice air raid blackout provides the corpse for this thriller, which is set in England. The story is well told, but the motivation for the murder seems weak. Capt. Gerald Jervois, blind and crippled detective, provides the solution in time to save an innocent man. R. C.

Eccentric Family in This.

"A Comedy of Terrors," by Michael Innes. [Dodd-Mead, $2.]

Michael Innes has learned from the criticism of his first shocker, "The Spider Strikes." His second, "A Comedy of Terrors," is not drenched with as much tedious erudition or the complexities of English country life. In fact, if you don't mind large doses of literary allusions, and the lack of a good corpse, this is an excellent story. It concerns the eccentric family relations of Sir Basil Roper and their friends, set down for a fortnight at Belrive Priory, where target practice was the newest sport, and family animosity the oldest tragedy. 2 Volumes Give You Adventures in Mathematics

"Mathematics and the Imagination," by Edward Kasner and James Newman. [Simon & Schuster, $2.75.]

"Odd Numbers," by Herbert McKay. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

BY SEYMOUR M. KORMAN.

Mathematics, to many, is a despairing mass of calculations, intricate and obscure formulae and—with regard to some modern concepts—just a metaphysical jumble. To those who like the subject—and they are found in all walks of life—it is logical, clear cut, exciting. They agree with Edna St. Vincent Millay that "Euclid alone has looked on beauty bare."

In these two books, eminent mathematicians have devoted themselves to popularizing their field of knowledge. They want to arouse a liking for it and a realization of the importance it plays in everyday affairs.

Kasner and Newman write delightfully and humorously. They storm the stronghold of what to nonmathematicians is dullness, with a phrase such as "a radical in algebra is not to be confused with a communist."

A chapter in their book is devoted to pi, the Greek letter which is known to most elementary geometry students as the ratio between the circumference of a circle and its diameter. Kasner and Newman inform the uninitiated that pi has many other meanings; it enters into the theory of probability and into the formula for life expectancy.

There is a discussion also of two other important mathematical symbols, e and i, and of the remarkable relationship between these and pi. The googol comes in for its innings; this is the word for the number 1 followed by 100 zeros, not an incorrect spelling of the name of a Russian dramatist, Kasner and Newman explain.

Arithmetical and geometrical fallacies and paradoxes, the underlying idea of calculus and its applications, infinite series, the impossibility of squaring the circle with ruler and compass—all these themes and many more are treated with wit and discernment. An excellent bibliography is appended.

"Odd Numbers," subtitled "Arithmetic Revisited," is a volume of slighter scope. It deals with tricks with figures, uses of equations, and construction and solution of problems.

Able Story Teller

3 Good Yarns With a Flavor of Salt Water

"Jonah's Aark," by Roland Barker. [Carlyle House, $2.50.]

BY AL CHASE.

Altho it's more a character study of a sailing ship crew than an adventure yarn, "Jonah's Ark" can be recommended as a rattling good sea tale. A harmless little New York Jew, Adam Abelstein, who longs to be a real sailor, becomes one of the crew of the last of the windjammers in a voyage from Manhattan to Hawaii. A superstitious fo'c'sle suspects him of bringing bad luck to the ship, and the entire voyage is a conflict between the shellbacks and the puzzled landsman. The author has sailed on windjammers since boyhood and his seamanship vernacular is authentic. His "Log of a Limejuicer" is one of the best known books on sail.

"Sold to the Ladies!" is, as the subtitle points out, "The Incredible but True Adventures of Three Girls on a Barge." It's a vivacious account of life on salt water—never out of sight of land. Three girls buy a work barge at auction for $160, and after months of hard work transform the dingy, clumsy craft into a bright, comfortable floating summer home. They have it towed from its notorious Gowanus canal home port in Brooklyn to swanky Manhasset bay, Long Island sound, where they spend many carefree months, commuting by train to New York. This is a refreshing little tale of what city workers can do to capture sunshine and salt water enjoyment at little expense.

Frank Meier, master diver, depicts in "Up for Air" the thrills, tragedies, and humor of his dangerous vocation. The book covers the subject of sea salvage from bodies to pearls, and from peaceful sponge diving to precarious salvaging of ammunition and machinery during the world war. It's brisk, entertaining reading.

"No trip for a woman"
"SHE has never fired a gun! . . . How could she tramp 20 miles through jungles? . . . What would she do if she ever met a lion?" . . . Those were the questions people kept asking Martin Johnson when he decided to take his wife where a white woman had never been. How Osa Johnson met every danger and overcame it makes this the No. 1 autobiography of the year. Over 175,000 already sold, including Book-of-the-Month Club.

Better buy NOW—
And get Top Value for your Money

IT'S pretty conclusive proof of a real value when more people than ever before buy a certain make of car in a single year.

That is true of this 1940 Buick.

It's pretty good proof of value when a higher percentage of all new-car buyers selects that car after looking the field over.

That is also true of this 1940 Buick.

So on sheer value, it should be clear that right now, "Best buy's Buick" — the question we'd like to ask is: Isn't this also the best time to buy?

Isn't this the smart time to put yourself behind a brand-new power plant, husky, thrifty, thrilling — and smoother than ever?

Isn't this a smart time to get more room —up-to-date controls—sure, soft brakes — new rubber — springing that never needs lubrication — truly modern features (Buick has no less than six dozen) — months on months of reliable, trouble-free, low-cost, stay-out-of-the-shop service?

SOME THINGS YOU CAN'T GET ANYWHERE EXCEPT IN BUICK
SWIFT AND THRIFTY DYNAFLASH VALVE-IN-HEAD STRAIGHT-EIGHT ENGINES • POWER PLANTS ELECTRICALLY BALANCED AFTER ASSEMBLY • COIL SPRINGS ALL AROUND PLUS TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE • ORIGINAL SUPER-STREAMED STYLING PRESSURE-SEALED COOLING SYSTEM • FORE-N-AFT DIRECTION SIGNAL WITH AUTOMATIC CUT-OFF • BUICK SKILL, BUICK CRAFTSMANSHIP, BUICK VALUE

All things considered, we think it is. Especially so when you consider current low prices.

It won't cost a cent to try a Buick, get the low delivered prices and have your present car appraised. Hadn't you better see your Buick dealer now — and do just that?

The Buick SPECIAL 4-door touring sedan $996★

PART OF BRITISH COLONY CUT OFF, ITALIANS CLAIM

Army in South Ethiopia Benefited by Drive.

ROME, July 16 (AP).—The Italian high command today announced strategic gains against Britain in occupying the salient formed by the northeast corner of British Kenya colony pointing toward Dolo, in Italian Somaliland.

It also enumerated heavy blows on the British Mediterranean fleet and in air raids on Haifa, important oil port in British-mandated Palestine.

Capture of the corner of Kenya, Italians said, shortened their line of communication to the Moyale and the southern Ethiopian fronts. [The British have acknowledged that their garrison withdrew from British Moyale after resisting a five-day Italian siege.]

Direct hits on oil storage tanks and refineries at Haifa, raided by Italian bombers on Monday kindled huge fires which could be seen from the air 120 miles away, it was said.

[The British said negligible damage had been inflicted in the Haifa raid. Fifty high explosive bombs were dropped and there were two casualties, it was said.]

Fly 300 Miles Into Libya.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 16 (AP).—British planes, penetrating almost 300 miles into Libya—an act described as the longest reconnaissance flight of the African campaign—bombed military camps at El Faidia, a British air force communique said today.

In other attacks the British claimed to have dropped many bombs on Tobruk, Libya, exploding two large naval oil tanks.

The flight into Libya, carried out as far as Tocra, only 60 miles from Italian headquarters at Bengasi, took place yesterday. One British plane was reported missing.

The Tanganyika legislative council today unanimously passed a bill providing for conscription of all British subjects between the ages of 15 and 45 for military or civil duties.

Raid Alexandria Bases.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 16 (AP).—Italian bombers made a moonlight raid tonight on the British eastern Mediterranean fleet in this naval base but failed to score a hit. Antiaircraft fire drove the raiders off after they had dropped bombs.

First British Casualty.

VALETTA, Malta, July 16 (AP).—In an aerial battle above Malta today one Italian was sent crashing to his death by a British pilot who himself was shot down and killed a few moments later. A British communique said this was the first British casualty over Malta in five weeks of fighting.

Four Raids on Gibraltar.

LA LINEA, Spain, July 16 (AP).—Gibraltar was raided four times again today by bombing planes. The extent of damage was not ascertained.

"Groups of Mud Huts."

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—An official Italian communique which claimed the capture of five British-held localities "in brilliant action" by Italian troops in East Africa, drew this comment from authoritative London circles today.

"The names mentioned all belong to isolated groups of mud huts which are entirely without military importance."

PRINCETON ASKS LEAGUE TO MOVE 3 UNITS TO U. S.

Princeton, N. J., July 16 (AP).—Princeton university and two of its affiliated institutions, feeling the League of Nation's scientific program has been curtailed by the war, have invited the league to transfer the work of three of its nonpolitical departments from Geneva, Switzerland, to Princeton.

A message cabled July 12 by Princeton university, the Institute for Advanced Study and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research suggested transfer of the league's sections on finance and economics, international health, and opium control for the duration of the European war. No response has been received.

Fears World Epidemics.

Cambridge, Mass., July 16 (AP).—Two growing dangers—of world epidemics and vastly increased narcotic addiction—were forecast today by a former member of the League of Nations secretariat. The reason, he said, is that wars are breaking down the world system of plague and drug control.

H. Duncan Hall, who has become a professor of the Harvard university summer school since ending his service with the league, urged in a public address that the United States "take up speedily the problem of salvaging these world services before it is too late."

[ADVERTISMENT]

If you SNARLED At Breakfast This Morning

—your acid disposition may come from too much acid in your bladder, a condition which may be due to your kidneys being sluggish. Are you failing to eliminate at least two quarts a day? Were you forced to get up last night? Are you suffering from backaches, back pains, headaches, itching, burning passages? Then here may be the explanation for your outburst at the breakfast table—

Your kidneys are sluggish! Because of that, those acids and by-products of metabolism (which are expelled thru the bladder) are not being sufficiently diluted. They are reaching your bladder in such a highly concentrated acid condition that they are literally torturing your bladder linings and causing those discomforts. For such a condition—

Start taking FOLEY PILLS at once. They will stimulate those sluggish kidneys, dilute and neutralize the over-acid contents of your bladder. What is more, they will transform those over-acid contents into a bland fluid which will soothe those bladder linings whose irritations may be causing those "overwhelming" urges, backaches, getting up nights, burning, etc.

Make amends to those whom your irritability wounded this morning. Start taking FOLEY PILLS at once. You must notice results in 3 hours, satisfactory improvement in 24 or your money back. At your druggist.

What kind of a language is this?

"When we Americans get through with the English language," prophesied Mr. Dooley forty years ago, "it'll look like it has been run over by a musical comedy."

We like our language crisp and vivid and exciting, like the lives we live here in the U. S. A. And so, we built for our exclusive use a new, and very free, speech.

We say scram instead of "get out of here." Cut it out came to mean "cease and desist." Most things, we decided, are either lousy or swell, while a whole pageful can be conveyed by the single word . . . nuts.

A brand-new slanguage. We invented it, we use it, we like it because it fits us. As our Constitution fits us. As Democracy fits us . . . and the right to say what we believe. For that matter, as The Saturday Evening Post fits us.

Americans turn to the Post and find that it "belongs," that it speaks their language. They find that the people in its pages are their kind of people, voicing their hopes and fears, living their kind of lives. And by the warmth of their welcome they make the Post the greatest magazine in the world.

KEYNOTE FOR WAR.

Mr. Speaker Bankhead's tribulations as keynoter reminded many in his audience that Tallulah has all the luck in that family. She speaks lines written for her by some one else. Mr. Speaker has to roll his own.

He had a difficult part to play on Monday night. He knew that the people of this country have observed the determination of the New Deal to hurry America into the war and are genuinely alarmed by what they have seen. He knew that the election is likely to be decided on the question of war or peace. The Democrats are the war party because Mr. Roosevelt has put them there with his provocative words, his calling of the guard, his conscription proposals, his sales of the army's guns and the navy's planes, and his efforts to sell the navy's ships to belligerents. Mr. Bankhead sought to hide Mr. Roosevelt's record beneath an impenetrable covering of rhetoric.

The delegates cheered politely but without conviction, and the galleries, filled tho they were with a claque of ward heelers, remained ominously silent. They knew it was hopeless to persuade the voters that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to keep out of war. Fortunately for Mr. B., no one in the audience sang out: "He kept us out of war." If that had happened Mr. Bankhead would have been blown off the platform by the gale of laughter.

The obvious fact is that Mr. Roosevelt's Democratic predecessor in 1916 had preserved at least the outward appearance of neutrality. Mr. Roosevelt hasn't. He is much further along the road to war than Mr. Wilson was at the corresponding period in the first world war. Mr. Roosevelt's words have been far more provocative; his acts have been far less guarded; his secret commitments are, no doubt, far more conclusive. Mr. Wilson in his secret communication with the British foreign office said he would "probably" take this country into war. There is no reason to suppose that Mr. Roosevelt has qualified his commitment in any fashion.

Mr. Bankhead, after declaring his party to be wholly committed to peace, proceeded to prove the contrary by challenging Europe's conquering armies to a war. He applied such tender epithets as "malignant disturbers" and "juggernauts of brutal power" to the nations in Europe which Mr. Roosevelt wants to fight. They may be that and more, but the way to safeguard America from war is not to employ that kind of language in the considered utterances of responsible officials of the government. The plain meaning of such talk is that they are expecting to fight. If they weren't looking for a war they wouldn't talk that way. The only use such invective can have is to provoke conflict.

Mr. Bankhead removed any doubts any one may have had regarding Mr. Roosevelt's purposes. Mr. Bankhead was the official spokesman of his party. He challenged the continental victors to a war. If Mr. Roosevelt should be elected he would not be hampered by any expressions of opposition to war which may be placed in the platform. Mr. Roosevelt has never taken platforms seriously. He will point instead to the belligerent keynote speech at Chicago, recall that it was greeted with cheers from the delegates and go on from there.

If Mr. Bankhead didn't realize that his chief would so act, he is Mr. Bunk head.

PUBLISH THE REPORT ON TAX FIXING

There is something strange about the reluctance of the Chicago Bar association to make public the report prepared by one of its committees on fixing of personal property assessments.

Assessor John S. Clark uncovered evidence of fixing in his office last winter. He gave every assistance to a committee that the bar association named to investigate. The committee worked hard and prepared a comprehensive report, which is understood to go into considerable detail in describing the methods used and the persons, including a number of members of the bar, involved.

The investigating committee completed its report and submitted it to the board of managers a month ago. Since then the board has held several meetings, but on each occasion has sat tight on the report. It is now reported that the board is considering revision of the report, presumably to tone down its charges.

The Chicago Bar association is not a trade union organized to promote the interests of its members. It is a semiofficial body, charged by the statutes with the duty of regulating the conduct of all the lawyers of the city, under the supervision of the courts of which those lawyers are officers. The public will be loath to believe that the board of managers has any inclination to suppress or soften the report to protect members of the bar. If such an inclination exists, the board has no right to yield to it. It has a public duty to perform.

The fixing of taxes and assessments is a crime second only to vote stealing in its destructive effect on democratic government. Cook county is laboring today under a mountain of delinquent taxes largely because of distrust, built up over the years, of the manner in which the money has been spent and the equity with which it has been levied.

Anything that serves to dispel part of that distrust, as the prosecution of tax fixers and their clients would do, is a great public service. The board of managers should publish the report it has before it as quickly as possible, without censorship. The state's attorney should then act on it.

CONVERSATIONAL GUIDE FOR DELEGATES.

Since hinting to visiting Democrats that there are certain topics of conversation that their hosts of the Chicago machine would rather avoid, it has occurred to us that the visitors, too, have a number of conversational bunions. Having warned the visitors, we think it only fair to put our local boys on guard.

It would be a distinct mistake, for instance, to ask the Hon. Robert E. Quinn, delegate from Rhode Island, if he would like to slip off to the races. The last time Mr. Quinn slipped off to the races he took a few National Guard machine gunners along and with their aid took the Narragansett race track away from a Mr. O'Hara. Mr. O'Hara thought he had everybody in Rhode Island, including a relative of the governor, on the pay roll, but he made the mistake of boasting about it.

It would be equally undiplomatic to say anything about Secretary Morgenthau's fine record of collecting income taxes to any of Paul McNutt's boy friends from Indiana. On the other hand, it's all right to mention rubber stamps to them. Senator Minton likes to be called a rubber stamp. He calls himself one.

Don't say anything to the Hon. James M. Curley of Massachusetts about the state going to the dogs since he left the governor's office. He might think you were wisecracking about it going to the dog tracks before he left office.

Don't ask the other delegates from Massachusetts how Jimmy gets it. And don't ask ex-Senator McAdoo, either. He could tell you, but probably won't.

Don't mention Senator Hatch of New Mexico in front of Dear Alben Barkley. If it hadn't been for Alben's use of the WPA in the Kentucky primary two years ago the senator probably could not have put over his pure politics bill.

And above all, don't go harking back to some of the gay companions of the 1932 and 1936 conventions, and ask anybody about the little men who aren't here.

Boss Pendergast has finished his income tax sentence, but still has to answer to a state court for stealing the money from the insurance policy holders in the first place. The Kansas City boys would just as soon not talk about him.

Don't ask the Pennsylvania boys about George Earle. When the grand juries started looking into the way he, Joe Guffey, and Dave Lawrence had been playing around with the pay rolls and the highway fund, George beat Sam Insull's record. Sam only got to Greece. George, with the help of a diplomatic appointment, got to Bulgaria.

There is one exception to this rule. The delegates from Louisiana will be happy to tell you what happened to Dick Leche, Jingle Money Smith, Abe Shushan, and Seymour Weiss. They'll tell it with flourishes, not omitting mention of an assistant attorney general named O. John Rogge. O. John is an Illinois boy. He ought to be a Republican. Maybe he is.

POCKET EDITION.

A lawyer calls our attention to a recent announcement from the superintendent of documents in Washington that a new code of federal regulations is being compiled. This work will "embrace all documents of various administrative agencies which had general applicability and legal effect on April 1, 1938."

This handy compendium of the laws of the United States, which congress didn't enact, will fill 17 volumes, each of them a book of from 1,000 to 1,200 pages. Four or five years of good steady reading should suffice to acquaint the citizen with his country's non-statutory laws up to April 1, 1938. No doubt four or five years more will bring him up to 1940, provided he doesn't lose interest in the quest.

Editorials of the Day

THIS COUNTRY NOW AT WAR.

[From the Saturday Evening Post.]

Since the first week of June this country has been in fact at war with Germany. Take it in simple fact. Suppose we were at war and a government that had been neutral in form, but not in feeling, suddenly opened its arsenals to our enemy, exactly as we have opened ours to the allies.

Would we regard it as an act of war? We would. What would we do about it? We would declare war on that government, and if for strategic reasons not actually at once, then certainly in our hearts and minds, for a future settlement.

If it should turn out that to strip this country of armaments and send them to Europe at a moment in history when our existing power of national defense was pitifully inadequate and the crisis in Europe was such that no one could say how many hours remained of the British empire, or that the aggressor might not win, capture the allied fleet and dictate a peace before enough American aid to turn the battle against him could arrive—if it should turn out that this had been a tragic blunder, beyond recall, then the leader who had done it might wish that his page in the book of fame would refuse to receive ink, for it would be written of him there that in his passionate zeal to save civilization in Europe he had forgotten his own country.

DISCOVER ILLINOIS.

[Illinois State Journal.]

California newspapers are advising residents of that state who do not feel they can take expensive vacation trips to stay at home this summer and see California. The same advice could apply in Illinois. The tourist advantages of this state are not so widely advertised as those of the Pacific coast, so our motto could well be "Discover Illinois."

The fact is that for those who will study their highway maps or seek information from the state division of parks or the Illinois development council in the state house, there are dozens of places for a week-end trip. An Illinois guide book [some excellent ones have been published recently; your library probably has them] will give the key to other historic places.

Illinois has no snow-capped mountain ranges, but it has high hills in the northwest and in the south. It has rivers, the Mississippi, Ohio and Illinois, exceeded in beauty by no other rivers. It has Chicago and Lake Michigan on the north. Central Illinois has many historic spots, particularly those associated with Lincoln, but there are others which go back to the time when Illinois was a part of France. Why not discover them?

NOTES ON A PLAYBILL.

If Al Jolson was 11 years old when he first appeared on the stage, as he stated at the opening of his handsome musical show, "Hold On to Your Hats," he is now 52. For he made his juvenile bow in "Children of the Ghetto," which was an affair of 1899. This play was a dramatization of Israel Zangwill's book, "Children of the Ghetto," published in 1892. It was the most serious minded incident of Jolson's career, altho his rôle was merely "one of the mob."

* * *

His real name is Asa Yoelson.

* * *

He was a blackface singer of the touring minstrel shows before he became famous in Broadway revues, and he clung to his sooty mask like a traditionalist for 15 years or more. In the Winter Garden entertainments which established his reputation he always appeared as a lyric colored man named Gus.

* * *

When Jolson was in his heyday as a singer, popular music could be remembered after one left the theater, and could be caroled with glee by amateurs. But today's ditties are so tricked up with queer offkey stuff that they can only be sung, unrehearsed, by four Chinamen.

* * *

Jolson's longest lived song is not of the "mammy" species. It is "California, Here I Come," which seems like a permanent contribution to American geographic chants. He claims coauthorship.

PEARLS FROM OLD POEMS.

There was a sound of revelry by night,
On Linden when the sun was low;
A voice replied far up the height,
Tall oaks from little acorns grow.

Rocked in the cradle of the deep,
Old Casper's work was done;
Charge, Chester, charge! On, Stanley, on!

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Whatever is, is right;
Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber,
My native land, Goodnight!

A change came o'er the spirit of my dream,
My heart leaps up with joy to see Things are not what they seem—
Zaccheus he did climb the tree!

Truth crushed to earth shall rise again
Nor waste its sweetness on the desert air;
In thunder, lightning, or in rain,

In Defense of Hoop Snakes.

So, you don't believe that hoop snakes take their tails in their mouths and roll away [July 12]? Or that snakes milk cows?

Well, you listen here, Mr. Linemaster, you and Bob Becker never encountered the hoop and milk snakes we have down in Starke county, Indianny.

When I was a boy down there on a farm in Wayne township my brother and I had three hoop snakes which we had trained to take their tails into their mouths and then we'd roll 'em just like any boy would roll the hoop of the vinegar or sauerkraut barrel. And in the cool of the evening, when it was time to bring the cows home, we'd simply put these rollers down the lane and say, "Go get 'em," and they went hell bent for the pasture and brought the cows home. They rolled slowly behind the herd, and if a cow loitered, why, one of the snakes would unreel and take a nip at bossy's heel and she'd hike home in a hurry.

And, when they, the cows, were all assembled in the yard or barns we'd summon six milk snakes we had in another stall and set them to milking the cows. They didn't do it with their mouths; they coiled themselves about the cow's faucets, and by gently constricting and then relaxing, they performed the same act we would do with our hands. After the job was finished we gave each snake a pan of milk which they lapped up gratefully and then retired to their stall to sleep until morning, when they did the same job.

ANOTHER DARK HORSE.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

I nominate for President
The one man who seems Heaven sent
To rule our land in troubled days,
Because his record earns our praise.
Tho troubles elsewhere may increase
His subjects live in carefree peace;
Well fed, well housed, well satisfied,
They rest from morn till eventide,
While all they want is brought them free
Thanks to our present nominee.
The politician's day is thru;
Vote for the Keeper of the Zoo!

On the Trail of Rich Mr. Riley.

In the magazine Letters, issue of Dec. 23, 1935, Vizetelly, the lexicographer, is cited as believing that this expression came from a song which was popularized in the 1890s by Pat Rooney. The refrain, following a stanza of Irish boasting, ran in part:

Is that Mr. Riley, can any one tell?
Is that Mr. Riley, who owns the hotel?
If that's Mr. Riley they speak of so highly,
Well, upon my soul, Riley, you're doing quite well.

In "Naval Customs, Traditions, and Usage," Lieutenant Commander Leland P. Lovette states that the expression seeped into navy talk from Broadway, but says that the original Riley was an actor who painted the town whenever he was in funds. Inez Young

One of the ridiculous aspects of democracy is that when the majority overrules the minority, it often advances into dictatorship with a motion to make it unanimous.

THE PRICE OF SAFETY AGAINST RABIES.

SOME of these days—let us hope—we will banish hydrophobia completely from our midst. The malady has long been recognized as an infectious disorder that may be communicated from animal to animal or from animal to man thru a bite, or thru contact of infected saliva with a slight wound, such as a hangnail. We must not blame Rover should he become ill. He is no more at fault than is a child who contracts diphtheria or scarlet fever from a playmate.

The disease has nothing to do with lack of water. It is caused by a specific virus which damages the nervous system—all too frequently with a fatal result. All sorts of dumb creatures may be affected —cattle, horses, sheep, swine, cats, squirrels, and many wild types.

As a rule, an afflicted pet exhibits first of all a marked change in disposition. There may be excitement and restlessness. In this state, he is likely to run away, scurry about the neighborhood, and attack other hounds or human beings. This explains why health departments are so particular about gathering up strays so that they shall not become a public menace. After the ailment progresses, paralysis sets in and—within four or five days—death occurs.

The causative factor is transmitted in the saliva. Instances have been reported in which a sick canine—licking the hand of a member of the family—inoculated the poison thru small cracks or abrasions of the skin. The severity of the distemper varies in different seasons. This is comparable to other epidemics—for example, influenza, scarlet fever, etc. A large number of unvaccinated animals—after a few years—may provide a fertile soil and all that is needed is one virulent case to start an epidemic. Before we realize what is happening a single ailing dog may spread the derangement to a score of others.

Prevention is the price of safety. Once the disturbance has developed to its full power there is little that can be done to save life. Every nip, therefore, should be looked upon with suspicion—regardless of its source. The first requisite in treatment is to provide for thoro cauterization of the wound with fuming nitric acid. This should be performed by a skilled physician who will make certain that the medicine reaches all parts of the laceration.

Do not kill the dog. Notify the health or the police department and they will pen him up for observation. If—at the end of two weeks—he is found to be well he may be released with the blessings of all concerned. But if he refuses food or is unable to swallow, a competent veterinarian will promptly recommend that the prophylactic treatment be commenced at once by all injured persons. If the animal has been destroyed the brain should be sent to an expert who will determine its state of health.

While cauterization may be effective, we dare not take the risk and—altho it may be inconvenient or even unpleasant—there is no alternative but to start the Pasteur graduated vaccine until all danger has passed. It is far safer to begin the plan immediately on being bitten rather than to await the dog's death for a positive diagnosis.

In a very practical fashion household pets may be immunized by proper inoculations. If this is done carefully—with a potent virus—we can decrease greatly the possibility of infection. The process, however, is not 100 per cent perfect, and should an inoculated pup go on a biting spree, we should make sure that he is healthy before assuming that there is no peril.

To the credit of owners and veterinarians thruout the country, we have been able to reduce human cases of hydrophobia to a minimum. But should we relax our vigilance, permit our dogs to mingle with others and to become wanderers about the community, we may anticipate a rise in the percentage of victims. In rural districts live stock losses in various years have been substantial.

CLEFT PALATE.

REPLY.

Yes, altho more training may be required.

NO SUNBURN.

W. W. writes: Please tell me why I do not tan—no matter how much sun I get. Neither do I burn. I remain as white as a sheet.

REPLY.

You may be anemic. A check of the red cells and the hemoglobin is suggested.

THERMOMETER LEVEL.

Mrs. A. writes: What is the normal rectal thermometer reading for a child 2 years old?

REPLY.

Ninety-nine to 99.6 degrees Fahrenheit.

PAIN IN THIGH.

F. Y. writes: I suffer with sharp, stabbing pains in my left thigh. What causes this?

REPLY.

Possibly some pressure within the pelvis. If the discomfort is in the back of the thigh, the sciatic nerve should be investigated. A careful check-up is advised.

AFTER HOW MANY?

P. C. writes: I am nearsighted and every time I drink wine I find that my "specs" are too strong. Would you advise me to get weaker glasses?

REPLY.

Why not use a milder vintage with "smaller" glasses?

No change suggested. You would not wear two pair when you reach the stage where you see double.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SECRET.

Urbana, Ill., July 15.—Mr. Roosevelt's secrecy in regard to his nomination for a third term as President puts me in mind of a small boy I know, who puts on a false face and comes and asks me to guess who he is. It is a fine game to play with a little boy, but it and peek-a-boo and hide and seek are hardly compatible with the dignity that should attach to the office of the President of the United States.

Listen, folks, if you draft Roosevelt and then reëlect him your sons and husbands and brothers will fight on foreign soil again, for it is already decided, the same as it was in 1916. FLORA MCATEE.

ONE OF WAR'S VICTIMS.

Chicago, July 10.—"Their children suffer too." Yes, I mean the children of the war vets. I happen to be one of them and know. My dad fought in the world war. In all of my 15 years he has spent six or seven years in veterans' hospitals.

Mother died when I was little, leaving four of us children. My father took care of us till his health prevented him from doing so. We were placed in an orphanage.

Please, all you who desire war, think of the thousands like myself who have suffered and who will suffer in the future if this country goes to war again.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY.

Chicago, July 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My wife and I have a deed to a home in Oak Park.

2. She has a farm in Nebraska in her own name.

3. I am part owner of a farm in Nebraska.

4. Do you recommend that we make a will to each other in case of the death of one, [5] and to children in the event of death of both of us? Some people tell us it is better not to have a will as in that case the matter is thrown into court in case of death and heavy court expenses ensue. G. B. G.

1. The necessity of a will as to this asset would depend in part on whether the title is in joint tenancy.

2 and 3. The necessity as to wills as to these assets would depend on whether each of you is satisfied to have the assets go to his own heirs.

4. If you wish everything to go to the surviving spouse you should place the assets in joint tenancy.

5. If you wish to arrange all of this now, it would seem advisable to employ an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LIEN.

Chicago, July 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise if I can put a lien against a property which is about to be sold under the following circumstances: We hold a promissory note due July 1, 1940. The note is signed by the present owner of the property, also by his deceased brother. Could the lien be put on for the full amount of note? S. P.

By court proceedings you could obtain a judgment on the note after its maturity and such judgment would be a lien on the real estate of the judgment debtor in the county. We do not understand what you mean by "the full amount." We advise you to employ an attorney.

TOO BUSY TO SEE HER.

Chicago, July 11.—I am an unemployed experienced stenographer eager to secure employment. I have had ads in the paper and registered with employment agencies. My complaint is this: I go out to see employers only to be told by their "information" clerk that the employer is too busy to see me.

Don't these men realize what it means to an unemployed girl to pay out carfare every day? Often it is her last dollar, as in my case. These men tell the employment agencies to send a stenographer but do not take time to talk to us. This has happened six times within the last month to me and to others. We are told to leave our name, address, telephone number and will be called to come again. Who has all this carfare?

Any employer who will permit a girl to come to his office only to learn that he is too busy to see her should hang his head in shame. We get ready, ride on street cars for hours and get nowhere.

Everything for Europe but nothing for our own unemployed except relief, and such relief! Keep aliens out, this includes those refugee children, until Americans can get employment outside of WPA, PWA, CCC, etc. Give our own people social security and peace of mind instead of economic distress, discontent, and the appalling poverty we Americans now enjoy. J. H.

FANNIE JUST A FIGUREHEAD.

Muskegon, Mich., July 15.—I read with interest your editorial, "The Tracy Appointment." It seems to me that when one picks on Fannie he is wronging our gal. It is my opinion that she has been merely a figurehead in the department of labor, that the real powers have been Mr. and Mrs. F. D. R.

The closing paragraph of the editorial states: "The President, while he confesses her futility by whittling away her authority, just as stubbornly refuses to replace her with a competent secretary."

Why? Let us consult the ancient wisdom. Confucius' wife say: "Wait till I unload, I'll tell 'em a nose full." Just wonder if F. D. R. fears that Fannie might unload in the form of some dynamite laden memoirs. Memoirs from an indignant Fannie Perkins—seething with a sense of wrong—could well destroy any hopes of New Deal dynasty success in the coming election.

Of course, it is possible that I am merely an evil minded, suspicious cuss, a d—— Republican. I suppose all critics of our abundant lifers fall into some such category. ELBERT E. LEIB.

DISCOURAGED.

Chicago, July 15.—Recently I read the booklet entitled, "The First Fifty Years," published by the University of Chicago in celebration of its fiftieth anniversary in 1941.

While reading this I felt a thrill of pride to learn that this great University [which many of us Chicagoans take for granted] rates just below Harvard and above Yale and Columbia in its academic standing; that it comprises 110 acres, 85 buildings, 500 laboratories; and that it has a student membership of 12,500 annually. I greatly admired the brilliant professors, outstanding scientists, and scholars on the faculty—900 in all.

However, after learning these facts I am more discouraged than ever over the political graft, corruption, filth, and slums which exist in the city of Chicago when I realize that with 900 of the world's most learned men in our midst such conditions are not remedied. What chance has the ordinary citizen, such as I am, with limited education and no brilliance, to make this a better city and "human life enriched" [U. of C. motto], when such intelligentsia has had so little effect on raising the standards of the city? Or perhaps the professors are just theorists and make no effort to put their knowledge into practice. A STENOGRAPHER.

THE REFUGEE CHILDREN.

Chesterton, Ind., July 12.—About the poor refugee children of Europe and our so-called good Samaritans: Sure, we feel sorry for them, but it is not our fault; but the conditions we have right here are our fault. That's what a lot of good Americans can't get into their heads.

I did my hitch in the last war over there and I'm a kind hearted American Legionnaire, but it gets me down to read items in the papers on what to do with those poor children.

England has lots of colonies and plenty of money; let her take care of her own. Why not send them to the Bahamas with the duke of Windsor and let us take care of our own right here?

It is too bad some educated statesman can't give a talk on the radio about this.

ORILL M. MORRIS.

SING IT EVERY DAY!

Beloit, Wis., July 11.—For goodness sake, "M. M.," how can you criticize the singing of "God Bless America?" It is beautiful and is not sung enough. Are we not all depending on God's blessing every day of our lives? Wars are created by godless people who don't ask God's blessing. Sing it every day.

ITALY TELLS ITS SIDE OF FIGHT IN MEDITERRANEAN

Reports British Warships Struck from 2 Bases.

[On Monday the British issued their official version of the same battle described below. The British reported an Italian battleship and destroyer hit and five planes downed, and said the Italian fleet was driven to shore protection and would not return to the fight. The British denied that the battle cruiser Hood or the aircraft carrier Ark Royal were damaged.]

"At dawn, on July 8, an important naval formation was carried out in the patrol cruise in the central Mediterranean in order to guarantee the freedom of shipping communications.

"Some submarines were entrusted with the task of attacking enemy [British] forces while air formations were flying as usual over the western and eastern Mediterranean.

"Soon afterward a British squadron out of Alexandria was sighted in the eastern Mediterranean, formed of three 31,000 ton battleships, one aircraft carrier, five cruisers and 15 destroyers, all sailing west.

Other Units from Gibraltar.

"Almost simultaneously, another British squadron out of Gibraltar, formed by the Hood of 42,100 tons, another battleship of the "Valiant" type of 31,000 tons, the 22,000 ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal, two cruisers and eight destroyers, was sailing toward the Balearic Isles.

"One of our submarines which had sunk a destroyer escorting an enemy formation confirmed the advance of the squadron toward the central Mediterranean.

"The following plan was then decided on:

"To attack south of Candia [Crete] during the whole of July 8 by air bombardment of the enemy ships from Alexandria; to keep under watch the squadron headed by the Hood in order to attack it as soon as it was under useful action.

"On the morning of July 8, in 10 consecutive waves, Italian airplanes attacked the British fleet in the eastern Mediterranean with good results. No fewer than 10 or 12 big bombs hit their target; a fire developed on board one cruiser.

Italians Arrive at Posts.

"On the night of July 8, the Italian squadrons arrived on their posts as scheduled. The British formation was sighted the next afternoon in the Ionian sea [between Greece and Italy] and attacked Italian cruisers by sea, torpedo, and planes.

"This attempt was, however, promptly frustrated and five enemy planes out of nine were shot down.

"Meanwhile, the big Italian naval artillery succeeded in establishing contacts with the enemy. Cruisers opened the first fire, followed by our battleships Cesare and Cavour [each 22,622 tons]. The enemy at once counterattacked. Despite a distance of 26 kilometers [about 16 miles], some shells hit the enemy ships, one of which had a list and ceased fire.

"Enemy shells were also efficient and one Italian battleship was hit in the center, but this did not hinder continuation of the shelling as no vital part of the ship had been hit.

Cruiser Hit by Torpedo.

"Meanwhile, Italian destroyers, with great audacity, attacked the enemy ships, defying an intense fire. A torpedo launched by the Italian flotilla "Freccia" hit an enemy cruiser; the same flotilla shot down three enemy planes.

"Air formations from Sicily and other Italian bases continued their action during the whole battle, but very unfavorable weather conditions made difficult any effective intervention.

"The enemy ships also endeavored to deviate from their course.

"The British squadron, headed by the Hood, arrived in the afternoon of the same day, July 9, south of the Balearic Islands.

"While the battle was raging in the Ionian sea, Italian aviation from Sardinia could carry on intensive action until nearly night, against the British south of the Balearics. Enemy ships were hit by some big bombs; thus the aircraft carrier [Ark Royal] was hit, while fire developed on a battleship.

First War Engagement.

"The same evening, the group headed by the Hood began returning to its base.

"July 9 ended with important successes for the Italian naval and air forces which, for the first time, engaged those sent forward by the British admiralty.

"This success was very evident, following the withdrawal of enemy squadrons toward their bases, giving up all their objectives.

"The British formation which abandoned the battle in the Ionian sea confined itself to protection of five merchant ships out of Malta, while the group headed by the Hood continued sailing with slackened speed towards Gibraltar.

"On July 11 air formations from Sicily and Libya—which during July 10 could only sight some isolated units—resumed their action against the British naval forces which were subdivided into three groups and proceeding towards the east at different speeds, owing to damages suffered.

"This action continued unceasingly during July 12 and 13, during which air formations from Libya and the Aegean sea [Italy's Dodecanese islands] entered into action as soon as the distance of the various groups would allow it. Thus Italian air formations flew over the open sea for over 600 kilometers [375 miles] from their bases.

Claim 50 Bomb Hits.]

"Not less than 40 attacks succeeded against the enemy, not less than 50 bombs, some of which were very big, hit enemy ships with visible effects.

"Ten enemy fighter planes were brought down.

"On the morning of July 11 the group headed by the Hood arrived back in Gibraltar while, during the night of July 13, the naval formations from Alexandria arrived back in that port.

"From the enemy's sources, the losses inflicted by the Italian forces are not yet admitted, but from the testimony of those who took part in the combat, from accurate and unquestionable photographic documentation, from the slackness with which the ships went on their way, and from the slackened antiair reaction, it can be said with certainty that such losses must have been great.

One Merchant Ship Sunk.

"In fact, one destroyer and one merchant ship were certainly sunk; two battleships, four cruisers, two aircraft carriers, two destroyers were certainly hit and some of them heavily hit.

"Twelve planes were brought down; 10 were destroyed or damaged on board an aircraft carrier.

"Moreover it is ascertained that, of these units, the battleship Hood was hit by three bombs on the firing station of the big shells, on the higher tower of 15 inch shells and on the telemetric station.

"The aircraft carrier Ark Royal was hit by a bomb which demolished the outer right part of the flying bridge and destroyed seven planes; the aircraft carrier Eagle [22,600 tons] presents a large leak at her bow.

"While the Ark Royal has already entered a shipyard at Gibraltar, the Hood, for lack of material and equipment, will perhaps be sen to Britain."

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

MRS. JACK ABLIN.

Police of the pawnshop detail searched yesterday for clews to the identity of two young gunmen who menaced two members of the Chicago Board of Trade and their wives, and stole an estimated $20,000 in loot.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Ablin, 3400 Lake Shore drive, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Rosenberg, 2300 Lincoln Park West. Ablin is with Daniel F. Rice & Co., grain brokers. Rosenberg is an independent trader.

The two couples were held up early yesterday morning in Ablin's car in an alley off Belden avenue, west of Sheridan road. Mrs. Ablin was robbed of a bracelet, pin and ring valued at $13,500. Mrs. Rosenberg lost a ring, wristwatch and fur cape valued at $6,350. The two men gave up $185. The gems and fur were insured, police said. Police hope to trace the bandits thru their expected attempts to sell the loot.

ASSERT 2 SOVIET PLANES DOWNED FINNISH AIR LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 16.—Evidence has been obtained by the Finnish and Estonian governments that the Finnish airplane which was lost with 10 passengers flying from Tallinn to Helsingfors on June 14 was shot down 2 miles off the Estonian coast by two soviet fighter planes, it was learned here today.

One of the victims was the American diplomatic courier, Henry Antheil, who was employed as an account clerk in the American legation at Helsingfors. Besides the crew of three, the other passengers included two French diplomatic couriers, two German business men, and two Estonian merchants.

An Estonian fishing boat saw the soviet machines attack the transport plane, which fell into the sea. The fishermen went to the spot and found that some luggage and mail sacks contained diplomatic post. A soviet submarine appeared and forced them to hand over these articles.

Bullet Holes Found.

The fishermen remained on the spot and managed to grapple up a piece of wreckage which contained bullet holes. This is in the possession of the Estonian authorities.

The Finnish plane which flew out to seek the missing machine also was fired on by soviet machines and managed to escape to Helsingfors, it was reported. Two days later a soviet submarine fired upon an Estonian plane returning to Tallinn from Stockholm, but failed to hit it.

The next day the Estonian government received a communication seven days old ordering all air communication to foreign countries discontinued.

Says Plane Exploded.

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special].—A spokesman of the state department tonight repeated the official statement of June 15, referring to the destruction of a Finnish plane the day before. The statement said the plane exploded in midair with the loss of all passengers and cargo in the Gulf of Finland. The spokesman said the state department had no verification of many reports that the plane had been shot down or that a submarine's crew took something out of the wreckage.

America's First Line of Security

AMERICA'S security in a troubled world rests solidly on three great supports—American farms, American factories, and American transportation.

Because of America's farms we alone among the great nations of the world can feed all our people regularly, adequately, and unfailingly from the produce of our own land. In this nation we need fear no famine, no blockade.

Because of our unequaled factories we can, after preparation, produce almost anything we require, and in almost any quantities. Of products that advance the human welfare, we are the greatest makers the world has ever seen.

Because of our transportation system—rail, water, air, and highway—we can move people and goods wherever they are needed more speedily and more efficiently than any other nation. In particular our hard-surfaced highways and our motor trucking system have no equals elsewhere.

Machines make possible our vast farm production. They increase the farmer's speed and efficiency. They bring higher crop yields. They combat the effects of drouth, pests, and bad weather.

But farm machines have done much more than this. A century ago it required nine people living on farms to support themselves and one person in town. Today one man on the land supports himself and more than three people in town. America's industrial and transportation greatness has been made possible only by this release of men from toil on the land, brought about by farm machinery.

So America's First Line of Security is on the farm, manned by the sun-bronzed army of American farmers—the foundation of our strength as a nation in time of peace or in a world at war.

This is the mechanized army of the peaceful fields, relying on machines. For more than 100 years the farm equipment industry and the men and women in it have supplied this army with constantly better machines. It is our pride that today the American farmers are, beyond all comparison, the most efficient and the best equipped in the world to meet the vital demand for food production.

There is no weakness in America's First Line of Security, nor will there be.

CHICAGOANS GET BIG CATCHES IN NORTHERN LAKES

BY BOB BECKER.

If the muskellunge, wall-eyed pike, and black bass in the northern states and Canada could have their way, they doubtless would want Chicagoans to find new fishing waters, judging by the way the anglers have been bringing in good catches in the last few days.

Ray Fowler, Chicago advertising executive, moved in to the forefront of successful fishermen this week by landing a 12 pound 12 ounce wall-eyed pike. The trophy may be entered in one or more national big fish contests.

Thought Fish a Log.

Fowler was fishing on Moose lake, out from Ely, Minn. He was casting a pikie minnow just a few yards from camp. He thought he struck a big snag with his lure. This "log" proved to be a wall-eye which is about as large a specimen of this species as that district has seen this year.

Moose lake is one of the bases for trips by plane into bass and pike lakes in the Superior National forest and the Quetico preserve, and a number of Chicagoans are exploring new waters up there this season.

Wild Cat lake, near Boulder Lodge, Wis., is another that has been turning up some nice catches of wall-eyes. J. L. Wilson of Boulder Lodge reports that Irwin C. Schumaker of Chicago landed 10 wall-eyes there, with the largest tipping the scales at 6½ pounds.

Harry Kelso Jr. of 137 Custer street, Evanston, put seven wall-eyes on his stringer—the legal limit for one day—and the largest weighed 8½ pounds. All these were taken on artificial lures. Kelso also landed a 12 pound muskie while casting a plug around the weed beds.

Pull in Muskies.

Chicago sportsmen also have been fooling the fish around Winchester, Wis., where there are many lakes boasting of pike and muskies.

Among the anglers in that part of the vacation country was James Todd of 411 Forest avenue, Oak Park. The Wisconsin laws permit the taking of one muskie a day. Todd fished two days around Winchester and filled his bag limit by landing two muskies, the largest of which weighed 13 pounds.

The Three Lakes chain also has been producing some good strings recently, with many limit catches of wall-eyes.

Due to high winds and other adverse conditions, the small mouthed black bass fishing in the big waters of Green bay [out from Door county, Wisconsin] slumped over the week-end. But catches made so far this season by several Chicagoans indicate that the hard fighting small mouths are going to provide no end of fun from now on, for they are plentiful in those waters. Two anglers who have made some of the best bass catches there are Dr. J. R. Buchbinder of 505 North Michigan avenue and Dr. Lewis J. Pollak. They have been combing the islands and reefs which dot the bay near the town of Fish Creek, on the west side of the Door county peninsula.

Catch Twin Marlins.

While hundreds of others have been seeking out their favorite places in northern lake areas, Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Dunn of 3750 Lake Shore drive tried their luck in salt water off the Florida east coast, and recorded the unusual accomplishment of catching white marlins that apparently were identical twins.

Mr. Dunn first caught an 82 pounder measuring seven feet six inches. One week later Mrs. Dunn hooked one of exactly the same weight and measurements.

Both anglers have been awarded membership buttons in the Flying Fisherman's club.

LEGION TO PUT ON SNOW FIGHT AT TWO RIVERS

Two Rivers, Wis., July 16 [Special].—This city, claiming to be the coolest spot in Wisconsin, will dig up proof of its claim next Saturday. On that day Robert E. Burns post of the American Legion is to open its cache of winter snow and put on a snowball fight.

The stunt is a part of Two Rivers' program for its fourth annual mid-summer snow festival. An ice skating revue is to be another feature.

With Lake Michigan on three sides, the city has an average summer temperature of 71 degrees.

What can you tell me about Reelfoot lake? G. S.

It lies in the northwest corner of Tennessee, close to the Mississippi river, and is one of the largest lakes in the south. It is known chiefly for its fishing. The fish spawn so rapidly in its shallow bed that no closed season is necessary. The lake's origin is traced to a series of earthquakes in 1811 and 1812, which created a body of water 26 miles long and 6 miles wide. The region, once a hunting ground of the Chickasaw Indians, is now a part of the Tennessee state park system. It is reached by rail in about 12 hours from Chicago.

1,800 Horses on Hand for Estes Park Visitors

MONTREAL USES CIRCUS BALLYHOO ON STREET CARS

MONTREAL, Que., July 16 [Special].—Montreal has found a "sure fire" cure for ailing tram lines, and as a result the street cars are staging a comeback here.

The Montreal Tramways company has launched four gayly painted "observatory trams." They are rebuilt street cars, minus a roof, and with seats in theatrical setback formation. The four are being run on the regular tracks, over a 10 mile scenic tour, for a 25 cent fare. A land office business is being done daily.

The cars are the personification of modern circus ballyhoo. Painted in screaming gold and trimmed in red and yellow, they provide "rubberneck" trips for parties of 100 thru the business and residential sections, around Mt. Royal, and to St. Joseph's shrine. They are to continue to run, on a 15 minute schedule, from noon to midnight daily thruout the summer.

NEWSPAPER MAN MISSES OUT ON ERRATIC GEYSER

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., July 16 [Special].—A veteran newspaper man, with a long record of being on the scene whenever there was anything dramatic to write about, has missed his first story—a particularly "hot" one.

W. B. Clausen is head of the Associated Press bureau in Los Angeles. He and Mrs. Clausen were determined to catch the Grand geyser in action. But they were absent when the story broke.

Grand, one of the more spectacular of Yellowstone's spouters, plays in a series of eruptions, each attaining a height of 200 feet and lasting from 15 to 30 minutes. It is scheduled to put on a performance twice in about every 24 hours, but, like other prima donnas the world over, it is likely to be temperamental, as well as erratic. It has been especially so lately.

For two days last week the Clausens camped patiently near the geyser's cone. There was no eruption. Finally, growing weary, they placed a Boy Scout on duty with orders to call them when the display began. Fifteen minutes later Grand blew off. The boy was so excited that he forgot his mission.

Clausen has gone home without getting his story.

Visit The Lincoln Shrines In Illinois
THE LINCOLN COUNTRY
Abraham Lincoln spent most of his life in Illinois, the formative period from young manhood to maturity. He left an indelible imprint on the State which is enhanced by the memorials dedicated to him.
Visit the Lincoln Home in Springfield, the only home Abraham Lincoln ever owned, where he lived from 1844 until 1861, preserved, with many of its original furnishings, as a perpetual memorial. See the magnificent Lincoln Tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery, one of America's most hallowed shrines.
Lincoln Home
HISTORIC NEW SALEM
Twenty miles northwest of Springfield is the most impressive of all Lincoln Memorials—historic New Salem, "The Lincoln Village," reconstructed with faultless authenticity to appear exactly as it did when Abraham Lincoln lived there from 1831 until 1837. Nowhere else is the humble greatness of Lincoln expressed as it is in New Salem.
Rutledge Tavern
OTHER LINCOLN SHRINES
Illinois is dotted with Lincoln statues, markers, and memorials. Lincoln Log Cabin, last home of Lincoln's father; Vandalia State House, second Capitol of Illinois, where Lincoln served as Legislator; Lincoln Trail Monument; statues and markers commemorating the Lincoln-Douglas debates and other important events in his life.

RUINS OF ANCIENT ANTIGUA THROW SPELL ON VISITOR

City Outdoes Romance of Travel Folders.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

ANTIGUA, Guatemala [By Mail].—Our tour of the glory that was Antigua—before the 1773 earthquake got everything down to a common level—takes us to the ruins of a monastery that once covered two and a half city blocks.

Nowadays Chicago's Merchandise Mart is known as the world's largest building. A similar claim must have been made for this building in the old days. Its vastness can still be seen, but its grandeur can only be guessed at. Its floors and walls are overrun with grass and weeds, and its roof is the sky.

We leave there and go to the old Capuchin convent, now full of looms operated by native weavers. We see the quarters provided, within the convent, for those who are too poor to pay rent. A little girl, child of the poor, passes by. She is carrying a rag doll on her back—just the way she has seen peasant women toting their babies on their way in from the hills.

Dismal Cells Remain.

We see the dismal cells that, some two hundred years ago, were occupied by nuns afflicted with contagious diseases. These nuns, we are told, were walled in, fed thru a hole in the wall, and forced to languish there until they died.

We seek more cheerful surroundings. We find them in the Recollection [that may not be the correct spelling, but that's the way it's pronounced] cathedral, built some 400 years ago. With its huge chunks of concrete, and brick, and stone, its ruins are nothing to wax Pollyannish about, but at least they have no reminders of lonely nuns suffering a living death.

Stopping at a finca [coffee plantation] at the edge of town, we see thousands of trees, all looking exactly alike. We learn that each one produces approximately one pound of coffee beans each season. There are a thousand trees to the acre, and this finca has 1,665 acres. How many cups of coffee would that make? You'll have to figure it out for yourself; we're too busy looking around and getting more facts.

Pay Is 25 Cents a Day.

A stroll thru the plantation owner's home brings us to the patio, with its wealth of tropical flowers and shrubbery. Beyond it is a duck pond, just like any you might have found on English estates before Hitler and high taxes caused those estates to fold up. Beyond that, a mountainside, with corn fields rising in terraces half the way up the slope.

A stop at the Alcazar hotel at the cocktail hour reveals a kitchen with an opening in the middle of the roof [to let the smoke out, of course]; bedrooms equipped with quaint fireplaces, and a taproom with walls of fake wine casks and with the atmosphere of medieval Spain.

A stop at Lewis Palmer's new home [it's called the House of the Bells, and it's situated on the Street of the Bells] brings us to another patio, this one boasting of a full view of the Agua volcano.

Working on House Two Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer have a tearoom in Guatemala City, but they hope to retire some day and come here to live. They have been working on this house for two years; in three more years they'll have it done. They are using ancient pieces of wrought iron, and beams of cypress, 300 years old. So it's easy to see why they are in no great hurry. Time doesn't mean much here.

Our walk back to our hotel takes us thru the city park, where the band is playing, and the girls are promenading one way, and the boys the opposite way, and flirting as they meet. [This has been going on for centuries, with never a variation.]

We pass a grilled window in a private residence. A boy standing on the sidewalk is making love to a girl seated in the alcove—on the other side of the iron bars. Courting customs may change in other countries, but not in Guatemala.

The moon is shining full by now. The Southern Cross is visible. There are strains of far-off marimba music. Everything is peaceful. The one-time city of glory seems to recapture some of its former spirit.

Travel folders like to tell about the romance of travel. Sometimes they exaggerate. No exaggeration would be possible regarding Antigua.

When Easterners Go 'Western'

Grand Haven to Observe Coast Guard Anniversary

Grand Haven, Mich., July 16 [Special].—This city has been designated as the Lake Michigan port where official ceremonies are to be held to mark the 150th anniversary of the founding of the United States coast guard service. The celebration will take place Aug. 3 and 4.

8 INDEPENDENCE DECREES SIGNED IN PENNSYLVANIA

First Declaration Issued on June 4, 1774.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 16 [Special].—Visitors to this state are learning there wasn't merely one Declaration of Independence signed in Pennsylvania. There were eight!

As every schoolboy knows, the signing of the principal document took place in the East room of Independence hall, Philadelphia, July 4, 1776. What every schoolboy doesn't know is that names were attached to seven other documents.

Old Chair Is Shrine.

Tourists are taken in droves to the East room, where, in quiet dignity, stands the old highback chair used by the signers. The silver inkstand in which they dipped the quill is on the original mahogany desk. The tourists throng the colonial rooms once frequented by John Hancock, Benjamin Franklin, and all the others.

Less known to the travel world is the story of the other declarations.

On July 4, 1776, a group called the Fair Play men, unaware of what was taking place in Philadelphia, met under the Tiadaghton elm tree, at the confluence of Pine creek and the Susquehanna river, and there affixed their signatures to what came to be known as the Pine Creek declaration.

Elm Still Standing.

The elm, said to be 500 years old, is standing today. It can be seen on a drive along federal highway 220, a few miles west of Jersey Shore.

But the first Pennsylvania step toward proclaiming independence from England was recorded in East Hanover, in what now is Dauphin county. A document was signed there June 4, 1774. A week later a similar declaration was made at Hummelstown, east of Harrisburg. Two weeks after that, one was signed at Lebanon. Successive weeks saw action taken at Reading and at Lancaster.

The final declaration, prior to the historic one that cast the thirteen colonies adrift from the old world, was agreed upon at Hannastown, north of Greensburg, May 16, 1775.

CANADA MAKES ENTRY AND EXIT EASY FOR AMERICAN TOURISTS

OTTAWA, Ont., July 16 [Special].—Despite assurances to the contrary, many Americans are still under the impression that they will have difficulty in getting into and out of Canada this summer.

Dominion officials said today that no obstacles are being placed in the way of tourists. No passports are required for entry, and the only requirement for the return trip to the United States is some sort of proof of American citizenship. This proof may be in the form of an auto license, registration card, or the like. The widely circulated story that the returning citizen must have a birth certificate is groundless.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced recently that there was no immediate prospect of a change in the passport ruling.

"There will be no unnecessary delays or hindrance," he told the Canadian parliament. "All that will be necessary is for the visitor to satisfy the immigration authorities that he is a citizen of the United States and that he is coming to Canada for a legitimate purpose."

Mr. King added that if, at the end of the summer tourist season, it should be found necessary to establish a system of passport control, ample notice of the change would be given.

INDIAN PRINCESS TO BE ELECTED IN PETOSKEY FETE

Petoskey, Mich., July 16 [Special].—An Indian "princess" is to be elected here tomorrow evening. The election will take place in the Indian village that has been set up in Mineral Well park. The princess will rule over summer festivals at Harbor Springs and other nearby points.

The village is made up of birch bark wigwams and tepees. It has on display baskets, novelties, wood carving, leather work, quill work, and relics, and it serves as a background for evening campfire programs.

Catalina Aquaplane Race Aug. 4 a Water Classic

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16 [Special].—An event hailed as the world's longest and most strenuous aquaplane race will be run over a 44 mile course, from Santa Catalina Island to Manhattan and Hermosa Beach, on the California mainland, Aug. 4.

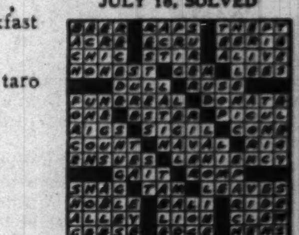
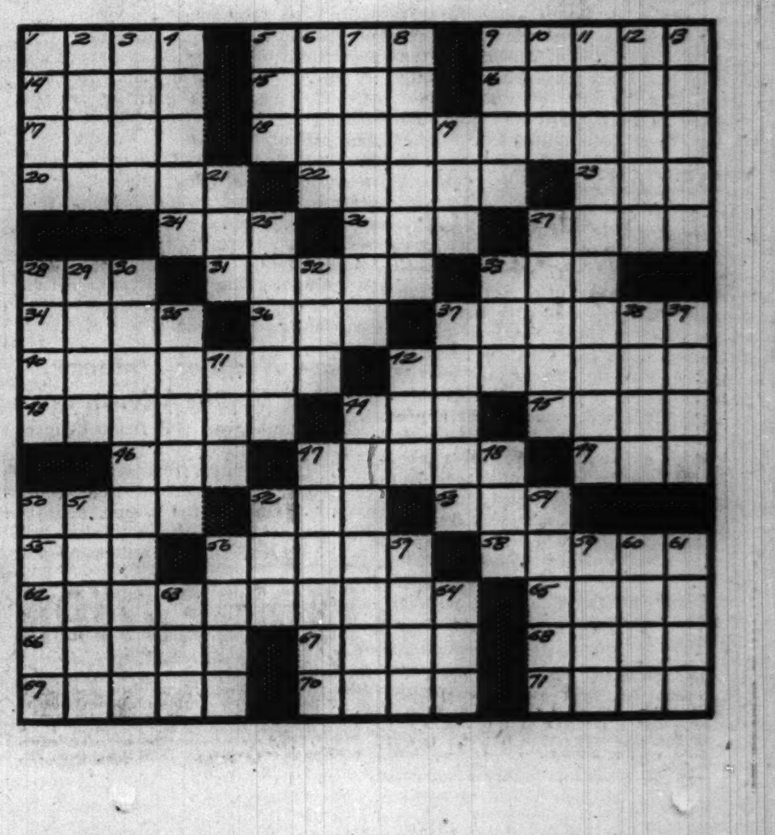
PUZZLE OF TUESDAY, JULY 16, SOLVED





CHARGE BRITAIN'S REFUGEE SCHEME FAVORS WEALTHY

Postpone Plan to Send Children Abroad.

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Angry protests that thousands of wealthy children are being sent to safety in the new world while other thousands of poor boys and girls must remain to face war hazards in Britain rang thru the house of commons today in an acrimonious debate on the refugee problem.

The storm burst when the government announced that it had postponed its plan to transfer British child refugees to the United States and Canada because it could not spare the necessary escort vessels.

One Labor member shouted that he was convinced that the government's original announcement of the plan to move the children merely was a "camouflage" to get wealthy boys and girls out of the country before the fury of the expected German attack.

Still Room for Some.

Some 70,000 children are waiting for passage to the new world—50,000 applying to go to Canada and 20,000 to the United States. More fortunate ones already have reached havens in those countries.

Maj. Clement Attlee, commons spokesman for Prime Minister Churchill, said in announcing the cancellation that a "certain number" of children would be transferred in cases where proper convoy could be furnished.

"There is a limited number," he said, referring to convoys, "and to that extent, the scheme will go forward and will be giving some opportunity to children from state-aided schools."

Registration of children under the evacuation scheme continues. Attlee said private transfers of children would not be stopped, but that the risks involved must be shouldered by their families.

Criticizes Cabinet Ministers.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, minister for overseas trade, made no reply when another Laborite asked if he were "aware there is great indignation at the number of children of cabinet ministers who have left the country."

Shakespeare disclosed that the number of British children between 5 and 15 years old who left the British Isles last month was 1,572 for Canada and 306 for the United States. Of these, he said, 1,454 and 298 respectively normally resided in the United Kingdom.

"That is so," Shakespeare replied when asked if it were correct that there were roughly 200,000 applications for removal of children and 20,000 offers from the dominions.

DR. A. G. WITTMAN OF ELGIN STATE HOSPITAL DIES

Dr. Anthony G. Wittman, assistant managing director of Elgin State hospital for the last 18 years, died yesterday in his home at the institution. He was 64 years old and had been in the service of the state welfare department for 30 years. He first came to Elgin in 1910. From 1914 to 1918 he was attached to Peoria State hospital, and from 1918 to 1822 was assistant managing officer of Anna State hospital.

Twelve years ago Dr. Wittman lost both hands thru injury caused by X-ray burns.

Dr. Wittman was a graduate of Northwestern university medical shool and served during the Spanish-American war with Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He was wounded at the battle of San Juan hill.

Dr. Wittman leaves his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wittman, of Pasadena, Cal.; his widow, Ann., and two daughters, Mrs. Alexander Bush, Toledo, O., and Dr. Phyllis Wittman, director of the laboratory of psychology at Elgin State hospital. Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. in the assembly hall at the hospital. The body will be cremated at Acacia Park cemetery.

WIDOW OF FOURTH EARL OF MINTO DIES IN BRITAIN

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—The countess of Minto, widow of the fourth earl of Minto, former governor general of Canada, died Sunday at Godalming, Surrey, it was disclosed today.

The countess was a daughter of the late Gen. Charles Grey, once private secretary to Queen Victoria. She was married in 1883 to the earl of Minto, who served as governor general of Canada from 1891 to 1904 and later as viceroy of India. He died in 1914.

The countess is survived by one son, the fifth earl of Minto, and two daughters, Lady Cromer and Lady Violet Astor, wife of John Astor, member of parliament and chairman of the Time Publishing Co.

NORTHWESTERN GETS ADVANCE FLYING COURSE

The Civil Aeronautics authority announced yesterday that Northwestern university has been chosen as one of two centers in the Chicago area for training student flyers in a two months' advanced ground and flight course. This will supplement a preliminary course which has been in operation at Northwestern for a year, and will be open to 20 students picked from that course. Ten of them are from Northwestern, six from Armour institute, two from Lewis institute, and one each from Wheaton and Lake Forest colleges. Graduates from the advanced course will be eligible to continue army or navy training.

OH, I'VE LIVED LOTS O' PLACES—LOTS O' FOLKS HAVE BEEN SWELL TO SANDY AN' ME—WE'VE HAD REAL HOMES-
WHY DON'T YOU GO BACK TO SOME OF THE FRIENDS YOU'VE KNOWN?
LOTS O' REASONS—SOME OF 'EM AREN'T AROUND ANY MORE—OTHERS HAVE MOVED. I DON'T KNOW WHERE—FRIENDS SEEM TO SORT O' COME INTO YOUR LIFE—STAY A WHILE, THEN GO OUT AGAIN-
I GUESS MOST O' TH' FOLKS WE'VE LIVED WITH WOULD BE GLAD TO SEE US AGAIN—BUT USUALLY THEY WERE MAKIN' OUT FINE WHEN WE LEFT AND PROBABLY STILL ARE-
THEY DON'T NEED US—IF YOU CAN'T KICK IN WITH YOUR END O' TH' LOAD, ANYBODY'S GOT A LOT O' CRUST 'SPECTIN' TO MOVE IN AN' BE ONE O' TH' FAMILY-

DETROIT BOY, 11, KIDNAPED; NOTE DEMANDS $500

Detroit, Mich., July 16 [Special].—The reported kidnaping of Raymond Diciare, 11 years old, at 10:15 tonight started police on a search of his neighborhood.

Shortly after the boy was seen struggling in the arms of a man a neighbor found a ransom note in a flower pot in the boy's home. The note directed his parents not to notify police or the child would be killed. The writer of the note demanded $500 ransom by noon Saturday, but did not give direction for payment.

The boy's foster-mother, Mrs. Raymond Diciare, told police she heard him screaming a few seconds after she had sent him to close a rear gate. Neighbors also heard the screams and rushed from their homes to see a man wearing a light shirt carrying the struggling boy thru tall weeds of a vacant lot back of the house.

RADIO AMATEURS SOUGHT IN ARMY RECRUITING DRIVE

Headquarters of the 6th corps army area announced yesterday that recruiting had begun to enlist amateur radio operators in the army signal corps. Capt. G. R. Carpenter said that 200 vacancies existing in this branch of the service at Fort Sheridan and at Fort Lewis, Wash., were rapidly being filled. Openings are for radio operators, telegraph printer operators, line and repair foremen, teletype men, telephone and switchboard operators, linemen, cable splicers, telegraph and telephone repairmen, powermen, radio electricians, switchboard installers, auto mechanics, and chauffeurs. Training is not requisite.

House Number Unlucky, but Bandit Victim Isn't

The number on the front door of Leo Cohen's Roosevelt road home is 1313. Two bandits robbed him of $75 yesterday, in his store at 4168 Archer avenue. One of them shot at him. Just the same, Cohen thinks he's lucky. He ducked. The bullets missed.

CITY'S PLANNERS ASK REPORT ON VITAL PROBLEMS

Members of the Chicago Plan commission at a meeting yesterday requested Hugh E. Young, chief engineer, to prepare a report on fundamental problems to be considered in drawing up a master plan for the city.

These problems, Young said, are streets, parks and parkways, public buildings, public preserves, zoning, lake front improvements, and utilities.

BODY TAKEN FROM LAKE.

The body of an unidentified man, about 50 years old, was taken from the lake near Chestnut street yesterday by a park district patrol boat.

Hat and Dress Must Be Black This Summer

BY REA SEEGER.

Delegations may come and go, but the busiest delegates are those milling around the shops and stores hunting for new fashions. Hats black as a cave, dresses equally ebony in hue are out to tempt the first arrivals. Dull black daytime dresses, spartanly untrimmed, have by this time become a midsummer uniform for all smart women who do the town for the day.

Sheers ranging from the cool georgettes, chiffons, plumskin thin crêpes to fish bowl transparencies in wide meshed net promise smart comfort for the stickiest day. All of the new affairs cling to the figure lines and flatter both peach pink complexions and the toast tanned beauties.

The black hats are something else again. They're either wide face frames or small flirtatious confections with veils . . . and if you think you had veils last year! This season's bonnets are practically buried in drifts of veiling, yards and yards of it, fine ladylike superflattering lengths that float distractingly in the slightest breeze. Bows of the lace veiling, ruchings of lace veiling, lengths that wind around and around the neck and still hang low around the waist line make these new arrivals that last word in millinery coquetry.

Feathers are other topics of conversation as well as new trim for fashionable headgear; ostrich plumes for instance, attached so that they curl down over the back of hairdo or curl most becomingly over a brim at the side. Three color combinations are subtle and unusual, contrasting the fourth color in the hat itself. Small toques composed entirely of feathers, usually ostrich curls, are ravishing confections with which to accent an otherwise simple daytime outfit. These new hats spell allure for every shopper, and if you're weary of summer straws one of these creations will revive the most wilting morale.

Add Lapel Buttons.

Otis Chatfield Taylor's convention week lapel ornament is a McKinley-Roosevelt badge bearing pictures of the candidates for President and Vice President in the campaign of 1900 and the full dinner pail slogan. British Gertrude Lawrence looked inquiringly at it in the dim light of a restaurant and murmured, "Not at all good of the queen."

• • •

Miss Lawrence's chest adornment was a Bundles for Britain pin, a handsome ornament bearing the British motto on a white shield, adorned by the British lion and surmounted by the sword of St. Michael. Wearing of the pin signifies money has been given for British ambulances or supplies, and Miss Lawrence expects to dispose of thousands of them during the time she is on tour in Skylark.

Congressional By-Play.

Senator Claude Pepper of Florida was asked in Chicago the other evening to repeat a story he had told on the senate floor recently apropos of an armament argument he was making to his colleagues.

A little group of Dallas men play poker together regularly at one another's homes, and they make it a rule to stop playing at midnight. One evening their host urged them at midnight to continue playing, and when they asked if his wife wouldn't object he answered, throwing out his chest, "I am Julius Cæsar in my home."

As he finished speaking the door opened and his wife came into the room, greeted the poker players graciously, and told them there was food on the dining room table for them.

"I hope you will find everything you want," she said. "Play as long as you like, gentlemen. But," she added, "Julius Cæsar's going to bed."

• • •

When Senator Pepper finished the story he said Senator Norris asked him to yield the floor.

"Did Julius Cæsar go to bed?" he asked.

It all went into the record.

Disappointment.

The fact that the Democratic convention sessions have been quiet and unexciting may account for the comment a flushed young woman, wearing a hostess badge, made yesterday to some Democrats who entered the same elevator at the Stevens.

"Are you delegates?" she asked. Then, upon their assent, she added, "Well, you're the biggest bunch of sourpusses I ever saw."

There Still Is Time to Win Bid to Circus Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Very, very early next Saturday morning, before even the sun is up, four long red and gold trains will rumble into Chicago bringing in 800 performers and almost 2,000 animals. Out on the lake front the big canvas tents will go up,—and the circus will be here!

On Thursday, July 25, 100 boys and girls will come with me to see this show at the invitation of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey.

My guests will be the youngsters who write the most enthusiastic letters about the circus—so if you'd like to come, and want to write a letter telling me why you think you'd have a wonderful time—maybe you'll be one of my guests.

Any boy or girl is eligible to try for an invitation. You don't have to worry about grammar or spelling, just do your best to convince me that you really should have an invitation.

When you write be sure that you tell me your full name, your address and your age. I'm going to read all the mail and select 50 boys and 50 girls to come with me to see the big show, and the names of the winners will be printed in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

Thursday is the deadline—all mail must be on my desk that morning—so you see you haven't much time left, if you haven't mailed that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Onwentsia Is Holding Annual Golf Tourney

BY JUDITH CASS.

MOST of the visitors who streamed into Chicago early this week had nothing but politics on their minds and the Democratic convention as their destination. Thirty-two additional visitors will be arriving tomorrow night or Friday morning who may be politically minded, but who will be interested chiefly in golf this week-end. Lake Forest will be their gathering place.

They are friends of members of the Onwentsia club and will be here to take part in the annual out-of-town guests golf tournament. Wives are not included in the golfing plans, but there will be luncheon, tennis, and bridge parties that wives of the hosts are giving for their feminine house-guests.

Dozens of Dinner Parties to Be Given Friday.

There will be dozens of feminine dinner parties on Friday night, when the golfers have their stag dinner at the Onwentsia. Mrs. Henry Rowley is taking some of the out-of-town wives to Arlington for the races on Saturday.

Saturday night there will be a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia, and on Sunday afternoon the golf prizes will be awarded.

The Jay Northam Whipples are planning a small luncheon party on Sunday for their house guest, Edward J. Winters of New York, and a few of the out-of-towners. The W. Paul McBrides are giving a cocktail party on Saturday afternoon for their guests, the Samuel Conants of St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Cummings, who will have George Flinn of Pittsburgh with them, will give a cocktail party after golf one afternoon.

Thomas A. Connors, chairman of the tournament, will have Louis Bredin of Grosse Pointe, Mich., and Homer Sweney of St. Paul as his guests. Mr. Connors is planning a cocktail party for some of the older men. The David Calhouns of St. Louis will stay with the James Cooks.

Benedict Cup Tourney Onwentsia's Next Event.

The George McLaughlins will have the Raymond Morelands of Pittsburgh with them. Raymond Ellis of Boston, a Yale classmate of George A. Poole Jr., will be with the Pooles. Mr. and Mrs. James O. Heyworth will have the Benjamin Bentners of Paoli, Pa., with them, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. will entertain the Franklin D'Oliers of Philadelphia.

The next important tournament at the Onwentsia will be the Benedict cup tournament, in which husbands and wives will compete. It will be played on July 25. Tuesdays are ladies' days at the Onwentsia. Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr. is woman's golf chairman.

Friday is ladies' day at the Shoreacres, where many of the feminine visitors probably will be found this week. Princess Nicholas Galitzine is chairman of the woman's golf committee there, assisted by Mrs. John M. Simpson and Mrs. Mason Phelps.

The Glen View, Exmoor, Knollwood, and Barrington Hills Country clubs reserve their courses for women on Tuesdays. Golf chairmen for the various clubs are Mrs. Ralph Mills, Knollwood; Mrs. Donald W. Rogers, Glen View; Mrs. M. Ralph Cleary, Exmoor, and Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh Jr., Barrington.

Mrs. William A. Ryan is woman's golf chairman at the Chicago Golf, where women are invited especially on Thursdays. Miss Mary Lou Laird heads the women golfers at the Indian Hill, which has set Wednesdays aside for women's golfing events.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson Kept Home by Poison Ivy.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson's friends are asking why the popular and brilliant Washington publisher isn't in Chicago for the convention, as planned. The answer is that she is laid up with a bad case of poison ivy, which has closed her eyes and made it impossible for her to leave her home.

Arriving today from Washington to be here until tomorrow afternoon is the Polish envoy to the United States, Count Jerzy Potocki. He will stay at the Polish consulate in Lake Shore drive. Chauncey McCormick will give a dinner tonight at the Chicago club for the diplomat. The Charles S. Deweys also will entertain for Count Potocki, but just what sort of a party they will have can't be decided upon until the visitor arrives.

Before Mrs. John F. Jelke left for Cape Cod this week she and Mr. Jelke completed plans for two young people's parties they will give next month. One will be a dinner-dance on Aug. 3 at their Lake Forest home for the subdebutante crowd. The other, on Aug. 14, will be a dinner-dance at their farm for Lake Forest buds and their beaux.

The Jelkes are popular hosts with their children's friends, as well as with their own. The especial guest at the first party will be Miss Peggy Lansdowne of Washington, D. C., a school friend of subdeb Lana Jelke who will be spending 10 days with the Jelkes at that time. The other party will be for three Lake Forest debutantes, Miss Joan Revell, Miss Marie Merrill Hubbard, and Miss Barbara Hixon.

Looking at Hollywood

by John Chapman

Hollywood, July 16.—On the Metro lot a questing reporter runs into Leo Carrillo, who says he hasn't been able to take week-end trips in his boat, the Thetis, and will have to keep it tied up a couple more weeks. A wild canary has nested in the canvas canopy and is bringing up three children.

Another yarn about Donald Huie, the 6 year old Chinese boy who has a rôle in "Dulcy." The other day Director S. Sylvan Simor wanted the young man to do something and Donald flatly refused. Simon cajoled, finally promised he'd let the lad do anything he wanted if he'd just perform this one thing for the cameras. Huie gave in, and Simon, true to his promise, said, "Now what do you want to do?" "I want," said the small Chinese, "to be Shirley Temple."

On a Warner stage Frank Capra has begun the magic capracadabra of making a film called "Meet John Doe." It's the first time he has been his own boss. He and Author Robert Riskin are putting up their own money and aren't drawing a cent of salary. There is a 60 day shooting schedule, but the time may be shortened, for, so painstaking has been the preparation, Capra makes only one or two takes to each scene.

It is midmorning when your onlooker arrives and Barbara Stanwyck is doing a silent scene in which she looks over, one by one, a bunch of job applicants and rejects them all until she sees a hobo named Gary Cooper. Barbara is smart that way.

After a couple of takes Cooper, a bum with torn pants and a two day beard, retires to a corner for another music lesson. He has to learn how to play the mouth organ for the film and there is a harmonica professor in attendance. Miss Stanwyck perches on a stepladder and has a cup of coffee and a piece of toast. Second breakfast, she explains. She has to have one about this time to keep her stomach from growling, because a growling stomach has spoiled many a sound track.

At the Metro commissary this investigator queries, "Who's that guy over there who looks like Groucho Marx with glasses?" "Groucho Marx," is the reply. But I bet I couldn't tell a Ritz brother if I saw one . . . Ann Miller, the dancer with the lovely legs whom George White brought to New York in "Scandals," will have an important assignment in Republic's "Hit Parade of 1941."

A search for William Powell was unavailing. He and Myrna Loy are making something called "I Love You Again," which sounds pleasantly goofy. He has amnesia and doesn't know he's married to Miss L. and has to woo her all over again. He is also a Boy Scout leader, but a bad one, and he gets caught in a bear trap which snaps a noose about his ankle and flings him into a thicket. When we went looking for Powell they were arranging the thicket scene. There was a huge pile of brush, from the top of which stuck a short-stockinged leg. A real Powell leg, swore an informant; no stand-ins. A large crew was piling branches this way and that, trying to get just the right effect, while the leg pointed patiently roofward. "He'll be there a couple of hours," said a stage hand, so we left.

Not even active shooting on the Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy version of Noel Coward's "Bittersweet" deters Director W. S. Van Dyke from another labor of love, his marine reserve battalion. It's going to be a fine artillery outfit, mechanized and motorized, if he can, so to speak, complete the cast. His difficulty may illustrate the country's at large: He can't find enough young experts. "I've got some fine experts," he says, "but they are all old men like me—40 or 45. We need electricians, telephone and radio men, and motor technicians."

The Fate of the Darmenys

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Madge Darmeny, a childless widow, knowing she has but a short time to live, wants to select the most deserving heir for her large estate. Amelia Pennyfather, a distant cousin, lives with her, but on pretense she has to retrench financially, Madge sends for the other members of her family and suggests they live with her also. Leda, her own niece, is married to Frank, her husband's nephew, but in love with Geoffry, another nephew of Madge's husband. Frank has an 8 year old daughter, Betsy, by a former marriage. Shirley Westall, Madge's secretary, is given charge of Betsy. Madge has always been partial to Geoffry because of his continuous playing up to her, but she is beginning to find his debts and escapades rather trying. She likes Shirley and suggests to Geoffry that Shirley would make a good wife. Tiring of Leda, Geoffry pays court to Shirley and is infuriated when she repulses his advances. Frank, miserable because he suspects Leda and Geoffry, sees the sweetness of his first wife in Shirley and falls in love with her. Shirley sympathizes with Frank when she sees how Leda is treating him and finds her sympathy turning to love. After a number of tantrums by Leda, Madge begins to see things in their true light and decides to change her will. Amelia overhears Madge's conversation with Alfred Barnes, her solicitor, and learns of Madge's illness and her plans for a new will. She tells Geoffry, who in turn steals Madge's keys to her safe and reads the old will in which he is to be left the estate, and the new version in which Frank is to be the main heir. The new will is not to be signed until the following Friday. Geoffry, furious at the turn of things, goes on a rampage. He encounters Frank in the woods and threatens to get Shirley as he got Leda. Frank strikes him, knocking his front teeth out. When Frank confronts Leda with Geoffry's accusation, Leda, in a fit of temper, admits to both Frank and Madge her love for Geoffry. Madge decides to wait up for Geoffry, who has gone to the city to see his dentist. She wants to talk things over with him. He arrives late, is insulting to Madge, and when she asks him to get her medicine for her he gives her an overdose which kills her. Amelia is eavesdropping, but is too afraid of Geoffry to tell, as he threatens to commit her as insane. After the funeral, when Barnes reads the will, they learn that Madge signed the new will the day she died, not waiting until Friday, as Geoffry thought. Geoffry, furious at what has happened, is packing to leave when Leda comes into his room and begs him to take her with him.

INSTALMENT XLV.

RUNNING AWAY.

Geoffry stood looking at Leda. "I don't want anybody but you, Leda," he said finally. "You know that."

She threw herself into his arms and kissed him frantically.

"Then you will take me?" she panted.

He thought of Frank and remembered how personally violent he could be.

"If we can get away unnoticed," he said uneasily.

Once it was over he did not think Frank would do anything. The fellow had rather a stinking pride in his ability to calm down and control his temper, altho on the spur of the moment he could not be trusted to keep his fists to himself. It was the spur of the moment that Geoffry Darmeny feared most.

"I'll bring only my dressing bag and a small suitcase," Leda said.

"How soon? I don't know, yet, whether Frank means to change his own plans."

"No fear; he won't!" Geoffry exclaimed furiously. "He and that old weasel will be sitting down now having the time of their lives."

"In ten minutes—a quarter of an hour?" Leda asked.

"I'll wait for you. I'm going now. I'll wait half an hour and if you don't come along by that time I'll know there's been a hitch somewhere."

Leda went downstairs striving not to look as tho she had anything pressing on her mind.

She strolled into the drawing room with a casual air and found the two Scofields and Amelia Pennyfather in animated discussion of their brightened futures. The Scofields hadn't been left so handsomely provided for as Amelia, but they had private means of their own and had not expected even as much as they were to receive. They intended making the down payment on a house with their legacies and the musical one was going to buy a new piano.

Shirley and Betsy were busy in the rose alley. Betsy held the basket and Shirley was doing the cutting.

"Oh, Mummy, where have you been? I looked everywhere," Betsy cried. "'Cept I didn't look in Uncle Geoffrey's room," she added.

"What did you want?" Leda asked hastily.

"It's daddy who wanted you. I guess it was to tell you we're not going from Beechbourne after all. Are you disappointed, Mummy?"

"Where is your father?" Leda asked, ignoring the child's question.

"I don't know," said Betsy. "He was somewheres a minute ago."

"Shall I find him for you, Mrs. Darmeny?" Shirley asked.

Leda's lips curled ever so slightly.

"No thank you, I think I can manage to find him for myself."

Leda's thoughts ran to an exciting future spent in the various pleasure resorts of the south with Geoffry Darmeny—Cannes, Monte Carlo, Nice—and when they should have tired of the Riviera there was a new world to explore over the seas, with the West Indies, Miami and Palm Beach, where neither of them had ever been. But wherever they went there would be race tracks, Casinos, Grand hotels, and cocktail bars.

She did not worry where the money for all this was to come from personally. Leda had seldom worried about money. Somebody had always given it to her when she needed it.

Geoffry would have to find it; Frank must be made to be generous.

Frank and Alfred Barnes were in the study, as Geoffry had predicted they would be. Leda noticed with a faintly disdainful expression that already they had poor Aunt Madge's safe open, and were surrounded by its contents. Couldn't wait a minute, could they?

"Betsy said you wanted to see me," she said.

Frank looked up with a preoccupied air.

"Oh, Yes. We're not going to Wales after all, Leda."

"So I gather."

"I don't suppose you mind?"

"Not in the least."

"Mr. Barnes wants me to go thru some things with him tonight. We've got rather a big job on our hands."

"I should imagine so. I haven't congratulated you yet, Frank."

Frank's face flushed with surprise at the unpleasant tone of her voice.

"I don't know that it's necessary," he said. "By the way, do you know where Geoffry is? Mr. Barnes will have to see him for a moment."

Leda shrugged her shoulders.

"He'll be sorry," she said. "But I'm afraid it's too late. I've just seen him go off. Of course I daresay he should have said good-by, but I don't suppose Geoffry is feeling very polite just now."

Leda turned away, but paused to say over her shoulder: "I'm feeling tired and I'm going to my room. I don't want any supper, or whatever the meal will be."

"Very well," said Frank.

She went to her room as she had said, made a few adjustments in her attire, and then picked up her bag and suitcase and started down the servants' staircase.

There was a door leading to the kitchen garden from a passage off the butler's pantry, and from there she could get into the woods and cut across to the drive.

In another two minutes she had joined Geoffry, who was waiting in his car beyond the turn, as he said he would be.

He wasn't at all easy about it, tho.

"Get in, quick," he said. He didn't sound very much like a lover, but he did sound impatient.

Leda got in and he started the car almost before she had settled herself.

"Is that the way you feel?" Geoffry asked disagreeably.

"Oh, darling, what does anything matter so long as we are together?"

"You'll find out pretty soon that lots of things matter," he replied.

"Geoffry, you really must try to cheer up."

They were whizzing thru the village now, and curious heads craned to follow their headlong progress.

"We'll have a good dinner somewhere quiet and some champagne. Only champagne will do for the mood I'm in," Leda said.

"Very likely I'll get drunk," said Geoffry. "I think, on the whole, we'd better not dine out. We'll have something sent up to my rooms."

"As you like," she replied. "It really does not make a pin's worth of difference to me."

Shirley put Betsy to bed, gave her supper and heard her prayers. Then she went home, hurrying as fast as she could thru the dusk lest she should encounter Geoffry. She had no idea that he had left Beechbourne.

Alfred Barnes and Frank had some sandwiches and coffee in the study, and Amelia Pennyfather entertained the two Scofields until it was time for them to catch the train they had finally decided to take. At first there had been some idea they would not go until morning. This was the last train they could get, and it was well after 9 o'clock when finally they did leave Beechbourne.

The house seemed very still and empty, and most of Amelia's elation evaporated with the feeling of loneliness that swept over her.

She felt she could not bear it, nor did she feel she could bear to seek the fusty solitude of her own room. It was human companionship she craved.

It was easy enough to make an errand to the kitchen quarters. Gibson was in his pantry putting away the silver, and in the staff sitting room there was only Mrs. Lemon and P. C. Sawyer, whose evening off duty it was. The others had gone early to bed.

Few Notables at Convention Visit Arlington

BY SUZETTE FARMER.

One place where out of town guests to the Democratic convention were not to be found yesterday afternoon was Arlington park. Gov. Keene Johnson of Kentucky was there, as was Gov. Herbert O'Connor of Maryland; Representative Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts was there with Mrs. Casey; Representative Philip Ferguson of Oklahoma was accompanied by Mrs. Ferguson, but that's about all the political notables to be found.

Mrs. Charles F. Shelden of New York City is in Chicago to attend the racing of the Classic stakes on Saturday. She is representing her uncle, Col. Edward R. Bradley, whose horse Bimelech is a favorite in that race. Mrs. Shelden was accompanied by Miss Marjorie Snyder of Pittsburgh, Mrs. William D. McBee of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Joseph Hyer of Chicago.

Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, a great racing enthusiast, had four guests from Milwaukee. But there, again, they had not come for the convention but to attend the races and the concert last night at Ravinia park. Mrs. McLennan, dressed most becomingly in a yellow, gray and white print with yellow jacket, introduced her guests as Mrs. Haskell Noyes, Mrs. Irving Seaman, Mrs. L. I. Smith, and Mrs. Elliott Ogden. Mrs. McLennan's daughter, Mrs. Woodbury Ober, looked delightfully cool in an all white outfit.

Blue was the predominating color in the Thomas E. Wilson box, where Mrs. Harry J. Williams was hostess. Her guests were Mrs. Bentley McCloud, Mrs. Rufus Jeffris, Mrs. Harold Tideman, Mrs. Thompson Wakeley, and Mrs. Harold Barnes, whose bright cerise jacket and hat afforded a striking contrast to the pastel dresses of her neighbors.

Mrs. Paul V. Galvin, in a blue and white polka dot dress and hat, was hostess with Mr. Galvin to Mrs. Edmund Brach in a light gray suit with pink stripes.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Worcester of Aurora announce the marriage on July 6 of their daughter, Martha Jane, and William Dana Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Dana Hooper of Fleetwood, N. Y., and Walpole, N. H. The ceremony took place in the Worcester home, the Rev. W. E. McCormack of the New England Congregational church officiating. A reception followed.

Mr. Hooper, a grandson of the late Dr. Franklin W. Hooper, former director of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences in New York, is a graduate of Cornell university and of the University of Michigan Law school. He and his bride, a graduate of Ferry Hall and of Wheaton college, will reside in Syracuse.

Finnish Envoy Gives Address in Aid of War Orphans League

Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish minister to the United States, spoke last night in the Stevens hotel at a meeting sponsored by the Help Finland Fund, Inc.

The minister, who was accompanied by Mrs. Procope, head of the America League for Finnish War Orphans, told an audience of 200 that the damage to civilian property during the Finnish-Russian war was 600 million dollars. The minister departed last night for Detroit, and will then tour Ohio.

The organization headed by Mrs. Procope is obtaining American "foster parents" for Finnish children orphaned by the war. The sum of $25 will care for some of the younger children for a year. The children will remain in Finland, with their "foster parents" contributing to their support.

"THE BISCUIT EATER"
The story is a delightful tale of Southern country life concerning people and sporting dogs. The quality is hardly less than distinguished, for in all departments—acting—authentic flavor—and dramatic deftness—it emerges as enchanting entertainment. Orange coconut cake begins with a one-egg batter. Instead of vanilla for flavoring, it uses grated orange rind. It is baked in a loaf, frosted with seven minutes frosting, and then sprinkled thickly with coconut. The result, if your oven is right and if you have measured accurately and mixed carefully, is fluffy, tender cake of good flavor, for tomorrow's luncheon dessert.

Orange Coconut Cake

[8 by 8 by 2 inch pan]

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
⅝ cup milk
2 teaspoons grated orange rind

Sift flour before measuring, and resift with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and sugar, add orange rind, and beat until light. Add unbeaten egg. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating batter until smooth after each addition. Bake in a greased pan at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. When cool, frost with seven minute frosting and sprinkle thickly with coconut.

SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING: Put 2 egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, 5 tablespoons water and 1½ teaspoons corn sirup in the top of a double boiler. Beat with rotary beater until mixed. Then place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly for 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from heat, add 1 teaspoon vanilla, and beat until thick enough to spread.

Meat Loaf

1½ pounds ground beef [lean]
½ pound pork sausage
2 cups bread crumbs
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1 pimiento, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg
1 cup milk

Combine ingredients and pack into a greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1½ hours.

This "complexion" salad is so named because it contains carrots and spinach and other things supposed to help you attain peaches and cream skin. I won't guarantee it to make any one beautiful overnight, but it is a good salad, a healthful one, and one low in calories.

Complexion Salad

[Serves Six]

1 tablespoon plain unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup hot water
3 tablespoons mild vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons onion juice
¾ cup grated or shredded raw carrot
2 tablespoons chopped spinach or parsley
¾ cup shredded cabbage

Soften gelatin in cold water and add salt and hot water. Stir until thoroly dissolved. Add vinegar, lemon juice and onion juice obtained by scraping cut surface of raw onion with a spoon. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in remaining ingredients. Turn into mold and chill. Unmold on lettuce, and serve with mayonnaise.

DEEP DISH GREEN APPLE PIE

Slice green apples into a deep greased casserole. Five cups of sliced apples will take ¾ to a cup of sugar. Sprinkle sugar over them, and add a sprinkling of cinnamon and nutmeg. Dot the top of the apples with butter and fit a single pastry crust, pricked to allow for the escape of steam, over the casserole. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes, and at 350 degrees for half an hour longer.

Universal Day—Don't let the little things annoy you. Meet the other fellow more than half way.

Harmonizing Numbers—If you are in a three year the 6 and 9 days will be important as days in which to fulfill the mission of expressing brotherly love, while you are using the whole year to express creatively your personality and talents. Concentrate on the latter on the 3-days, with a little broader emphasis on the 3 and 9-days.

Year Ahead—What did you do last year? Did you get something important under way? If so, let it percolate this year. It will be ready to serve up to the public in 1941 then, richer in quality.

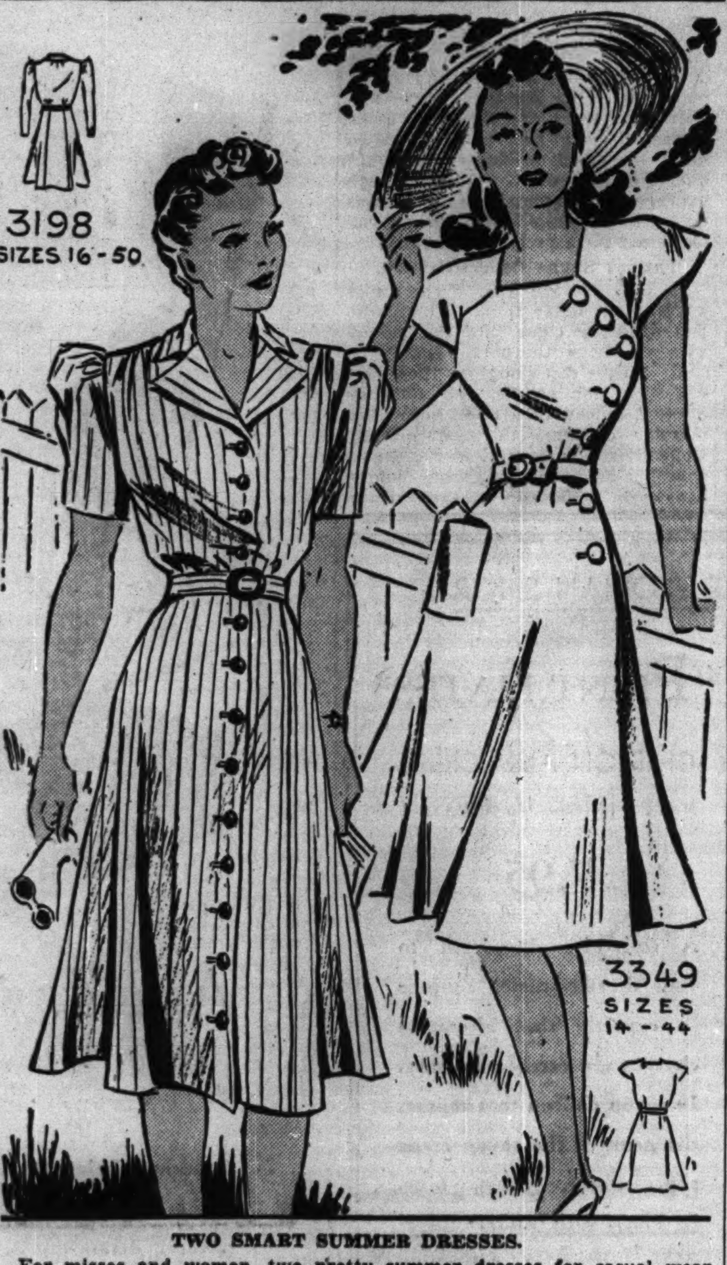
Two Pretty Summer Dresses



TWO SMART SUMMER DRESSES.

For misses and women, two pretty summer dresses for casual wear. The more matronly style is buttoned all the way down the front and was "born" for vertical stripes. There's a smart rever collarline and short puffed sleeves. The other frock has a square neckline, side buttoning in a novel fashion, a patch pocket, and kimono shoulders. Any pastel or white cotton of the easily tailored variety is in order.

Style No. 3198 is designed for size 16, and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3349 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material. Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

"No" Habit of Parents Is Too Common

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A woman I know who never has had any children has suddenly become very much interested in them since the children of several of her friends are getting past babyhood. She visits around among them a lot and sometimes discusses them with me, their cunning or funny ways, and also their psychology, the way they respond to the handling they receive.

"You don't think it's a good idea to say 'no' to children a lot, do you?" she asked me.

"No, I don't," I said.

"I used to think that advice didn't make sense," she said. "It seemed to me that if a child did something he shouldn't, the logical thing was to say 'no,' or 'don't,' or 'stop.' But lately I've begun to see what you mean. At two of the homes I visit, I hear nothing but 'no! no! no!' And they're the worst behaved children of any of my friends. But over at Sally's, for instance, it's so different. Their two little boys are as lively as crickets, but somehow Sally hardly ever seems to need to scold them or say 'no' to them. I notice that she uses other words. She'll say 'careful, son,' or 'those are mother's scissors. Here are yours, Ben,' or 'the paints would get your suit all dirty, Jack. Here are your crayons. You draw me a picture of the train we're going on while you're waiting for mother to get dressed.'"

You don't have to say "no" and "don't" to your children even if they seem to you mischievous and destructive. There are other ways, less negative and more satisfying, to deal with their desire for activity.

"How to Gain Obedience Without Punishment" is a booklet of interest to parents, teachers, and nurses. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

* THRU THE LOOKING GLASS *

We've just seen the deplorable result of one woman's attempt to change the color of her hair with her own fair hands. It's pretty bad. And while she has our sympathy she's also earned our irritation for being such a ninny as to try to do herself what even the professionals sometimes find difficult.

It's every woman's privilege to change her hair color if she wants to. But she's making a great mistake, we think, if she tries to do it herself. Hair dyeing is one of the most complicated and specialized branches of beauty culture, calling for a knowledge of chemistry, of hair texture and methods of application that the amateur just doesn't have.

There are different types of dyes and different types of rinses. The average woman doesn't know one from the other—doesn't know that each has its limitations and each its special tricks of application.

Dye your hair if you feel you must. Rather, have it dyed. You can't possibly do a good job yourself. Our own feeling is that gray hair is more attractive than dyed hair any day but we realize that not all women share this opinion.

If you come to the momentous decision that gray hair is simply not acceptable to you don't pick up a bottle of something and set to work. Go to the best operator you can track down, be prepared to pay a price that's reasonable for her skill—and remember, above all, that you're starting an endless series of trips to that operator. Your hair will need better home care than you ever gave it before in between dye applications and to stop what you started is not accomplished in five minutes.

Negro World's Fair Attracts Large Crowds

Brahms Cycle Is Continued by Rodzinski

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Beginning the second week of his fortnight as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia park, Artur Rodzinski last night presented two more items of his Brahms cycle and two near novelties.

To prove his understanding of Brahms' style and the precision of his workmanship Mr. Rodzinski could hardly have chosen two better works than the third symphony and the Haydn variations. Their architectural grandeur, their inexorable logic, the suavity of their progress from a pregnant beginning to an inevitable end—these are qualities which cannot properly be projected by any one who is either hazy as to the true character of the music or unscrupulous in the methods he uses to make an effect.

That in last night's performance these qualities of Brahms were fully apparent was due, in part at least, to Mr. Rodzinski's restraint. He refused to let the splendor of the moment actually at hand blind him to structure of the piece as a whole. His colorings, while never bleak, were of a sternness to match the character of the work. His tempi, even in a passage as tempting as that wonderful summing up at the end of the symphony's second movement, had a forward marching quality which forbade any sentimental lingering.

The near novelties were Roy Harris' rugged third symphony and Jaromir Weinberger's gracious variations and fugue on "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree."

The Harris symphony strengthened the impression it made on the occasion of its first local performance a few months ago. It is a sturdy, sincere, economically written work. Its dignity, its thoughtfulness and its sense of vast horizons are unmarred by a single mellifluous or catchy piece of writing.

Altho the new Weinberger piece will never become as popular as the polka and fugue from "Svanda" it has in some of its divisions a suggestion of the same type of exuberant melody and the same attractive musical surface. It stood last night in brilliant contrast to the spare, profoundly serious music which had preceded it.

On the advice of the physician who has been treating him for a finger injury, Vladimir Horowitz, renowned Russian pianist, has canceled his Ravinia appearance of July 27. Refunds to ticket holders will be made by the Ravinia committee.

Henrietta Chase Wins Success as Grant Park Soloist

BY CECIL SMITH.

Henrietta Chase, young soprano of the Chicago Opera company made her Grant park debut last evening with Richard Czerwonky and the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra. If any of her hearers had doubted the wisdom of venturing out to the park on so chilly a night, they quickly laid aside their doubts and joined in the hearty applause which indicated that Miss Chase's appearance was a substantial success.

Not many Michaëlas over at the Civic Opera house have sung the third act aria from Bizet's "Carmen" as well as Miss Chase did. She discovered the precise tempo at which the vocal line flows easily, and gave a performance of altogether superior musical coherence and naturalness.

Her voice is just right for this music for it is round, warm and vibrant without exceeding the limit of volume that is desirable in an operatic lyric soprano. She is in process of developing a charming half voice, and her singing was marked by moments of attractive delicacy.

This is not to say that her singing is flawless. In "Ritorna vincitor," from Verdi's "Aïda," she revealed that her voice sometimes still spreads when she remembers not to force it.

The audience recalled her for two encores, of which the first was a suavely written lyric song by Mr. Czerwonky, "Think of Me."

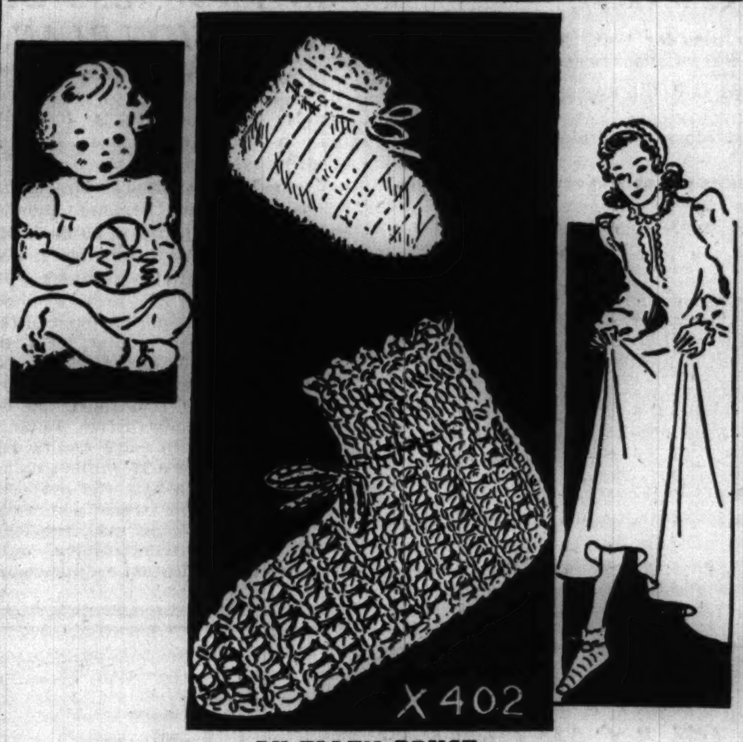
New Summer Theater Having Opening Tonight

The newest of the summer theaters in this area, the Michiana Shores theater, five minutes east of Michigan City, Ind., will be opened tonight. The theater, which barely is finished, stands on a knoll above Lake Michigan, on Route 12, surrounded by 28 acres of woodland. It seats 350 persons and has a stage as large as those of loop theaters, and is comfortable to the last degree, even to air conditioning. The eight foot murals over its imposing entrance are the work of Chicago artists and depict the story of Greek drama.

"Idiot's Delight" is opening a five week season. Lenore Ulric will play the leading rôle, supported by a Broadway cast. Various Broadway stars will appear with the professional resident cast. There will be a reception for Miss Ulric tonight.

To Keep Feet Comfortable



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The invalid with faulty circulation will welcome this delightfully warm and comfortable crocheted bed sock. It is a perfect fit and suitable for any size foot. From this same pattern, with a change of hooks and wool, one may make an ideal bootee for the infant. It is seldom that one finds such a perfect bed sock, which may be made in half an hour. One pair in an hour! Think of how many such gifts may be made in one day.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Most players seem to regard penalty doubles as a sort of one man enterprise, that is, West [for example] doubles one or two spades and East, who is void of spades and therefore feels his partner must be "loaded," joyfully accepts the double and looks forward to paying the rent from the huge penalty he is going to collect. Alas! Under such circumstances East's landlord is usually the sufferer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	1 diamond	1 heart	1 spade
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

East's leave-in of the double is not the only action that needs explaining. Readers also will wonder why West, holding a five card major suit, chose first to mention his five card minor. The fact is that there are two schools of thought on this problem. The larger school holds that the major suit must be bid first and the minor shown later, if convenient and if the hand is strong enough to risk a high level contract. The minority school insists that if one spade is bid and partner responds with two hearts or two diamonds the original bidder is on the spot: He dare not bid three clubs with this comparatively weak hand, and merely to rebid the spades is to suppress information about the other suit.

There is much to be said for and against both sides of this question, but since it would require a 10,000 word thesis, let us turn to the burning question of the day, the penalty double and East's acceptance thereof. Surely there can be no doubt that the double itself was in order. South had bid West's best suit. West had a singleton, a good defensive factor, in the suit his partner had bid freely. From the viewpoint of West he and his partner might have a complete misfit [he knew nothing about East's strong club support] and if this were so, North-South probably had just as bad a misfit. In short, every condition favored a prompt double on West's part.

But the same cannot be said of East's leave-in. Without even one spade, he would be unable to lead the suit to clear away possible ruffers in the dummy, and it is rare indeed that the doubler himself has such solidity in the trump suit that he can afford to lead it. Moreover, East had excellent support, so far unannounced, for the suit West had bid originally. It was highly probable that there was a game in clubs or no trump available to East-West. If so, they would have to defeat South three tricks in a contract for only one-odd, to compensate for the abandoned game.

As it happened the precise lay of cards would have defeated a three no trump or five club contract [if, against the latter, North opened his singleton club], but this would not have been as humiliating as the actual result, which was that South fulfilled his one spade doubled contract.

Girl Athletes to Give Camp Fund Benefit

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Loop workers and girl athletes are going to bat, both literally and in the figurative sense, for children on the vacation list of the United Charities. On Wednesday, July 31, six teams will play softball in St. Philip stadium, Kedzie avenue and Van Buren street, to raise money for financing summer outings for underprivileged youngsters.

Already the United Charities has sent 504 mothers and children to Camp Algonquin, the Fox river resort maintained with the aid of TRIBUNE readers; 280 to Arden Shore camp, 17 children to Holiday home and 111 boys and girls to farms in Illinois and Iowa. With funds from the softball benefit, more will be sent to camp and many crippled and semi-invalided children who may not venture out of the city will be taken on outings to the parks, zoos and beaches.

Teams participating in the meet will be the State Street Stores All-Stars and the Loop Bankers, the Loop All-Stars and the Editorial All-Stars and two nines from the girls' Major league.

The Tribune Charities, Inc., gratefully acknowledges a gift of $20 from I. D. Goss and another of $2.50 from a donor identified as "E. S." to the Camp Algonquin fund. A total of $357.69 has been given thus far this season by TRIBUNE readers.

Free ice for the poor is another important summertime charity to which readers have been contributing for more than a score of years. Yesterday gifts to that fund mounted to $179.43 with contributions from:

AIRPORT TO GET EQUIPMENT FOR BLIND LANDINGS

Beam System Will Allow All-Weather Operation.

An airplane instrument landing system will be placed in operation early next year at Chicago airport, it was announced yesterday. The Civil Aeronautics authority on Monday signed a contract for manufacture and installation of the system at six cities, of which Chicago is one.

Air line officials say the new equipment solves one of the oldest problems in commercial aviation—how to get a plane down safely when the ceiling is zero. The equipment is manufactured by the International Telephone Development company, a research subsidiary of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation.

Send Out Narrow Beams.

Pilots who have used the device explain its operation this way: Two transmitters of ultra high frequency are installed at the airport. These send out waves in narrow beams similar to the directional beams now used to guide planes from airport to airport.

The shape of the beams is that of a tilted letter J with only a slightly curving hook and its shank rising at an angle from the surface of the field. The tilted shank serves as a "glide path" into the field and the slight hook assures leveling off for a landing.

Planes coming in to land are equipped with a dial with vertical and horizontal cross hairs in front of an image of an airplane which is free to move. As the pilot approaches the field on the directional beam he crosses a "marker" or cone of radio waves which he recognizes by a light on his instrument board and a peculiar hum in his earphones.

This warns him of his approach to the beam. About 1,500 feet beyond he arrives at the second marker at the boundary of the field. He turns off his motor there and, keeping the cross hairs centered on the image of the plane, glides in to a safe landing, leveling off as he reaches the curving beam at the bottom of the glide.

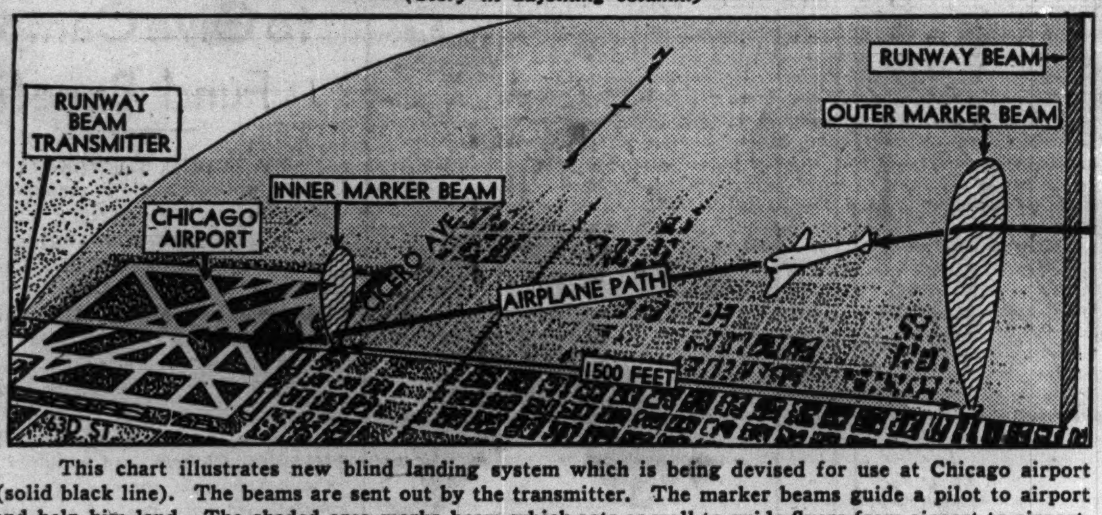
Tried Out at Indianapolis.

Since 1938 the CAA has been experimenting with the system at Indianapolis, under every kind of flying conditions. Results were so favorable that engineers decided to give it a test in actual operation. The contract signed Monday will provide installations in New York, Cleveland, Kansas City, Los Angeles, and Fort Worth as well as in Chicago. The total cost will be $240,000.

One of the chief values of the new system will be to relieve congestion over the airport in bad weather. Under present conditions planes are compelled to cruise around until weather clears for a safe landing. With a beam pilots can bring their ships in without delay.

New Radio Beam for Blind Flying

(Story in adjoining column.)



This chart illustrates new blind landing system which is being devised for use at Chicago airport (solid black line). The beams are sent out by the transmitter. The marker beams guide a pilot to airport and help him land. The shaded area marks beam which acts as wall to guide flyers from airport to airport.

Ask Permission for New Bus Line in North Avenue

The Illinois commerce commission took under advisement yesterday a request by the Chicago and West Towns railway for permission to install a motor bus line in North avenue between Narragansett avenue and Wolf road, to provide transportation for residents of recently opened subdivisions.

PREPARE REPORT ON PROGRESS OF TRACTION PLANS

Traction representatives met yesterday to prepare a report on progress of transit unification plans for submission to the federal court by next Wednesday.

The meeting followed Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe's demand Monday that a report of progress be filed. He told attorneys for bondholders that unless a substantial agreement on a unified franchise has been reached, he will refuse to order payment of the surface lines' semiannual bond interest of $1,818,000 due Aug. 1.

Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, yesterday reaffirmed the desire of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to help solve the transit tangle by making a 25 million dollar loan to finance in part the proposed 102 million dollar transit improvement program. Jones said, the RFC could make no commitment until terms of the unification ordinance are known.

MOTOR SCOOTER SKID FATAL TO GROCERY CLERK

Automobiles took no lives in Chicago during the 24 hours ended at 4 p. m. yesterday. But a motor scooter caused the death of Samuel Galena, 26 years old. Galena, a grocery clerk living at 6748 South Honore street, was trying to make a U-turn near his home when the scooter skidded, throwing him to the pavement. He died in Holy Cross hospital.

A coroner's jury recommended yesterday that Hulbert Clark, 44 years old, 1506 East 69th street, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter. Testimony at an inquest showed that Mrs. Florence Jeffery, 35, of 1642 East 76th street, was killed when a car driven by her husband, David, and one driven by Clark collided. The accident occurred July 6 at 75th street and Stony Island avenue.

Peter Quirino, whose Chicago address was given as 541 North Ogden avenue, was killed yesterday in an auto accident at Auburn, Cal.

Up to 4 p. m. 454 persons had been killed in traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 342 were killed in Chicago, where 12,142 were injured in the same period.

SIX BOOKMAKERS FINED.

LEAVES SCENE OF 3 CAR CRASH; GETS JAIL TERM

Louis Melichar was ordered to jail for 30 days yesterday after witnesses told Judge Gibson E. Gorman this story: Melichar's automobile struck another car at 16th street and Ashland avenue last Friday. The car that was struck caught fire, and the flames spread to a car parked a few feet away. Melichar drove away.

Melichar is 45 years old. He lives at 1803 South Lombard avenue, Berwyn. He was arrested when he went to the Berwyn police station to inquire about the accident.

Puffer Announces Winners in Stickney School Election

Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, yesterday announced winners of an election held Saturday to name five members of the board of education of Stickney Community High school. The winners were Marion F. Conway, Edward Neumann, Albert Holub, Arthur Mitchel, and Richard G. Heeschen. There were 13 candidates in the election.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By HOMER HEISZ

Good Rain Needed.

July 16, 1940.

ALTHO harvesters at the Du Page county farm are hurrying to get in the hay while the weather is favorable for curing it and before the wheat is ready to cut, they would be glad to see a good rain. Corn, soy beans, and pastures are beginning to need rain. There were some heavy rains last week in scattered areas near the farm, but only light showers there.

Crops have not yet begun to suffer, but corn has reached the stage where it requires a lot of moisture. Growth of the plants likely will be checked unless there are rains soon.

Pastures still are furnishing plenty of grazing for the farm live stock, altho much of the bluegrass is going to seed. Many of the plants started heading out three weeks ago. Cattle and horses seldom eat bluegrass that has gone to seed until after it has been killed by frost in the fall. Then they like it.

Thistles Bad This Year.

The pastures have not been clipped with mowers this summer except in spots infested with Canada thistles. Some years the bluegrass pastures are cut for hay, but this will not be this summer because of the abundance of better hay in the meadows.

A big problem this summer has been to keep down Canada thistles in pastures and fields of small grain. Workers say the thistles are worse than ever before. There were some in the alfalfa and clover that was made into silage. The plants were late in developing and new patches keep showing up, often in fields where they never had grown until this year. The plants are cut as fast as they are found to keep them from going to seed.

Infest City Lots.

Thistles that have not been cut are blooming now and some already are shedding seeds to be blown about by the winds. Much vacant property in Chicago and suburbs is badly infested. There are lots of Canada thistles on farm lands too, but farmers apparently do a better job of controlling them than do town and city property owners. There are fewer thistles, considering area, on farm lands than in towns.

Altho Canada thistles have been outlawed in Illinois since 1872, officials of the state department of agriculture estimate that the pests are growing on 1,000 acres of land in the state for every acre that was infested with them when the law was passed.

The Canada thistle is a perennial weed that spreads by seeds and from the roots. It spreads rapidly and is hard to control, once it gets a start. The seeds, equipped with a sort of parachute, may be carried long distances by the winds, accounting largely for the gradual spread of the pest to new areas each year.

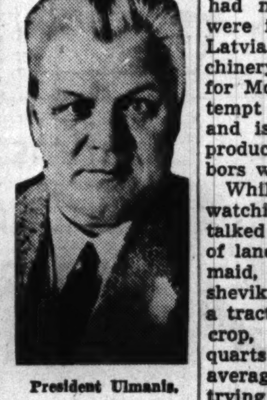
RED PARLIAMENT IN LATVIA TO SET PRESIDENT'S FATE

People Bow to Soviet, but Want Him Unharmed.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 15 [Delayed].—Latvia's new Russian sponsored parliament will convene this week to decide the fate of President Karl Ulmanis, farmer boy, who became president and who was once a lecturer at the University of Nebraska. Ulmanis today is living in seclusion in the Riga castle.



President Ulmanis.

The vicious attacks against the president which appeared in the Latvian press when the new editors took charge have ceased. Ulmanis has fulfilled his bitter task of signing decrees of the government appointed by Moscow to rule the country until the elections of the last two days had been held.

Brought Prosperity to Nation.

Under his leadership the Latvian Farmers party always has been a major figure in Latvian politics and, when a corrupt parliament brought the state to bankruptcy in 1934, he seized power and converted Latvia into the prosperous little nation which today is helping feed Russia, whose collectivized farming system has promoted famine instead of prosperity.

The Latvians are afraid their president may be brought before a packed court on a charge of usurping state power. The demonstrations against Ulmanis, organized during the first few days of the soviet occupation, represented only a small fraction of the population.

All persons I have talked with since the Russians arrived are willing to accept the Moscow administration with resignation but on the condition that their president is unharmed. All say the good he has done the country far outweighs his mistakes.

Boosted Farming Class.

The president told me after he seized power that his policy was going to be devoted to making a strong and prosperous farming class for, he said, when the farmer had money all had money. When other countries were importing cannons and tanks, Latvia was importing farming machinery. The result is evident today, for Moscow has promised not to attempt to collectivize Latvian farms and is eager to keep up the high productivity of Latvia and her neighbors who followed similar policies.

While traveling in the country watching the voting yesterday, I talked with a farmer with 110 acres of land. He has a farm hand and a maid, which, in the eyes of the bolsheviks, makes him a kulak. He owns a tractor, and besides a diversfied crop, his farm produces about 127 quarts of milk daily. This is a high average. A communist agitator was trying to persuade him to start a collectivized farm in his community.

Farmer Shuns Collectivization.

He ridiculed the idea. "The soviet government today is like a man who has suddenly come into the possession of three thorobred cows," he said. "They can slaughter them and eat meat for awhile, and then go hungry, or can feed them and allow them to continue to produce milk. Collectivization in the Baltic states would slaughter everything which has been achieved in these three countries. You cannot turn a farmer into a hired hand and expect efficiency."

Citizens of the Baltic states cast a high vote in their elections Sunday and today. The elections, however, were not political contests, as all the candidates were handpicked by Moscow. The candidates were mostly persons unknown to the general public, but will legislate Russia's unknown program for these countries. These puppet parliaments will meet

Altho house owners had been ordered to purchase red flags for display on the election days, I noticed in Riga that Latvian flags outnumbered the red flags 25 to 1.

THE TRIBUNE has been informed that in Lithuania the Red army garrisons include 10 infantry divisions, 10 air regiments consisting of about 1,000 combat and bombing planes, a tank brigade, and four cavalry divisions—a total strength of approximately 240,000 to 250,000 men.

In Latvia there are reported to be between 10 and 12 divisions of infantry, but I think this figure is exaggerated. There are also said to be six tank brigades, one cavalry division, and between 500 and 600 planes.

JURY FIXING CASE EXPECTED TO GO TO JURORS TODAY

The so-called jury fix trial of George Crane, James A. Creed, Sam Orlando, and John Howe Jr. is expected to reach the hands of the jury in Judge James F. Fardy's Criminal court today.

Charles A. Bellows and Joseph Roach of the defense counsel finished their arguments yesterday. Harold Levy began the final defense arguments later in the day. He will conclude today, and will be followed by Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright for the prosecution.

The defendants are accused of trying to fix a jury that acquitted Orlando, a Democratic precinct captain in the 11th ward, in an election fraud case last December. Creed is superintendent of city dumps. Crane was Orlando's attorney. Howe, a discharged state policeman under sentence for robbery, was taken into custody yesterday when his stay of mittimus expired.

ALL SOUTH BEND JOINS IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL POLL

AND THEY VOTE STRAIGHT—FOR OLD NOTRE DAME

40,000 Ballots Put Zest in Contest.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., July 16.—You can buy a pair of socks, a tooth brush, an automobile or almost anything else in South Bend today. You can even buy beer. But first you must sign an All-Star football ballot.

South Bend, the home of Notre Dame, is trooping to the polls to put over a straight "Fighting Irish" ticket in the nation-wide contest being conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 391 newspapers and radio stations, to select the starting line-up for the All-Stars in the game against the Green Bay Packers on Soldiers' field Aug. 29.

Forty thousand "Fighting Irish" All-Star petitions have been distributed thruout the city by the Notre Dame club of St. Joseph Valley, an alumni organization. Pretty girls operate booths in theater lobbies; Boy Scouts are making house to house canvasses; playgrounds directors at the public parks are conducting a contest, and at factory pay windows workmen sign ballots before they reach the cashier. South Bend has made up its mind that it will take the Notre Dame system to beat the Packers and is out to prove it.

Elkhart Truth Prints Petitions.

The petitions, printed by the Elkhart, Ind., Truth, one of the newspapers affiliated with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the poll, carry the names of 12 senior members of Notre Dame's football squad, a complete team with an extra half back. They are:

Ends—Bill Kerr and John Kelly.
Tackles—Frank Albert and Tad Harvey.
Guards—Joe DeFranco and Chuck Riffle.
Center—John McIntyre.
Quarter Back—Steve Sitko.
Half backs—Lou Zontini and Harry Stevenson or Ben Sheridan.
Full back—Joe Thesing.

Fans are requested to make a choice between Stevenson and Sheridan and place a check mark on the ballot if they wish to vote the straight "Fighting Irish" ticket. For those who have other ideas or affiliations there is a blank lineup. Tabulators in the Elkhart Truth office do not expect to find anything but check marks on ballots, tho.

Mayor Votes "Straight."

Carmi Belmont, who has been made chairman of the campaign by Louis V. Bruggner, president of the St. Joseph Valley club, has no idea how many votes have been cast to date. The tabulating has been left up to the Elkhart Truth, which sends a truck over to campaign headquarters in the Max Adler Clothing Co. store every afternoon. Belmont's assistants are Jerry Hoar, a star hurdler and high jumper who was a classmate at Notre Dame of Coach Eddie Anderson of Iowa and Ald. Roger Kiley of Chicago, and Gilbert Hart, manager of the Adler store.

Mayor James I. Pavey endorsed the campaign by voting the straight Notre Dame ticket, with this comment: "South Bend is the football capital of the world and should play a prominent part in the All-Star poll. I heartily endorse the efforts of the St. Joseph Valley club and the Elkhart Truth to place all Notre Dame men, who are eligible, on the All-Star squad. I don't believe any greater honor can come to the players themselves, and I am grateful to the St. Joseph Valley club and the Truth for giving South Bend fans a chance to participate and prove their loyalty."

They Don't Miss a Bet.

A. Bermen, who has been supplying South Bend with sports goods since the days of George Gipp, sent out

Jenkins and Armstrong Match Punches Tonight in New York

New York, July 16 [Special].—Fistic history has a way of traveling at a speedy pace and tomorrow Henry Armstrong, who not so long ago was boxing's hotshot among the smaller fellows, will meet the challenge of the ring's newest sensation.

There's no title involved in the welterweight champion's 12 round bout with Lew Jenkins, the one time soldier from Texas, but 30,000 will be seated in the Polo Grounds when the conqueror of Lou Ambers shuffles out to meet his dusky opponent. Jenkins won recognition in New York recently as lightweight champion after his knockout victory over Ambers.

Jenkins, who made Ambers his eighth consecutive knockout victim, will be five pounds lighter than the welterweight champion, who will come in at 140 pounds. After boxing with only mediocre success in Chicago rings, Jenkins came to New York and battled his way to the top. He made his first New York start in July of last year.

Armstrong Has Weight Edge.

Armstrong, in four years as a topnotcher, during which time he also has held and relinquished the lightweight and featherweight titles, has scored 46 knockouts. Even tho his manager, Eddie Mead, has admitted that the welterweight king is past his peak, he has been installed as a favorite over Jenkins. Jenkins' backers are being offered 8½ to 5, and those who are lined up with Armstrong must lay down $10 to get $5 in return.

Because of the rivals' impressive punching records, a knockout was believed highly probable. Promoter Mike Jacobs estimated the receipts would surpass $160,000.

Jenkins said tonight he was confident of winning by a knockout in three or four rounds. Mead ventured the opinion that his man would win in six or seven rounds.

Texans to Cheer Jenkins.

Jenkins will have a cheering gallery of 500 Texans, who came to New York to watch him in his most important battle. The consensus is that Jenkins must win in the early rounds or face the danger of being outfinished by Armstrong, who has amazing stamina.

Much of the fight's appeal is due to the contrasting styles of the rivals. Armstrong's forte is to keep his opponent confused with a barrage of punches dealt from every angle. Against the Texan, he is expected to keep crowding, punch for the body, and stay away from Jenkins' long range shots.

The fight will begin at 8:45 o'clock [Chicago daylight time].

Henry Armstrong. Lew Jenkins.

PICK CHALLEDON AS FAVORITE TO WIN HANDICAP

Boston, Mass., July 16 (AP).—Altho he has made only one start this season, W. L. Brann's Challedon appears destined to play the favorite's role for the second straight year tomorrow in the $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs.

The great 4 year old will carry top weight of 130 pounds when he matches speed with 12 rivals for a mile and an eighth. A year ago, Challedon started as an even money favorite and ran fourth behind Fighting Fox, Pompoon, and Burning Star.

Challedon probably will go postward as an odds-on choice.

The Brown Star, hailed as the champion of 1939, probably will parade postward with Aethelwold, a stablemate. His most threatening rivals appear to be George D. Widener's Eight Thirty, in at 126 pounds, and the Belair stud's Isolater.

Among the other thorobreds listed to go were the Circle M. ranch's Big Pebble, the Greentree stable's Hash; Fenelon, the other half of the Belair entry; Mrs. E. Denemark's Upstream, the Brandon stable's Pass Out, the Falaise stable's War Dog, the Dixianna stable's Star Boarder, and Glen Riddle's The Finest, in lightest at 103 pounds.

HAGEN'S GOLFERS TAKE 3 TO 1 LEAD OVER SARAZEN'S

Detroit, Mich., July 16 (AP).—Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup squad won three of the four Scotch foursomes over Gene Sarazen's team today to lead at the end of the first day's play with the challengers at Oakland Hills.

Byron Nelson and Harold [Jug] McSpaden routed Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson of Sarazen's forces, 8 and 7. Dick Metz and Henry Picard won from Harry Cooper and Ed Oliver, 5 and 4, and Horton Smith and Paul Runyan defeated Craig Wood and Billy Burke, 2 up, for the other two.

Shooting three under par 33 on the outgoing nine this afternoon, Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret salvaged one match for the challengers with a 1 up triumph over Ralph Guldahl and Sam Snead.

YANKS, OR YANKS THAT WERE, LOSE TO THE SOX AGAIN

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—The White Sox, who once dreaded entering the Yankee stadium but now are in love with the place, took the world champions apart again today in the finale of the three game series. Behind the sparkling pitching of John Dungan Rigney the Chicago troops slugged their way to a 5 to 1 decision, making their fifth success out of eight attempts this year on the local premises, a far cry from the one victory they accomplished last year out of 11 efforts.

Rigney Does a Neat Job.

To Mr. Rigney the title holders were just nine fellows swinging impotent bats. They compiled a half dozen hits, one of which was an extra base one tainted by an outfield lapse. Three of the half dozen were crowded into the fourth inning when the Yanks scored their lone run. After escaping from this slight display of one time Yankee power, Rigney turned out five concluding innings in which only two reached base, both on singles. He walked nobody and 15 retirements on fly balls, foul and fair, gave fairly convincing proof that his fast ball was jumping.

The Sox put Rigney in comfortable circumstances by giving early demonstrations of their lack of respect for Mario [Lefty] Russo. They slapped the young man four times in the second for two runs. They discovered a quick way to get another pair of tallies in the fourth. Thereafter, except in one instance, they were none too robust with their bats. The exception was the homer knocked into the seats by Joe Kuhel in the fifth inning, his 15th of the season. It was his second homer in two days.

Wright Starts 2 Run Rally.

The Sox were guilty of a bit of baffling base running in the second, but nevertheless hit enough to score twice. Wright started it with a single picked up by Crosetti in deep short and Wright scooted to third when Appling produced one of his specialties to right for a single. Wright scored while Tresh was beating out a slow bounder to Rolfe. Appling was thrown out sliding into third when the hit and run play missed fire with Kennedy at bat. Then Kennedy grounded out and Rigney singled to get Tresh home.

Whereas the Sox used four hits for two runs in the second they got the same on two safeties in the third. One of them was for extra bases and that's what made the difference. After Kreevich had been thrown out, Kuhel

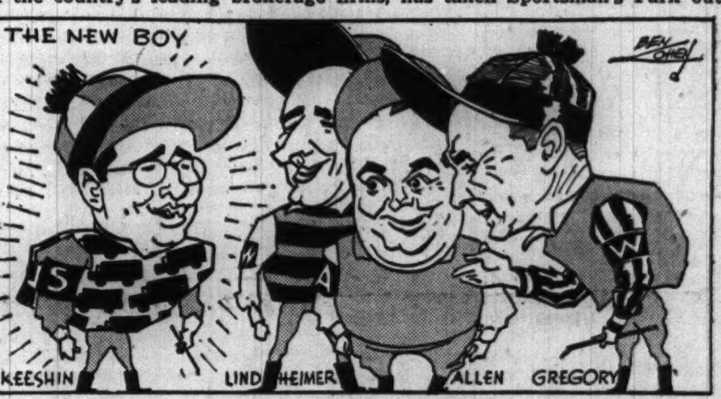
In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

CHICAGO'S sporting public, which is always ready to make new friends, welcomes another group to its circle—John L. Keeshin and his associates, who have taken over the Sportsman's Park race track. . . . For the third time in recent seasons, prominent business men are stepping from their accustomed fields to engage in the promotion of horse racing. . . . Several years ago Walter Gregory, a hotel executive, and Ben Lindheimer, a real estate operator, purchased Washington Park from Matt J. Winn, who has been primarily a horseman thru most of his long and genial life. . . . Last April a group of express company executives and Board of Trade men headed by John D. Allen acquired Arlington Park from a group which had established it as a rendezvous of society folk. . . . And now Keeshin, the head of the nation's largest trucking concern, acting in coöperation with an assistant attorney general of New Jersey and the president of one of the country's leading brokerage firms, has taken Sportsman's Park out of the hands of a group which was associated with some of the unsavory aspects of big city life, tho in justice to the outgoing régime it must be said that it was never accused of any irregularities in the operation of the track. . . . In the conduct of both Washington Park and Arlington Park the present owners have demonstrated that race tracks may be operated successfully on the same business principles that are effective in the running of hotels, real estate agencies, express companies and commodity exchanges. . . . Each year Washington Park has shown substantial increases in attendance, betting handle and purse distribution. . . . This season Arlington Park's business is up an average of 30 per cent daily over what it was under the supervision of its more experienced former operators. . . . So Keeshin may find that the same things that make a trucking organization go around will run a race track, too. . . . This department wishes him luck.



Frankie Frisch insists that his frequent run-ins with umpires are not due to an irascible disposition but to the fact that he has better eyes than any umpire who ever lived. . . . Clarence Eurist, a property man for Bette Davis in her current Hollywood movie, "The Letter," is a former water polo coach at Dartmouth and an ex-swimming instructor at Honolulu. . . . Win Pedersen, Minnesota tackle, who is among the leading candidates for the All-Star squad, will be married in Chicago Aug. 30, the day after the All-Americans play the Green Bay Packers in Chicago's seventh annual charity football game. . . . Pete Arboit, Notre Dame's only monogram winner at left end who was available for the 1940 eleven, has had to leave summer school because of inflammatory rheumatism and will not be back next fall. . . . The Potomac Boat club in Washington, D. C., is 71 years old. . . . When a battle threatened the other day, George Selkirk of the Yankees headed for the scene at top speed, then stopped dead, removed his new store teeth and put them under the first base for safety.

Sweet Impulsiveness.

I used to send cold shivers up your spine
Scratching my pencil on my slate in school;
I did it purposely and with design,
Knowing that I'd be called a "little fool";
I liked to see the light flashing in your eye,
And watch deep crimson creep into your cheek;
At other times you seemed so very shy
That we who loved you seldom heard you speak.

And I have often wondered if today
Those placid eyes of yours sometimes strike fire,
Making your hidden loveliness betray
Those little moments of your sudden ire;
Moments that were as fond as a caress
To us who loved your sweet impulsiveness.

OLSEN YIELDS ONLY 6 HITS TO BEAT GUMBERT

Cavarretta's Single in 7th Scores 2.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Vern Olsen, youthful Cub lefty, yesterday presided at his second 2 to 0 victory in five days, this time victimizing the New York Giants to give the Cubs three out of four in the series. The Cubs triumphed on a hitting diet of four singles off Harry Gumbert, only one of which, a foxy shot by Phil Cavarretta with the bases full in the seventh inning, figured in the scoring.

Gabby Hartnett continued in his remarkable rôle as a good luck charm and master pitching encourager, altho a bust offensively. The Cubs have won five and lost three since opening their home stand. Gabby has caught all five of the victories, none of the losses. The boss man was a flop offensively because he hit into a double play and struck out twice in three chances. But what difference did that make?

Evens Season Series.

The success evened the Cub-Giant series at a half dozen each. The Chicagoans have won 43 National league games to 42 by the New Yorkers, but are still in fourth place, three games behind the Giants. The Cubs have lost 40, the Giants only 33.

Olsen yielded only six hits, one more than he yielded to the Bees last Friday. He would have yielded only five, but for the fact Bill Herman underestimated Babe Young's speed and held the ball too leisurely on a bouncer in the eighth.

Four double plays by the Cubs, one more than the Giants made, and a great play by Cavarretta, with the bases loaded in the sixth inning, thwarted the Giants. The Cubs' infield play around second base sparkled, as testified by the fact Bobby Mattick made five putouts and nine assists at short, and Herman made three putouts and five assists at second. There were only two chances in the outfield for the Cubs. Bill Nicholson grabbed one of these, but dropped the other for one of the Cubs' two errors.

Jurges Gets Double.

A double play which erased the Cubs in the first inning didn't make much difference, but the one which nipped them in the second inning destroyed an excellent scoring opportunity. Nicholson walked at the start of the second, stopped at second on Hank Leiber's single and took third on Cavarretta's fly to Frank Demaree. Then Hartnett tapped into a double play, Burgess Whitehead to Bill Jurges to Young.

The Giants' big threat came after two were out in the sixth. Young doubled to center for the fourth New York hit, after which Danning was given an intentional pass. Mel Ott walked after a three and two count, loading the bases. Cuccinello then sent one along the right foul line which looked like a certain double or a possible triple until Cavarretta grabbed it with a miraculous back hand stab and trotted to first to retire the side.

Cubs Break Thru.

Here's the way the Cubs broke thru in the seventh: Herman drew his second pass. Galan bunted and on a fielder's choice Danning made a bad throw to second, Herman reaching that base and Galan first on the error. Nicholson forced Galan, Gumbert to Jurges, Herman stopping at third. Leiber walked, loading the bases. With the infield pulled in, Cavarretta artistically poked a single to short left, Herman and Nicholson scoring. Hartnett executed his second successive whiff and Gumbert tossed out Mattick.

120 QUALIFIERS TO BE PICKED IN SWIMMING RACES

Youths from Three States Already Entered.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

One hundred and twenty boys and girls will win gold qualifying medals in the preliminary 100 yard free style swimming races July 27 and 28. These contestants then will be eligible for the 10 championship races on Aug. 4 in the Lincoln park lagoon.

All swimmers who prove they can swim 100 yards, regardless of how they finish in the preliminary competition, will be given a souvenir button. To be eligible, however, for the trials your entry blank must be forwarded to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE not later than midnight Monday. If your letter or card is postmarked before that time you will be permitted to take part in the 11th Chicagoland races sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Card to Be Admission.

The entry blank, which is printed for individual entries, may be used. Team entries may be submitted in a group by the manager, trainer, or coach. It is important that the age of each swimmer be correctly listed and the home address be given. Each contestant will receive a postcard giving time of the meet, a racing number, and this card also will admit him or her to the pool without charge.

The four sectional meets July 27 and 28 are held under the sanction of the Central association of the Amateur Athletic union and with the cooperation of the Chicago park district and the Cook county commissioners who also control the forest preserve district.

In other years entries have been received from at least four states, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana. Infrequently, other states have been represented. There is no geographical restriction, but the majority of contestants will come from Chicago and the immediate suburbs with a scattering entry from downstate Illinois, the Calumet region in Indiana, and southern Wisconsin.

Entries from 3 States.

Entries have been received from Peoria, Joliet, Aurora, Ill.; Hammond, Gary, and Michigan City, Ind., and from Milwaukee. Information on the 100 yard races has been sent to the Chicago park district, municipal playgrounds, and board of education playgrounds. The five age classes will accommodate all boys and girls so the races offer a fair chance to win qualifying medals.

Trials will be held a week from Saturday in the Cermak pool, Lyons, Ill., and in the Sherman park pool, 52d street and Racine avenue. On the following day the trials will be held in the Whealan pool, Devon and Milwaukee avenues, and in the California park pool, 3901 North California avenue.

Uhle, Dallas Pitcher, Is Purchased by Tigers

Dallas, Tex., July 16 (AP).—Robert [Bob] Uhle, star lefthander for the Dallas Rebels, was sold today to the Detroit Tigers, President George Schepps of the Dallas Baseball club said. Uhle, who leads the Texas league in strikeouts, will remain with the Dallas club during the remainder of the season. He has won 10 games and lost 10.

Five Teams Are Threats in Humboldt Park Bike Race

Five teams entered in the one hour team race tonight on the Humboldt park bicycle bowl share the position as favorites in the field of a dozen. The teams of Bob Cass and Ed Carfagnini, two former national titleholders and the Pesek brothers, Fred and Erwin, have won previous races. The other three teams which placed in the hour race are Bill Jacoby and Jim Drake, Tommy Hughes and Mike Abt, Bill Keuhn and Sears Taylor.

Wilde, Clark, 6 Others Win in Junior Golf

Favorites, including the defending champion and qualifying medalist, reached the quarter-finals of the Chicago district closed junior golf tournament at Park Ridge yesterday. Earl Wilde, 1939 winner, defeated Robert Brooks of North Shore, 3 and 2, and Bill Ludolph, Aurora, 6 and 4.

Gordon Clark of Hinsdale, the medalist and captain-elect of the Michigan golf team, eliminated Bob Henry of Midlothian, 7 and 6 and came back in the afternoon to conquer Bob Geddes of Kildeer, 9 and 7. Geddes won his first round match over Murray Houston of Midlothian, 1 up.

Devonald Wins on 20th.

David Devonald of Midlothian participated in the only extra hole match of the tournament when he defeated Ed Harrington of Flossmoor 1 up, on the 20th hole in the first round. Devonald was then sent to the side lines by Jack Culp Jr., of Ridge, 5 and 4.

Shaw McCutcheon of Onwentsia entered the quarter-finals by disposing of Chuck Barrett, of the Northwestern university golf team, 4 and 2.

Sanford Rissman of Bryn Mawr turned in the best round of the day when he shot a 75 to defeat Bert Waldeman of Bryn Mawr, 1 up in the second round.

Taylor Upsets Blossom.

W. R. Taylor of Acacia upset Douglas Blossom of Onwentsia, 1 up, in an afternoon match.

FIRST ROUND.

Bill Ludolph, Aurora, defeated Bob Oakley, South Shore, 7 and 5.

W. R. Taylor, Acacia, defeated Wetson Rehfield, Kildeer, 4 and 3.

Gordon Sibley, Skokie, defeated John P. Nau, Sunset Ridge, 2 and 1.

TEN WISCONSIN YACHTS TO ENTER MACKINAC RACE

New craft entered in the Chicago to Mackinac Island yacht race, which is to start Saturday, will include the Tahuna, 44 foot yawl owned by Commodores Joseph Moller and Henry Babson. The Tahuna left Sturgeon Bay, Wis., last night on its maiden trip, a 225 mile cruise to Chicago.

At least 10 Wisconsin yachts are expected to compete in the Mackinac Island test, among them the Gloriant, Anthony Herrmann's Q class sloop which won the Universal [racing] division honors last year for the Racine Yacht club. Tar Baby, Milwaukee's only 10 meter class cutter, has been entered by Fred Stratton for the first time since 1937.

Ralph Friedman of the Milwaukee Yacht club has entered his 81 foot ketch-rigged motor sailer, the Tamaris. Harry Zieman of the South Shore Yacht club, Milwaukee, will compete with his new coastwise cutter, Carolyn.

Talked About Wins Another Arlington Race

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Talked About, the horse which Trainer Euall Wyatt claimed from the Calumet stable last month, continued to perform in brilliant fashion yesterday by outrunning the Woolford farm's Unerring in the Libertyville purse, a six furlong dash, at Arlington Park.

Since acquiring this 6 year old horse for $4,000, Wyatt has sent him to the post three times and has watched him come home on top twice. In the other start he did just about all that could be expected of him by placing second to Joseph E. Widener's flashy sprinter, Roman.

It probably will be a long time before Wyatt will risk dropping Talked About into a claiming race again, as he is probably pretty well convinced that he acquired a bargain for his employer, Mrs. J. F. Waters of San Francisco. The Libertyville purse was an allowance event.

Unerring's Challenge Fails.

After the first scramble for position going down the chute it developed into a duel between Talked About and Unerring. Side by side they raced around the turn, with Unerring on the inside. Approaching the stretch, Talked About drew clear far enough to bear over sharply toward the rail without interfering with his rival.

He came on easily and was leading by a length and a half at the eighth pole. Then he began to weaken and Unerring came up on the outside, gaining gradually under Willie Eads' whip. Resorting to energetic hand riding, Johnny Adams kept Talked About going to the finish to win by half a length.

Waters Stable Scores Triple.

It was a great day for Trainer Wyatt, Jockey Adams, and the Waters' stable. Earlier in the afternoon Wyatt had saddled Momence and sent her out to win a five and a half furlong sprint for 2 year olds at 6 to 5 odds. Then came Talked About's victory. The Wyatt-Adams combination scored again in the seventh race, when Chance Sweet got home on top after running the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:59 1-5, only four-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Stars of Golf to Be Luncheon Guests Today

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The preliminary machinery of the third $5,000 Chicago open golf tournament, top show of the local 1940 season, began to whirr yesterday. Today and tomorrow will witness two important previews of the battle among the nation's leading professionals and amateurs. Two hundred of them will begin firing in the first 18 holes Friday morning at the Tam o' Shanter Country club, Howard street and Caldwell road, with the second 18 scheduled for Saturday and the final 36 on Sunday.

Yesterday afternoon, Tournament Chairman Lowell D. Rutherford began the task of arranging pairings and starting times for the first two rounds. After these are played the low 48 pros and ties and low 24 amateurs and ties will be given new times and partners for Sunday's final 36.

Stars Luncheon Guests.

Today, at noon in the grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel, the Chicago Association of Commerce will turn over its regular luncheon to the Chicago District Golf association, sponsor of the open. A number of the game's brightest stars, including Patty Berg, Lloyd Mangrum, Jim Ferrier, John Revolta, Chick Evans, Wilford Wehrle, and Arthur Doering will attend and will join with Lew Waldron of the Illinois P. G. A. in a special shotmaking demonstration. Tickets for the luncheon are $1.

Tomorrow marks the 50th birthday of Evans, the veteran swinger who personally has brought Chicago a major share of national and western competitive honors. With Evans' home club, Edgewater, as host, a birthday tournament and party is being given Chick by the Chicago District and Western Golf associations.

Evans to Get Statue.

Evans will be presented with a bronze replica of the statue of him wrought 14 years ago by Sidney Bedore. Tickets for the day of golf and the banquet at 7:30 p. m. are $7.50. All of the proceeds above expenses will be turned over to the Chick Evans caddy scholarship fund at Northwestern university, originated by Chick and administered by the Western Golf association.

Tickets for the tournament can be obtained at the C. D. G. A. headquarters, Room 1806, La Salle hotel, and at C. D. G. A. clubs. A series ticket, good for all three days, is $3. Admission for Friday's first round alone is $1.10, for Saturday's second 18, $1.35, and for Sunday's 36 holes, $1.65. All daily tickets purchased before Friday will receive a 25 per cent discount. Children under 16 years of age will be admitted for 55 cents.

60 Skaters Seek Parts in Sonja Henie Ice Show

More than 60 skaters have applied for parts in the ice revue which is to go into production within two weeks for presentation in the Rockefeller Center theater, New York, according to Arthur M. Wirtz, who with Sonja Henie will produce the show. Wirtz conferred yesterday with Leon Leonidoff, New York city music hall producer, who is to direct the show.

HORSESHOE PITCHING LEAGUE.

Welles Park beat Win Lin, 19 to 6; Center beat Hyway, 17 to 8; Southtown beat Rowan, 18 to 9, and Bullock beat West Town, 18 to 7, in Chicago Horseshoe Pitching league games last night.

HUNTERS! HERE IS SITUATION ON NEW DUCK LAWS

Cut in Bag Limit to Seven Is Recommended.

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Duck Hunter, here are the latest developments in the 1940 hunting regulations as drawn up by the United States biological survey and which will become effective soon, unless sportsmen act quickly to demand changes:

1. It's no longer a rumor that the survey has recommended a cut in the daily bag limit from 10 to seven. Information from unimpeachable sources tells us that this reduction in the daily bag limit is in writing, and that Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes has this and other drastic changes in the laws on his desk at present. If and when he signs them they become official for 1940.

Illinois Against Cut.

2. Illinois is against this cut in the bag limit and is doing everything it can to keep the old bag limit of 10. Illinois hunters point out that the duck population is now about 60,000,000, whereas it numbered 30,000,000 or 35,000,000 when the survey asked and obtained a 10 ducks per day limit. Ducks Unlimited, the only organization which has done anything to grow more ducks in Canada, reports we will have a 20 per cent increase this year due to a good hatch. Tom Main, general manager of the Ducks Unlimited field force, reported this figure direct from the Canadian marshes yesterday. In view of this situation Illinois sportsmen are asking why there should be a cut in the daily bag limit.

Sunrise Start Recommended.

3. It also is no longer a rumor that the survey has recommended that duck hunting start at sunrise this year. This proposed regulation is in Ickes' hands. If you ask conservation directors they'll tell you that it's the best proposal to help the potshooters and the duck sellers that could be thought of. Shooters in those two groups can get 'em on the water as soon as it's light enough to see to shoot. One conservation director who fought the sunrise shooting idea says the regulation is unenforceable and an invitation to law violations.

4. The wild goose hunters may expect to take it on the chin this year with a cut from four to three geese per day. There was a report the change in regulations would call for two geese per day. All evidence we have been able to gather, however, indicates a three geese per day bag.

5. Illinois sportsmen interviewed yesterday said that they hoped Secretary Ickes would not sign the regulations drawn up by the survey until he had granted them a hearing on them.

ATHLETICS JOLT TIGERS' PENNANT YEARNINGS, 3-1

Philadelphia, Pa., July 16 (AP).—Paced by George Caster's six hit pitching, the Athletics dampened the Detroit Tigers' pennant hopes with a 3 to 1 victory today for their third triumph in the four game series. Like Caster, Freddie Hutchinson, making his first start for the Tigers since his recall from Buffalo, allowed only six hits, but the Athletics bunched three with Pinky Higgins' error in the third to score two runs. Sam Chapman added the third run with his 13th home run of the season in the eighth. Score:

SENATORS RALLY TO WIN.

Washington, D. C., July 16 (AP).—A big sixth inning in which four walks helped fill the bases twice enabled the Senators to beat the Cleveland Indians, 11 to 8 today and sweep the three game series. Five Indian pitchers failed to hold the rampaging Senators, who entered the sixth with a 7 to 2 deficit and came out of it with a 9 to 7 lead. The Indians whittled Washington's margin with a run in the seventh, but Gerald Walker hit a homer in the Senators' half, Zeke Bonura tripled, and scored after Buddy Myers' fly. Score:

6TH IN ROW FOR CARDINALS

St. Louis, Mo., July 16 (AP).—Enos Slaughter's 10th home run of the year in the sixth inning today broke a tie and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4 to 3 victory over the Boston Bees. It was the sixth consecutive triumph for the Cards and gave them a sweep of the four game series. Sebastian Sisti of Boston hit the first ball pitched by Southpaw Clyde Shoun for a home run. Johnny Mize's 24th of the season came in the fourth right after Slaughter's ninth. Score:

All South Bend Joins in College Football Poll

Wattles Is a Brave Man.

James Davaney, manager of the Oliver hotel, a courageous Irishman who boldly proclaims that Notre Dame can beat any team in the world except the Cincinnati Reds, distributed ballots to all his department heads with the demand that the hotel personnel vote 100 per cent for a 100 per cent Notre Dame All-Star team. He also placed ballots at the desk with instructions that no one be allowed to register unless he or she, or both, cast a vote for a complete All-Star lineup, preferably all Notre Dame.

So far, only one dissenter has been discovered. Charles Wattles, Michigan '14, an attorney, named only two Notre Dame men. He placed Thesing at full back and Harvey at tackle. Wattles, a member of the Michigan Alumni council, voted for Western conference and Notre Dame players because their play in previous All-Star games indicates that the best football is played in the middle west.

Team Has Midwest Flavor.

Wattles' team included, besides Thesing and Harvey, Bill Nicholson, Michigan, and Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State, ends; Nick Cutlich, Northwestern, tackle; Harry Smith, Southern California, and Melvin Brewer, Illinois, guards; Archie Kodros, Michigan, center; George Cafego, Tennessee, quarter back, and Nile Kinnick, Iowa, and Grenville Lansdell, Southern California, half backs.

Wattles will be appropriately dealt with when his team comes to the attention of pretty Dorothy Spaulding. Miss Spaulding is the fiancée of Ben Sheridan, the Havana, Ill., comet who specializes in long touchdown runs for Notre Dame. She has tacked up "Fighting Irish" hand bills on the front of her home at 802 East Madison street, and opened a polling place where the neighbors can cast one vote apiece for Ben and talk over the coming nuptials.

Mooty to Pitch Cubs' Opener with Dodgers

Jake Mooty, for whom the Cubs have not scored a run in 25 consecutive innings, this afternoon will make his third try for his sixth victory of the season in the opener of a three game Brooklyn-Chicago series. He will be opposed by Curt Davis.

Jim Gleeson, who was leading the Cubs in hitting when the Giants came to town, was benched yesterday. Gleeson made only one single in 15 times at bat in the first three games of the series with the New Yorkers.

The Cubs are in the mood to go ahead of the Dodgers in the season series. However, they'll have to sweep the three game series, having won only 4 out of 10 from the Dodgers thus far.

Isbell Faces All-Star Game with Pleasure

BY CECIL ISBELL.

[Former Purdue half back, who was voted most valuable on 1938 All-Star team and now a member of the world champion Green Bay Packers.]

Menasha, Wis., July 16.—It has been two years since Coach Bo McMillin sent us All-Stars out on Soldiers' field in Chicago to ambush the Washington Redskins—two years that have been a steady succession of four-star thrillers for me against the finest football teams in the game.

Cecil Isbell.

Yet as the Packers begin preparations to meet the college All-Americans on Aug. 29, the old urge returns and with it comes the tingling reactions that attended my first varsity game at Purdue and the opening of All-Star practice at Evanston in 1938. Unless you've waited under a descending punt or brought down a charging ball carrier this may be difficult to understand. But once you are in a headgear and cleats, it became obvious.

It Has Glamor Aplenty.

First of all, I don't believe there is a person participating in football who doesn't attach importance to every game. In the case of the All-Star game this importance is multiplied 10-fold because the Chicago contest has all the glamor of a good nightmare.

Few players other than those on the All-Star squads ever have the opportunity to appear before so many people or get a chance to participate with and match talents against the outstanding athletes in the country under the guidance of the leading coaches in the game. We on the 1938 squad were agreed that it was the high spot of our careers. And even before we beat the Redskins, 28 to 16, we regretted that in all probability we would never have a chance to play in the game again. The most envied men among football players today are Joe Laws, Don Hutson and Beattie Feathers of our Packer club. They'll be playing in their third All-Star game.

It's Pros' Big Moment.

My surprise matched the thrill of that All-Star experience when, upon joining the Packers, I learned the game is equally important to the pros. I believe they would rather beat the collegians than win the championship. It was difficult to tell last season whether we were battling for the title or a chance to play at Chicago.

I look for a game that will break all scoring records for the series. Green Bay always has been known as a score-making combination. The graduating seniors in college, on the basis of their records, also can master a powerful offensive squad. When two highly geared point producers get together it isn't unusual to see more than six touchdowns and two field goals, the number the Redskins and our All-Star team provided in 1938.

It goes without saying, I presume, that I expect to emerge from the game with a record of never having played on the losing side in an All-Star contest.

Half-way House.

I often drop in at the Half-way House
When the going's a little bit rough,
When the struggle's a mite too tough.
A little off Goodwill street,
Sunny at times and at others
A shady, dim retreat.

I often drop in at this Half-way House
When I'm tired and weary and worn,
And often I find an odd something there
That makes me refreshed, reborn;
Maybe I don't even speak to a soul
But just sit thinking there
And let the peace of this quiet place
Flow round me everywhere.

And I think of pleasant things that have been
And of pleasant things to be;
I plan some little surprise or such
On some one less lucky than me;
I enjoy that little respite there
So much that I'm loath to depart,
Where is this magic Half-way House?
Why, haven't you guessed? In your heart!

Mr. Rigney Is Stingy.

The only hit off Rigney in the first three innings was more or less a fluke. Selkirk hoisted a fly into right center with two out in the opening inning, but Kreevich and Wright debated so long about making the catch that the ball dropped for a double. A moment later Solters took DiMaggio's foul to end the inning. The only other Yankee surviving prior to the fourth was Dahlgren on Kennedy's fumble in the third, but a double play followed. In the fourth, Rolfe singled, went to second on an infield out and home on DiMaggio's single. After two were out, Henrich also singled, but Gordon flied to Solters.

After Solters' triple in the third the Sox didn't take many liberties with Russo's left arm. Rigney wasted a single with two gone in the fourth, but in the fifth with one out Kuhel blasted his homer into the right field seats. This was followed by a single from Solters' bat, but the latter wasn't given any help.

B. B. Y. O. NINES TO PLAY 4 TITLE GAMES TONIGHT

Hanleys, Brodies to Meet for Senior Crown.

Four games will be played tonight in St. Philip's stadium, Van Buren street and Kedzie avenue, in the climax of the fifth annual B'nai B'rith Youth organization city-wide softball tournament.

The survivors of an original field of 103 teams, representing approximately 1,400 individual participants, will vie for title honors in the junior, intermediate, senior, and lodge divisions.

Keynoting the championship games will be the clash for honors in the junior division between the Cavaliers and Dr. Waxlers at 6:30 p. m.

Competing in the intermediate division final at 7:30 p. m. will be two powerful west side nines, the Standard Metals and Hanley Spartans.

The three times champion Lakeview team will encounter a determined Garfield park club, last year's runners-up in the lodge finals at 8:30 p. m.

Joseph Schwartz, B. B. Y. O. umpire in chief, made the appointments: Juniors, Tom Kaplan, Henry Skurnick, Barney Bernstein, and Jack Saltzman; intermediates, Dave Wilson, Lou Newman, Jacob Baskin, and Joe Schwartz; lodge, Dave Golden, Ed Farber, Joe Schwartz, and Dave Meyer, and seniors, Ed Passman, Dave Krichever, Jack Rose, and Bernard Kurlansky.

Dietrich Opens for Sox Today in Washington

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Bill Dietrich will be entrusted with the White Sox pitching tomorrow in the opener of the three game series in Washington. For the two subsequent games there Manager Jimmy Dykes plans to work Jack Knott and Thornton [Lefty] Lee.

George Selkirk, fresh from the Yanks' hospital squad, took over the right field chores in place of Charley Keller, who experienced some sort of a stomach disturbance just before game. Jake Powell, injured during the training trip and who made his first appearance yesterday when he served as a pinch hitter, also was rendered slightly hors de combat before the game. A batted ball plunked him on the leg.

GENERAL ANILINE.

What has happened to the American I. G. Chemical Corp? If it is still operating, I would like a report on the company's recent earnings and dividend payments.—G. E.

Answer: American I. G. Chemical Corp., formed in 1929, merged last Oct. 31 with General Aniline Works, Inc., its wholly owned subsidiary, and adopted the new name, General Aniline & Film Corp. The Agfa Ansco Corp., another subsidiary, was absorbed Dec. 28.

The company is the third largest domestic manufacturer of dyes and related chemicals, and second leading producer of cameras, films and other photographic goods. A substantial part of its revenues is derived from investments in Standard Oil company [N. J.] common stock, Sterling Products, Inc., and other securities.

The dyestuffs are manufactured by the General Aniline Works division at Grasselli, N. J., and Rensselaer, N. Y. The photographic equipment is made by the Agfa Ansco division.

The company has the right to use in this country the patents held by I. G. Farbenindustrie A. G., leading German chemical firm. The German company helped organize American I. G. Chemical and guaranteed its debentures, of which $22,408,000 is outstanding.

Besides the debentures, the company has outstanding 529,693 shares of class A stock of no par value, and 3,000,000 shares of class B stock of $1 par value. The class B stock is owned almost entirely by a Swiss chemical holding company.

The dividend provisions of the class A stock require that $1 be paid on each share for each 10 cents paid on the class B shares. Dividends have been paid on the stocks in each year since 1934. Payments totaled 20 cents a share on the class B stock in 1934, 35 cents in 1935, 45 cents in 1936, 50 cents in 1937, 40 cents in 1938, and 35 cents in 1939. Ten times these amounts were disbursed to holders of class A stock.

Net income and earnings per common B share of the company before the mergers compared as follows in recent fiscal years ending March 31:

	Net income	Earned per Com. B. Share
[illegible]	$2,528,000	$0.32
[illegible]	3,303,000	0.42
[illegible]	4,685,000	0.59
[illegible]	4,186,000	0.53
[illegible]	3,224,000	0.40

Consolidated net income of the company and its recently merged subsidiaries amounted to $4,463,602 or 54 cents a common B share in 1939. Comparative earnings on the same basis for earlier years are not available.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The market for hogs turned erratic after a strong opening yesterday and closed 5 to 10 cents below Monday's prices. The average, $6.05, was down 5 cents. Top loads reached $6.80 but sold later at $6.70.

OIL PRODUCTION IN ILLINOIS AND NATION DROPS

Drilling Attention Centers on Bond County.

With Illinois setting the downward pace, daily crude oil production in the United States declined 48,874 barrels to 3,563,984 barrels as an average for the week ended June 13, the Oil and Gas Journal reported yesterday.

Illinois recorded the largest decrease, with output dropping 18,461 barrels a day to 486,025. Interest in the state was directed toward Bond county where National Petroleum company was attempting to complete its No. 1 Spindler Investment company well in the Misener sand, according to the journal. "The well would open a wide area to exploration and provide Bond county with its first important field," the journal said.

Changes in Other Areas.

Other states or regions which reported declines last week were California, off 7,900 barrels a day to 623,250; Rocky mountain area, 7,020 to 95,300; Oklahoma, 6,700 to 411,575; Louisiana, 5,957 to 281,975; Kansas, 4,250 to 178,200; Michigan, 1,750 to 54,163, and eastern fields, 500 to 105,750.

East Texas, however, increased output 1,848 barrels a day to 374,746, and all Texas was up 4,998 to 1,143,333.

Sinclair Sets Flat Prices.

The Sinclair Prairie Marketing company in Tulsa posted a flat price of 75 cents a barrel for crude oil which it buys in Mexico and north and central Texas. Its previous schedule started with 79 cents for crude of below 29 gravity and ranging upward to $1.03 for 40 gravity and above. The company purchases an estimated 30,000 barrels daily in the area affected.

Taxes on the petroleum industry, its products, operations, and services in 1939 reached a record high of $1,354,166,333, an increase of $68,051,860 over 1938, the American Petroleum Industries committee reported yesterday.

CHANGING INDEX YEARS A PUZZLE TO STATISTICIANS

Statisticians yesterday were puzzled over the outcome of New Deal recommendations that the years 1935-'39 be substituted in all governmental indices as the base years, especially as the change would apply to the department of agriculture.

Under the agricultural act and its "parity" payments to farmers the years 1910-'14 have been used as base years in all agricultural indices. In those years farmers received the most for their products in relation to prices they paid for commodities.

Statisticians said that since farmers paid more for commodities in 1935-'39 than in 1910-'14 and received proportionately less, to change the index to the later years would narrow considerably the base used in figuring "parity."

In a table published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Tuesday showing the old base period used by the federal reserve system and the bureau of labor statistics, the years were erroneously given as 1923-'35. They are 1923-'25.

Pennsylvania Firms Get Approval for Pipe Line

Harrisburg, Pa., July 16 (AP).—Given the approval of the public utility commission, three Pennsylvania companies in the Columbia Gas & Electric system soon may start laying 117 miles of pipe line to carry natural gas from West Virginia fields to New York state customers. The companies are the Manufacturers' Light & Heat company, Manufacturers' Gas company, and Pennsylvania Fuel Supply company.

Britain's April Hardware Exports Set 20 Year Peak

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special].—Seeking to stimulate export trade despite the war and even at the expense of sacrificing its home market, Great Britain exported the largest April volume of hardware in 20 years, the department of commerce reported today.

SHELL PLANTS IN MIDWEST IS DEFENSE PLAN

Chicago Is Regarded Safe from Attack.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—Reporting "highly satisfactory" progress in the national defense program, President Roosevelt today announced that plans were being drafted for locating gunpowder and shell plants in the middle west and for locating key defense industries in agricultural inland areas.

William S. Knudsen reports on production.

Among the cities reported under consideration for munition factories are Chicago, St. Louis, Mo.; Milwaukee, Wis., and Knoxville, Tenn., headquarters of the Tennessee Valley authority. The reason for selecting such sites is that they are away from the seaboard and less vulnerable to enemy air attack than coastal areas.

Lengthy Discussion Held.

At a meeting of the President and the national defense advisory commission, composed of Edward R. Stettinius Jr., William Knudsen, and others, there was a lengthy discussion of the problem of establishing defense industries in agricultural areas and areas where unemployment is most extensive.

The following were mentioned as high lights of the progress being made by various divisions of the defense commission:

Production division, headed by Knudsen: From June 6 to date, contracts in the amount of $1,661,891,493, representing $1,390,575,404 for the navy and $271,316,089 for the army, were cleared. Material covered under these contracts includes airplanes, tanks, battleships, ammunition, antitank guns, antiaircraft searchlights, machine guns, fire control precision instruments, tractors, trucks, and many other items. Production of this material is being undertaken in plants from Maine to California. Progress is being made toward solution of the bottlenecks in the machine tool industry.

Acquire Strategic Materials.

Materials division, headed by Stettinius: Substantial supplies of strategic and critical raw materials are being acquired. By the end of the month, plans will be worked out under which it will be possible in an emergency to supply most of the nation's needs thru manufacture of synthetic rubber. Substantially increased production of 100 octane [airplane] gasoline is being worked out. Plans are under way for storage of large quantities of this gasoline at strategic locations underground.

Division of labor supply, headed by Sidney Hillman: Between 30,000 and 40,000 enrollees are taking training to become skilled workers in industry. The "first and major" consideration is to provide employment to those now employable and without jobs. Thus far needs of private industry for skilled and other labor are being met.

Division of price stabilization, headed by Leon Henderson: The primary effort of this division is directed toward determination of the effects of the rearmament program on the nation's price structure. Numerous proposals for price regulation are being studied.

Seek to Sell Surpluses.

Agricultural division, headed by Chester Davis: This division has undertaken the development of a unit to work on the problem of new plant location for defense purposes with the view to utilizing surplus labor, particularly in agricultural areas. Collaboration with the department of agriculture has been undertaken in developing plans to promote increased use of surplus farm products at home and, where possible, abroad.

Division of consumer protection, headed by Miss Harriet Elliott: Ground work has been laid for an extensive educational campaign to mobilize public sentiment behind the idea that the civilian population must be prepared physically to meet the defense responsibilities placed upon it by any emergency. Protection of the public from unjustifiable increases in consumer goods prices also is a major project of this division.

Basil Harris, Treasury Aid, to Re-enter Business

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special].—Basil Harris, who resigned as vice president of the United States Lines to accept an emergency post in the treasury, is returning to the shipping business. No announcement was made, but members of the treasury staff gave a farewell luncheon party for him today. Harris, whose home at at Rye, N. Y., was sworn in Sept. 7 as commissioner of customs and assistant to Secretary Morgenthau, but actually he was a special shipping advisor to the administration. It is understood that Harris will return to the United States Lines.

Push Training of Mechanics to Aid Defense

A subcommittee of the Council on Training of Defense Workers, organized by the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday drew up further plans for coördinating the training of skilled mechanics.

It appointed a technical group of experts from various industries and organizations to draft definite recommendations on training methods. These recommendations will be passed along to manufacturers and schools taking part in the training of workers.

One of the problems which this technical committee will attack is estimating the number of mechanics needed in each classification.

Recommendations to Industries.

The subcommittee also adopted these recommendations, which will be sent to manufacturers:

That industries raise the age limit on mechanics, especially those qualified to act as instructors.

That industries refrin from proselyting for trained workers and offering higher wages or other inducements to get them. [A training program to fulfill needs should be fostered instead.]

That industries, during the lull before the full impact of defense orders is felt, concentrate on "training the trainers."

Reports "Acute Shortage."

Reporting the existence of "an acute shortage of skilled mechanics to meet requirements of national defense," the subcommittee listed as objectives of the council:

1. To aid in increasing the supply of skilled mechanics to meet the requirements in the Chicago area.
2. To coördinate the plans and training activities of various organizations interested in defense.
3. To act as a clearing house for approved plans and methods of training and disseminate information regarding them.

Among types of workers in demand, the subcommittee listed machine operators, semiskilled machinists, journeymen machinists, toolmakers, die sinkers, grinders, electricians, welders, and molders.

Council Chairman Presides.

Others who attended included Stanley P. Farwell, president of Business Research corporation and chairman of the subcommittee; Col. Donald Armstrong, executive officer of the Chicago ordnance district, and Lieut. Gerald R. Stewart; C. W. Hill, industrial training coördinator for the board of education; Commander J. K. Esler, in charge of production for the 9th naval district, and Commander R. D. Spaulding, ordnance officer; L. S. Silvis, executive secretary for the Chicago branch of the National Metal Trades association, and Frank Culhane, assistant state supervisor of trade and industrial education.

EXTEND FEDERAL SUBSIDY PLAN ON FLOUR EXPORTS

Washington, D. C., July 16 (AP).—The department of agriculture today announced expansion of its flour export program to provide for payment of subsidies on shipments from all parts of continental United States to other countries in the western hemisphere.

Announcement of the subsidy rate for the new destinations will be made by the surplus marketing administration tomorrow.

The department said the current wheat and flour export programs would be continued in effect. These programs provide for payment of subsidies on wheat exports from the Pacific northwest to China, Hongkong, Dairen, the Phillippine Islands and Europe; and for exports of wheat flour from that area to China, Hongkong, Dairen and the Phillippine Islands.

M'KESSON'S JUNE SALES AIDED BY RUSH FOR LIQUOR

New York, July 16 [Special].—Large purchases of liquor products by retailers, in anticipation of increased sales to consumers before the federal floor stocks tax went into effect July 1, caused net sales of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., drug and liquor distributors, to increase 18.32 per cent last month as compared with June, 1939, William J. Wardall, trustee, reported today.

Liquor sales rose 71.24 per cent to $5,159,361, raising total company net sales to $14,135,039 for June. June sales of drugs and sundries were up to 0.4 per cent, to $8,933,345.

Japan Skins the Cat (Even Chickens) to Obtain Hides

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special.]—Skins of dogs, cats, and even chickens are being used to meet the acute shortage of cow hides in Japan, the department of commerce announced today. In Osaka a dog leather trade association has been formed in an attempt to unify the comparatively new industry and to control prices which have risen to hitherto unknown heights.

Industry Adds New Facilities of Production

A $7,000,000 addition will be erected at the plant of the Wisconsin Power company at Port Washington, Wis., 26 miles north of Milwaukee, the North American company announced yesterday in New York. The addition will add 80,000 kilowatts to the generating capacity of the plant. [A kilowatt is the equivalent of about 1⅓ horse power.]

North American, parent of the Wisconsin company, late in June announced that its 1940 improvement program would total about $90,000,000.

The new addition will bring the total close to $100,000,000. Completion of the plant addition will raise the North American system's generating capacity to 2,588,000 kilowatts.

Other reports on industrial expansion included announcements of additional warehouse construction by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and the Welch Grape Juice company.

Westinghouse Spends $500,000.

Westinghouse said that in anticipation of increasing business demands it will spend more than $500,000 on a warehouse at Mansfield, O. This will bring to $1,500,000 the cost of an expansion program now in progress at the Mansfield merchandising division headquarters plant. The plant's capacity for producing household refrigerators will be increased by one-third and its warehouse facilities by about 50 per cent.

Welch Grape Juice is building at Westfield, New York, a cold storage building having a capacity of 800,000 gallons of grape juice. The company said that with 1940 sales ahead of any previous year additional storage space is required.

The Warner Aircraft corporation, Detroit, has received a $700,000 contract from the British purchasing commission for 250 airplane engines of 165 horse power to be used in trainer planes. The contract includes spare engine parts.

Lockheed Seeks Engineers.

Lockheed Aircraft corporation announced it is expanding its aeronautical engineering staff to meet demands for planes in connection with the nation's rearmament program. The company is choosing between 100 and 200 experienced engineers for training to make them available for its engineering staff.

Those chosen will be paid a salary while taking eight weeks of special training at the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, Cal., and eight weeks more at the company's plant at Burbank, Cal. The company is taking applications from middle western engineers at the Hotel Sherman.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENT SPENDING TO TUNE OF 100 MILLION EXPECTED

The American public will spend to the tune of $100,000,000 for musical instruments this year, William A. Mennie, sceretary of the Music Industries convention, estimated yesterday. The organization will open a three-day session at the Stevens hotel July 30.

Mennie said about 60 per cent of the $100,000,000 will be spent for new pianos. Band instruments, including wind instruments, chimes and drums, will comprise 15 per cent of the total and so will the amount spent for accordions and small stringed instruments such as banjos, guitars, ukeleles and violins. Accessories and parts will absorb the other 10 per cent.

Instruments with a retail value of more than $2,000,000 will be displayed at the convention. Included will be 150 new piano styles.

WHEAT FUTURES RISE AS TRADERS GOSSIP OF PEACE

Gossip on the possibility of peace, strength in securities, and lessened hedging pressure combined yesterday to advance wheat futures 1⅛ to 2 cents a bushel above Monday's levels. The Chicago market started to move upward immediately after a steady opening with mills and cash interests prominent in the buying.

Other grains were disposed to lag. Corn finished ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower with reports of increased offerings of Argentine grain at the Atlantic seaboard tending to restrict buying operations. Oats closed ¼ to ⅜ cent higher; rye ⅜ to ¾ cent, and soy beans, ½ to ⅝ cent higher.

Routine wheat news attracted little attention, altho an official estimate indicated 20 per cent of the South Dakota spring wheat acreage probably would be abandoned regardless of future weather conditions.

6 MONTHS' SALES AMONG BEST IN PHILCO'S HISTORY

James T. Buckley, president of Philco corporation, Philadelphia, Pa., yesterday said that business in the first half of 1940 represented one of the best periods in the company's history.

"Sales increased 30 per cent over a year ago," he said.

"As a result of favorable reception accorded our 1941 line of products, preliminary and sample orders for radio receiving sets and photo-electric phonographs totaled $15,268,350 at retail prices, compared with $10,645,963 a year ago.

"This, together with the sustained higher level of retail trade, leads me to expect a larger volume of business and increased earnings in the coming months."

Consolidated Aircraft 1940 Bookings Cross 55 Million

New York, July 16 [Special].—Consolidated Aircraft corporation of San Diego, Cal., booked $55,136,721 in new aircraft orders in the first half of 1940, raising the backlog to the highest in the company's history at $96,870,000 on June 30, officials reported today.

Libby Resumes Dividends on Common Stock

After a lapse of nearly three years Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago food canning and distributing company, yesterday declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock. It will be payable Aug. 15 to shareholders of record July 31, and the first on common since $1.40 was paid on Oct. 23, 1937.

"The company is in strong financial position," Daniel W. Creeden, president, said in announcing the directors' action. "We are now in the midst of our seasonal packs. The cost of these packs and the market for them in future months will largely determine our results for the fiscal year ending March 1, 1941. Indications as far as they are available are satisfactory."

Kennecott Declares Special.

The payments, scheduled for Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Aug. 31, will total more than 8 million dollars on the 10,821,653 shares outstanding. Similar amounts were distributed on June 29.

An interim dividend of 50 cents was authorized by Mack Trucks, Inc., payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 25. The last payment was 50 cents on Dec. 28, 1939, when disbursements were resumed after a lapse of more than a year and a half.

PROGRESS MADE IN CITY'S DRIVE TO BOOST TRADE

A. of C. Booklet Lists Accomplishments.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The Chicago Association of Commerce is making fair progress in accomplishing the program it announced for the city, it was indicated yesterday in a new booklet describing these activities. Oscar G. Mayer, president, last January made public a 10 point program developed by the association to make Chicago a better place in which to live and earn a living.

Oscar G. Mayer.

Listed first among the objectives was the bringing of new industries to the city, thus offering new opportunities for wage earners. In the six months that have elapsed since Mayer's program was set forth several important announcements of industrial expansion have been made.

Merchants Brought Here.

In the meantime 4,500 big national companies not now operating plants or branches in Chicago are being "barraged with pertinent information urging them to locate here."

The association has been instrumental in bringing about 40,000 retail merchants and buyers to Chicago annually thru trade shows, merchandise exhibits and other activities, adding millions of dollars to the incomes of Chicago manufacturers and distributors, the report says. The association has acted to stimulate local retail business in 78 downtown and neighborhood shopping districts thru especially staged selling events.

In its effort to bring outside companies to Chicago the association offers to industrial newcomers late information on building codes, buildings for rent, building sites, labor costs, labor supply, and other pertinent facts.

Also Aids Employment.

It is helping to keep many Chicagoans employed thru its efforts in bringing important conventions and trade shows to the city. The association estimates that each year an average of 800 such events brought here have a combined delegate attendance of more than 1,000,000. It is estimated that this group spends about $50,000,000 here annually.

Mayer's second objective was to develop the city as a central market and especially to develop the relations of Chicago with downstate Illinois and nearby states. In this connection the association is continuing to sponsor the Interstate Merchants council, which has a membership of 4,900 retail stores in 38 states, many of them in the immediate Chicago area.

Objective No. 3 was stimulation of foreign trade, particularly with Latin America. The association recently brought out an elaborate book written in Spanish for distribution thruout Latin America. It catalogs the many wares produced in

A Government Loan Is Ducky, Farmers Told

The estimated 100,000 farmer "subscribers" in Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas are offered a motion picture, a prize letter contest, news and credit to fit almost any type of need.

The current Record—designated a special soil improvement issue—has eight pages and a profusion of photographs printed in rotogravure style. Most of the printed matter consists of stories and testimonials of farmers and stock raisers who were said to have round not only aid but prosperity, after economic troubles, thru the FCA and its four sub-units, the Federal Land bank, Federal Intermediate Credit bank, Production Credit corporation, and Bank For Coöperatives.

Rise to Riches Filmed.

The sound motion picture, "The Land—To Have and to Hold," is available to any group applying to the district office. The film, according to the Record, is the "dramatic story of John and Mary Farmer's struggle to own their own farm," the loss of their "ancestral" home in Peace Valley thru adversity, their loan from the coöperative farm-mortgage system and, finally, their rise from tenancy to farm ownership.

A cartoon of the type familiar in advertising soap, breakfast food and caffein-free coffee depicts one farmer telling another that all he has to do to obtain needed fertilizer to improve his crops is to apply to the PCC for a loan.

The closing panels of the strip show the farmer taking the advice of his neighbor, obtaining a 4½ per cent loan and later standing knee-deep in his fertile alfalfa field with extra yields more than sufficient to repay the loan.

Credit Termed Necessity.

The Record tells the farmer that coöperative long-term credit is often a necessity in permanent pasture improvement, and asserts that in thousands of cases, farm profit depends more upon good pastures than any other crop. As evidence, it states that 15 of the 18 winners of a Missouri pasture betterment contest had obtained government loans.

There are a number of other success-thru-borrowing articles. One deals with a dairy farmer who built up a prosperous business on an idea formed when he took milk from his herds to a hospital for his infant daughter and put it in effect thru Federal Land bank and Land Bank commissioner loans. Another relates how an Arkansas man used federal credit to double both the acreage and net worth of his peach farm.

News Supplements Advice.

There are instructive articles on soil treatment and improvement and news from the district supplementing the how, what-for and why-you-shoulds of the various kinds of agricultural credit to be had.

There is a prize contest sponsored by the Federal Land bank offering $200 in cash for the best letters by farm boys and girls under 19 on "What Our Loans Means to Us."

Until last December, the FCA was an independent agency, having succeeded the old farm loan board in 1933. The organization lost its independent status when Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace brought it under his department, reportedly after he became dissatisfied with its conservative loaning policy. The FCA is a $5,000,000,000 unit and has under it substantially all federal agencies dealing with agricultural credit.

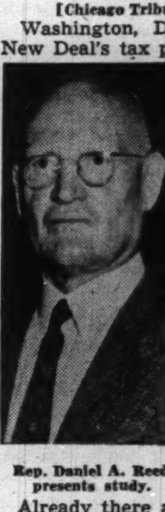
RUIN OF NATION THRU SPENDING, TAXES FEARED

Rising Burden Cited by Lawmakers.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—The New Deal's tax policies and repeated requests for huge appropriations finally will wreck the nation's financial system, many interests have warned, and the charge may be expected again when the excess profits tax bill reaches congress.



Rep. Daniel A. Reed presents study.

Some have seen these practices as a deliberate attempt to open the way for complete governmental control of economic life — socialism.

Already there are undercurrents of alarm among the legislators on the fiscal condition of the government as it sets out on a tremendous program of rearmament. The special requests for defense funds, already totaling nearly 15 billion dollars, are considered only a sample of what is to come.

Heavier Burdens in Prospect.

The revenue act of 1340, which raises approximately 1 billion dollars a year more in revenues, also is considered only a drop in the bucket as compared with the more severe taxes which must be levied to finance the defense expenditures. Along with this extra burden must be carried the huge increase in government operating costs during the New Deal years. Government expenses have nearly tripled. In 1933 they were 3.8 billion dollars and in the 1940 fiscal year had jumped to 9.7 billions.

As observed recently by Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, chairman of the house Republican committee on national debt policy, this is the first 20 billion dollar congress in American history, its spending record surpassing by almost 2 billions the total appropriations for any one session during the world war. The peak spending then, in the 1919 fiscal year, was $18,522,895,000.

Spending Plans Cited.

Appropriations.
17 departmental and supplemental supply bills	$10,565,511,803
Permanent annual appropriations and debt interest	1,827,000,000
Trust funds appropriated	2,149,000,000
Total appropriations approved to date	$14,541,511,803
Requested appropriations still in congress	2,161,000,000
	$16,702,511,803
Additional Contract Authorizations. [Not in above appropriations.]
Approved to date	$ 1,060,000,000
Still in legislative process	2,687,000,000
Total spending bills for third session	$20,449,511,803

"Altho President Roosevelt has demanded enormous new taxes and has called upon the nation to make every sacrifice in support of urgent national defense needs, not a dollar of economy

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Stocks broke a two weeks' stalemate today with a selective rally that lifted favorite steels, motors, aircrafts and specialties 1 to more than 2 points. Transfers of 437,840 shares were the largest since June 28, compared with a 22 year low turnover yesterday of 226,580.

While extreme gains were reduced at the close, the Associated Press average held a net advance of .5 of a point at 41.7, also the best upturn since June 28.

Brokers attributed the forward reversal partly to the belief of some that Monday's dwindling volume indicated the market had been sold out and was due for at least a momentary technical comeback notwithstanding possible further adverse war news.

At the same time many traders held to their "wait and see" attitude pending outcome of the Democratic conclave and the answer to the query "will he run?"

Prominent in the market's advance were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Great Northern, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, J. C. Penney, Kennecott, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Martin Parry, and Loft.

Rails and utilities generally held to a narrow course. Dealings were much broader than in recent sessions, with 675 individual stocks changing hands, against 540 yesterday. Of these 428 were up, 106 down and 141 unchanged.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 16 (AP).—The bond market took encouragement from rising stock prices today and many issues pushed up fractions to a point or more in moderately active trading.

Rail loans took command of the advance early and held leadership up to the close. This group in the Associated Press averages gained 0.4 of a point at 57.2, the best performance in 10 days. Industrials and utilities edged up 0.1 of a point each.

Active climbers included New York Central 5s at 59¼, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s at 17½, Nickel Plate 4½s at 56½, Postal Telegraph 5s at 22¼, Southern Pacific 4½s at 41⅞, Alleghany stamped 5s at 38⅝, Erie 5s at 12¾, and International Hydro Electric 6s at 50¼.

United States government loans closed 7-32 points higher to the same amount lower in light trading.

Chicago Stocks.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange turned upward yesterday in increased trading which carried the volume to 18,000 shares and established 1940 price peaks in two issues. Midland United preferred, one of the favorites, closed with a gain of ¼ point at 5, the highest this year. The other new high was for Adams Oil and Gas, which finished at 4⅝, up ⅝. Standard Oil of Indiana advanced 1 point, closing at 25⅝.

Bank Stocks.

Led by a 5 point advance of American National shares, the Chicago bank stock market took an upward turn yesterday. First National gained 4 points, Northern Trust 3, and Continental Illinois 1 point.

Commodities

Prices of commodities in speculative markets strengthened yesterday after recent persistent weakness. Improvement in securities markets was a factor.

Sales of Straits tin futures totaled 123,200 pounds, and prices closed unchanged to 0.05 cent a pound higher. The September delivery closed at 49.80 cents bid.

British Malaya, world's largest producer of tin, has fixed its tin export quota at 100 per cent of standard for the third quarter of 1940, reports from Singapore said. Each nation will estabish its own quota following the recent action of the international tin committee in raising the export quota for all countries to 130 per cent of their exports in a "normal" year.

Small trade buying and fair demand from New York interests supported wool top futures and final prices were 0.1 to 0.2 cent a pound higher. Wool for delivery in October closed at 88.2 cents a pound with the cash market unchanged on standard tops at 97 cents a pound.

LIBBEY-OWENS SIX MONTHS' NET INCOME DOUBLED

John D. Biggers.

The Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company yesterday reported net income of $5,176,748, or $2.06 a share, in the first six months of 1940, compared with $2,654,813, or $1.01 a share, in the 1939 period.

John D. Biggers, president of the company and executive assistant to W. S. Knudsen, manufacturing coördinator of the national defense program, asserted the glass manufacturing industry is fully prepared to meet all normal demands and also turn out glass specialties which fit into the defense program.

National Biscuit Earns Less.

National Biscuit company had net profit of $2,411,613 in the June quarter, equal to 31 cents a share on common stock, compared with $2,885,263, or 39 cents a share, a year ago.

Northern Indiana Public Service company, affiliated with Midland Utilities company, reported net income of $2,695,165, or 72 cents a share on common stock, for the 12 months ended June 30. Net was $2,082,968, or 39 cents a share, in the preceding 12 months.

The common share earnings were computed after dividend requirements on the 7, 6, and 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stocks.

For the six months ended June 30, the company had net income of $1,441,395 or 41 cents a share, against $1,112,269 or 23 cents in the first half of 1939. Cumulative preferred dividends unpaid on June 30 totaled $2,582,753, the company reported.

Sutherland Paper company, Kalamazoo, Mich., one of the largest manufacturers of paraffin coated cartons in the United States, reported net income to $437,525 or $1.52 a common share in the six months ended June 30. Earnings were $258,919 or 90 cents a share in the 1939 period.

GOLDBLATT GIVES FOLSOM LEAVE TO AID DEFENSE

Frank M. Folsom, executive vice president of Goldblatt Brothers, Inc., has been granted a leave of absence so that he can become federal coördinator of textile purchases under the national defense program, Morris Goldblatt, president of the company, announced yesterday. Folsom accepted the appointment as coördinator last week.

Folsom has been engaged in some special work which will be deferred until his return, it was indicated. He will remain on the company pay roll, Goldblatt said.

Folsom will assist another Chicagoan, Donald M. Nelson, on leave as executive vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., who is coördinator of all defense buying.

"We are happy that one of our executives has been chosen for such an important position," Goldblatt asserted, "and Goldblatt Brothers is glad of the opportunity to make this contribution in serving the national defense program."

3 General Motors Units Report Increased Sales

Automobile sales are continuing at high levels, reports from three General Motor corporation divisions indicated yesterday. Chevrolet retail sales of new cars and trucks in the first 10 days of July totaled 27,869, compared with 18,509 a year ago. Pontiac sales totaled 6,643, an increase of 98 per cent over the 10 day period last year. The Cadillac division delivered 932 Cadillacs and La Salles to customers during the period, an increase of 40 per cent.

Index of Varied Store Sales Higher for June

Washington, D. C., July 16 [Special]—There was a decline of less than the usual seasonal amount from May to June, in daily average sales of variety stores, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce reported today. As a result the seasonally corrected index advanced from 100.5 to 103.3 for June.

Rush of Gold from England Boosts Imports at New York

Of the total, $119,765,938 was shipped direct from England. Altho the British empire has been the principal gold shipper in recent months, most of the metal had been sent by way of Canada or some other part of the empire. Other British shipments last week included $24,457,685 from Canada.

Week's Decline Heavy.

The department of commerce said the week's gold cargoes were nearly double the amount received in the preceding week. Of the incoming gold, $68,359,495 was added to earmarked deposits of foreign governments and central banks in the federal reserve system. This increased the total of such deposits to $1,722,480,453.

Other shipments of gold included $2,699,609 from Portugal, $1,990,774 from Brazil, and $2,112,051 from Colombia.

Silver imports slumped in the week to $667,600, including $135,782 from Canada and $217,052 from Mexico. Export totals were $1,431 gold and $3,291 silver.

New Rules Found Puzzling.

Regulations were announced over the week-end which at first sight pointed to the elimination of free sterling in international trade. The rate immediately shot up to within less than 10 cents of the official rate of $4.02½-4.03½ which London wishes to substitute for the free rate. But local banking quarters later discovered a few knotty angles in the announcement, especially in the sections devoted to the future circumscribed uses of the free pound, and the price dropped back while New York waited for official word from abroad.

The bankers foreign exchange committee announced last night it will recommend to the foreign exchange market that when trading in official pound begins Thursday it will be on the basis of $4.02 buying and $4.04 selling. These rates are for cable transfers.

People and Events

Homer Capehart, manufacturer of Fort Wayne, Ind., was announced yesterday as the principal speaker at a picnic to be held in Riverview park Sunday afternoon under auspices of the coin machine industry in the Chicago area. An attendance of more than 5,000 is expected. It is claimed that the industry in this area employés more than 50,000 expert and precision mechanics whose skill can be converted to the manufacture of armaments if the need arises.

E. A. Pierce, partner of Merrill, Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt, will speak on "America's State in the Securities Business" before the Rotary club of Chicago on Aug. 27 at the Hotel Sherman.

The Chicago Financial Advertisers will play a golf tournament with the Milwaukee Financial Advertisers today at the Glen Flora Country club, Waukegan. A return match will be held in Milwaukee next month.

The engineering division of the Greater Chicago Safety council, meeting in the Palmer house tomorrow, will be shown a film on safe procedure in foundries under conditions of increased production as anticipated in the national defense program.

John J. Shaughnessy, passenger traffic manager of Santa Fe Trailways, has been elected to head the National Trailways Bus system, an association of 43 United States bus lines.

Thomas H. Corpe, who has been in charge of promotional activities, has been appointed assistant general sales manager of the Lockheed Aircraft corporation.

Second Issue of Italian Dollar Bonds in Default

New York, July 16 [Special].—A second Italian dollar bond issue went into default today with announcement by the New York Curb exchange that interest due yesterday on International Power Securities corporation 7 per cent bonds of 1952 had not been deposited with the fiscal agent. The first Italian loan to be defaulted was the issue of Public Utility Credit institute 7s of 1952, of which $11,100,000 are outstanding. The International Power securities issue is outstanding in the amount of $3,300,000.

PROGRESS MADE IN CITY'S DRIVE TO BOOST TRADE

A. of C. Booklet Lists Accomplishments.

Mayer listed the bringing of more visitors to Chicago thru exploitation of its recreational and educational advantages as the fourth objective and said the large number of out of town automobile licenses being seen in the city may be partially the result of this effort.

City's History Summarized.

As a part of this work the association has issued "Historical Chicago," a concise summary of the city's history and landmarks especially prepared for tourists. The association distributes thruout the country pamphlets telling the city's advantages.

The fifth objective was the bringing of more conventions to the city. The association's work in this direction has been satisfactory, with 410 conventions held here in the six months ended June 30.

The sixth objective was improvement of Chicago's transportation facilities. Among the recent major accomplishments was the establishment of six day rail service to Pacific coast cities, climaxing 10 years of effort.

Seek to Aid Tax Returns.

Other objectives included a study of governmental agencies with a view to getting a larger return on taxes. In this connection the association has employed a corps of experts, working with the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, to study the city government. The association claims to have aided in recovering $8,000,000 in delinquent taxes and to have helped bring about a $1,175,000 reduction in the city budget as compared with 1939.

The association is continuing with its legislative program designed to protect the interest of the city's businessmen. It is coöperating in the land use survey which is being carried on to provide a better base for rezoning. Better utilization of the city's land, it is held by the association, will provide an instrument for combatting depreciated areas.

IOWA SOUTHERN UTILITIES BONDS PUT ON MARKET

Two Other Offerings Are Being Made Today.

Three offerings of securities totaling $22,460,000 today will be placed on the investment market, which was revived last week by the favorable reception given four large issues.

A syndicate headed by W. C. Langley & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co. will offer two refunding bond issues of Iowa Southern Utilities company of Delaware amounting to $12,660,000. The issues consist of $10,000,000 of first mortgage bonds, 4 per cent series due May 1, 1970, and $2,660,000 of general mortgage 4½ per cent sinking fund bonds due May 1, 1950. Both issues are priced at 101 and accrued interest.

5½s To Be Redeemed.

Proceeds, together with other funds, will be used to redeem outstanding 5½ per cent bonds.

Another large offering will be $9,500,000 of refunding farm loan bonds of the First-Trust Joint Stock Land Bank of Chicago by A. G. Becker & Co., Harris, Hall & Co., and Lee Higginson corporation. The offering includes $1,000,000 in 1 per cent bonds due in 3 years, optional in 6 months; $3,500,000 in 1½ per cent bonds due in 5 years, optional in 1 year, and $5,000,000 in 1¾ per cent bonds, of which half are due in 7 years, optional in 2 years, and the rest in 10 years, optional in 3 years. The bonds are priced to yield from ⅝ per cent to 1.50 per cent to the optional dates.

The bank has arranged a 3 per cent insurance company loan for $5,000,000, maturing in installments over 5 years, and a $3,000,000 unsecured loan at 3 per cent from the First Chicago corporation, its parent company.

Bonds to Be Redeemed.

The bank will redeem its $17,397,000 outstanding bonds, which bear interest at 4¼ and 4½ per cent.

The First-Trust Joint Stock Land bank, chartered in 1922, is wholly owned by First-Chicago corporation, all of the capital stock of which is held by trustees for the benefit of stockholders of the First National Bank of Chicago.

The third offering will consist of 30,000 shares of 50 cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, series A, of Taylorcraft Aviation corporation, Alliance, O., priced at $10 a share. Underwriters of the issue are Holt, Rose & Troster and Mackubin, Legg & Co.

Cleveland Electric Illuminating company yesterday filed an amendment to its registration statement with the Securities and Exchange commission stating that the public offering price of its $50,000,000 first mortgage 3 per cent bonds due 1970 would be 105½.

Solar Aircraft Plans Issue.

Solar Aircraft company of San Diego, Cal., manufacturer of airplane parts, filed a registration statement covering 30,000 shares of series A preferred stock and 60,000 shares of common stock.

Bethlehem Steel corporation announced the sale of $20,000,000 of 3 to 10 year serial notes, bearing interest at rates from 1¼ per cent to 2⅛ per cent annually, to a group of 12 banks. Bethlehem will retire about half of the $46,812,000 outstanding issue of convertible 15 year 3½ per cent debentures, due 1952.

Blyth & Co. is reoffering $1,260,000 of Denver & Rio Grande railway equipment trust certificates. The issue is priced to yield 0.50 per cent to 2.35 per cent according to maturity.

BUSINESS IS FACING MORE GOVERNMENTAL RULE, SAYS KERWIN

Business must look forward to a period of increasing government control regardless of the outcome of the presidential election or the war in Europe, Dr. Jerome G. Kerwin, associate professor of political science at the University of Chicago, said yesterday.

Dr. Kerwin spoke in a series of lectures at the university on "Current Trends in the Relationship Between Government and Business." The lectures are sponsored by the university's school of business.

"No matter how we look at the situation, Americans are but partly in control of their own destiny," Kerwin said. He asserted business must expect regimentation and centralized control in America if the totalitarian powers win. Even if Britain wins, "democracy is threatened because of fundamental errors in the philosophy of those who support it and a startling lack of conviction in thousands who enjoy its benefits," Dr. Kerwin said.

CREDITORS FILE ACCOUNTING SUIT AGAINST G. A. BALL

Indianapolis, Ind., July 16 (AP).—Further litigation involving interests of the Van Sweringen rail empire and the Vaness company has been filed in federal court here.

Warren L. Morris of Cleveland, assignee for creditors of the Vaness company, filed suit against George A. Ball, industrialist; the George and Frances Ball foundation, and F. B. Bernard, all of Muncie, Ind. The charges that Ball and the late O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen obtained a large block of stock and securities "for the inadequate sum of $2,803,000."

The court is asked to require the defendants to make "a full accounting of all transactions and profits." Further, Morris asks an unspecified judgment "for all damages."

The securities had been held by J. P. Morgan & Co. as collateral on promissory notes and were offered for public sale in 1935 after the Van Sweringen brothers informed the investment firm that the notes could not be paid.

DISCOUNT FIRM'S STOCKHOLDERS ASK LIQUIDATION

Suit was filed yesterday in the Circuit court in behalf of 18 stockholders to liquidate the Chicago Discount corporation, 231 South La Salle street, whose president, Samuel E. Steinberg, disappeared a month ago, leaving an alleged shortage estimated by Assistant State's Attorney John Phillips at $47,000. The suit also asks appointment of a receiver and an accounting. The corporation deals in mercantile notes and automobile financing.

The suit charges Steinberg with embezzlement and misapplication of funds and asks the transfer of 29,350 shares of common stock he issued to himself, allegedly without making adequate compensation to the company. Steinberg is also charged with violating the state blue sky law by making false statements to qualify a stock issue and by paying salesmen's commissions of 25 per cent, 5 per cent in excess of the maximum allowed by law.

November Butter Drops to Lowest in Five Weeks

Butter for delivery in November fell ¼ cent a pound in futures trading on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, touching a five week low of 26.75 cents. Demand was not aggressive enough to overcome pressure of hedge selling.

RUIN OF NATION THRU SPENDING, TAXES IS FEARED

has been enforced upon the sprawling peace time burocracy built up by the New Dealers since 1933," Reed said.

When the revenue act of 1940 was before congress, Senator Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] gave this warning:

"After the war is over we will go into a far deeper depression than that which commenced in 1929. We will not be as well prepared to meet it from a standpoint of governmental finance as we were to meet the present depression. As we are now proceeding, our national debt, instead of being about 20 billions, as it was in 1929, will probably be closer to 60 billions."

A report of the Republican members of the house ways and means committee gave a similar warning in connection with the tax bill.

"First Line of Defense."

"The pending bill brings home to the American people the realization that the New Deal's extravagant and wasteful spending program has not only resulted in exhausting [raising to the limit] the authorized public debt, but has seriously undermined the financial security of the nation, which is our first line of defense," the report said.

In addition to raising revenues this tax bill boosted the national debt limit from 45 to 49 billion dollars. The public debt was $42,968,000,000 on June 30, 1940.

Net deficits from 1933-'40, inclusive, have totaled 24 billion 125 million dollars—representing the difference between ordinary government receipts of 36 billion 241 million dollars during that period and government expenditures of 60 billion 366 million dollars.

As for taxing measures, there is even feeling within the government that heavy taxes have stymied recovery and left industry weakened for the burden now thrust upon it in the defense program. Taxes on high incomes have been boosted to the point of diminishing returns [to the treasury], as former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes has said.

Income Tax Yield Dips.

A breakdown of internal revenue collections, released by the treasury tonight, showed that individual income tax collections dropped to 979 million dollars in the 1940 fiscal year from 1 billion 29 million in 1939. Excess profits tax collections also declined from 27 million to 18 million.

There was a small increase—about 2 million—in total corporation taxes, or from 1 billion 123 million in 1939 to 1 billion 125 million in 1940. Corporation tax collections in Illinois declined from 107 million to 96 million, individual income taxes dropped from 90 million to 84 million, and excess profits taxes declined from $3,474,000 to $2,450,000.

PERSONAL.

THE Illinois State Nurses Association with a membership of about 11,000 registered nurses including alumnae from 104 credited schools of nursing in this state wishes to announce to all business firms, particularly those selling to hospitals, that it is in no way connected with the persons who are selling tickets or asking for contributions for an alleged benefit for needy nurses. Our Assn. has suffered much embarassment because a group using a name similar to the one under which we have been incorporated for nearly 40 years is soliciting funds throughout this city and suburbs.
